PFA Changes Name To Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, Recognizes Berks Couple For Distinguished Service

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Change punctuated the 43rd annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA). It changed its name to Pennsylvania Farm Bureau and for the first time named a husband and wife team as the recipients of the Distinguished Service Award.

Keith Eckel, president of the organization, assured hundreds of farm leaders gathered at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center for the three-day meeting, "One thing won't change and that's the people. This organization is the product of the people who participate, work, and built together for the betterment of agriculture."

Distinguished Service Award recipients William and Gertrude Moore are two of these people who for more than 40 years have been active in PFA leadership.

The annual award is given to the person who through unselfish dedication has made a major contribution to the betterment of agriculture.

Described as the "Dynamic Duo," by Keith Eckel, president of the association, the Moores have an extensive resume of agricultural involvements.

Life for the couple started out on opposite sides of the world. Bill was born in South Africa, Gertrude in Oklahoma. After Bill graduated from Cornell University and Gertrude from Oklahoma City University, both settled in New York. Bill was a county extension agent and Farm Bureau manager and Gertrude, a school teacher.

The couple married in 1935. In 1946, the Moores moved from New York to begin farming in Berks County, where they immediately became active in the county Farmers Association. Both Bill and Gertrude worked tirelessly for the organization by serving on committees and holding office. For 13 years, Bill was president of the Association and his wife was secretary-treasurer for 17 years and editor of the county newsletter for 39 years. Bill was elected to the PFA state board for five years.

From the beginning, Bill was interested in the political impact that PFA could have on legislature. He represented PFA as a political consultant to the Philadelphia congressional delegation for 10 years. He was treasurer of the Penn-Ag Democrats for 12 years, and served as a democratic committee man for 23 years in Tulpehocken

Atlantic Dairy Shows $5.4 Million Net Margin

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — More than 900 members and guests filled the Lancaster Host Resort Showroom for the 76th annual banquet of the Atlantic Dairy Cooperative Thursday evening. The banquet provides the social point of the two-day business and annual meeting of the cooperative.

Don Rice III, a comedian, provided a room-full of laughs as he presented his fictional character Phychologist Dr. Ronald Willouhby, who offered the audience his slightly wacky thoughts on dealing with stress in today's world.

The business of the evening was a formal recognition of Dr. Paul E. Hand, retired general manager. Hand retired from Atlantic on July 31, and a check for $20,000 was presented to go toward a scholarship to be established in Hand's name at Penn State University.

The money for the scholarship was donated by the cooperative's members, directors and employees. A number of dairy industry organizations also contributed to the scholarship fund.

"We are proud to present this check to Pual Hand," general manager Robert M. Dever told the audience. "It is a token of our appreciation for his 36 years of service to Atlantic and the dairy

Ag Agents Give Editor Honorary Title

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.)—The Pennsylvania Association of County Agricultural Agents (PACAA) met for their hospitality and awards banquet in conjunction with the annual meeting Tuesday evening at the Nittany Lion Inn. Everett Newswanger, editor, Lancaster Farming, was the speaker and received the 1993 Honorary County Agent Award, also known in Penn State circles as the "Bull Skin" award. This commendation is given for excellence in communication and education that exemplifies the work of a county agent.

Newswanger is a member of the Penn State University agricultural advisory council and earlier this year received the award for excellence from the Northeast Farm Communicators Association for the best photojournalism farm story.

In the keynote address, entitled "From Agriculture to Society: A Few Thoughts on the Future of Farming," Newswanger said he probably gets to work with more extension personnel in the county offices across the state than anyone outside the extension system.

Reassessment Could Have Dramatic Effect On Farm Taxes

ANDY ANDREWS

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Tough decisions lie ahead for many Lancaster County farmers as countywide reassessment begins. And, for many farmers, it could mean a final assessment that could dramatically increase their 1996 taxes, according to Terry Kauffman, county commissioner, who spoke at a meeting of the Ephrata Area Young Farmers Tuesday night.

Last year's county court decision laid in place a countywide reassessment process that will account for every residential, commercial, and farm operation. The decision, according to Kauffman, was the result of the city's need for more revenue. They were legally bound to stay within the limit of 25 mills, but couldn'g go any higher without going to court. As a result, the city, at 25 mills, wanted more revenue. The ruling, which came in January of 1992, paves the way for reassessment and limits the tot-

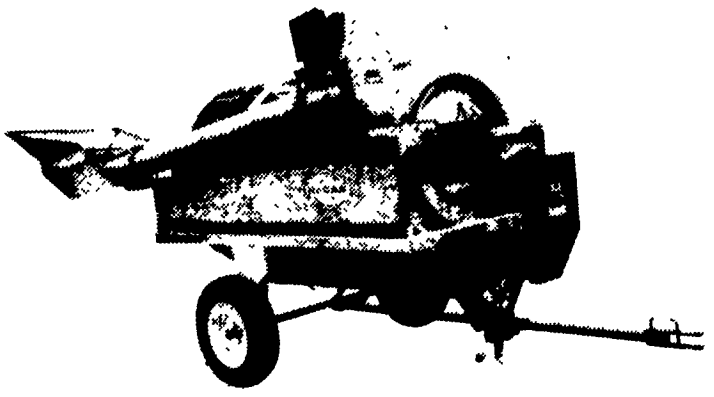
CLEANING GRAIN SAVES MONEY



You save more than drying costs, dockage, and aeration costs!

Grain cleaning also reduces the risk of grain spoilage or heating/moisture by removing the fines and trash which are the main cause of problems during storage.

DMC's Tel Top includes four Hi-CAP Grain Cleaners to meet your cleaning needs at any capacity. Screens are available for most grains.

Delmarva Broiler/Fryer Market

Wednesday, November 17, 1993

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was seasonally light to very light. Seller offerings varied, but where extra product was available it was difficult to place. Live supplies were generally moderate. Weights were desirable to heavy. Processing schedules continued to be curtailed, and were just moderate today. Less than trucklot asking prices were 1 cent lower at 51 to 63 cents. Trade sentiment was steady to weak. In the parts complex, supplies were irregularly balanced; however, breast items were readily available and slow in clearing. Wings were held with confidence at most plants. Leg items ranged balanced to heavy.

National Egg Market

Wednesday, November 17, 1993

NATIONAL EGG MARKET - AT A GLANCE: Prices were unchanged. The trade sentiment ranged steady to instances fully steady. Movement of cartoned eggs into retail channels was fair to good with the best call where features were in progress or planned. Supplies were in good balance in all areas of the country except fully adequate on the West Coast. In the Central States the market for breaking stock was unsettled. Buyers were cautious with most out of the market. Trading was very light with too few sales to report prices on nest run product. Sales of finished product was slow. The undertone was weak. In the Southeast, sales of light type hens were at unchanged prices. Offerings were in close balance with next week's reduced processing schedules. Sales of finished product were fairly good. The undertone was steady.

Northeast Chicken Parts

Wednesday, November 17, 1993

Trucklot buying interest was very light but seasonal. Supplies of boneless skinless breasts were fully adequate. Trading was reported at lower trending prices and some buyers were simply not interested in breast cutlets at any price. Line run breasts were fully adequate to ample and offered at sharply lower asking prices. Most buyers accepted regular commitments but were out of the market for any additional product. Yellow skin whole legs and leg quarters were irregularly distributed but were at least adequate at most points. Wings were tight.

PRICES PAID PER POUND, ICE PACKED AND CO2 PACKED BROILER/FRYER PARTS, DELIVERED TO FIRST RECEIVERS IN POOL TRUCKLOT AND TRUCKLOT QUANTITIES.

The Old Farmer's Almanac This Week With Almanac

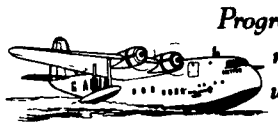
PRUNE GRAPEVINES NOW.

The China Clipper

On November 22, 1935, over 20,000 people watched as the China Clipper left San Francisco for the first official trans-Pacific airmail flight. The plane, a Pan American Martin 130 "flying boat" powered by four Pratt and Whitney Twin Wasp engines, was piloted by Captain Edwin Musick on its 8,000-mile journey. Carrying over 100,000 letters and official mail, the Clipper made stops in Honolulu, Midway, Wake, and Guam before landing in Manila seven days later. National excitement over this historic flight was well-expressed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, who remarked to the postmaster-general, "Even at this distance I thrill at the wonder of it all."



Progress is not an illusion but neither is it the habit of the universe. — Lyman Bryson

Tip of the Week

Earwise

Bleached white paper coffee filters simply don't make sense. Aesthetically, we don't need the filter to be pearly white when we're only going to turn it black and throw it away! And we don't really need to use paper when there are good cotton and gold mesh alternatives. At the very least, we can use brown paper filters and save ourselves and the environment exposure to the carcinogenic dioxin that remains after the bleaching process.

Orange Glazed Carrots

2 pounds carrots, peeled
1¼ cups water
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
½ teaspoon ground cardamom

Cut carrots into sticks. Bring water and salt to a boil; add carrots. Cover and cook for 15 minutes or until tender; drain. Remove carrots to serving bowl. Melt butter, add sugar, rind, and spice. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until sugar is dissolved and sauce is smooth. Pour over carrots and stir to coat evenly.

Makes 8 servings.

The Old Farmer's Weather Forecast

Northeast: Clear and cold then rain, snow north and west, and continuing cold.

Southeast: Warm; rainy Florida and coast; turning very cold with rain and snow.

Midwest: Sunny and warm then turning colder with rain, freezing rain, and snow.

Northwest: Warming, sunny coast, rain and snow mountains.

OPINION

Have A Nice Thanksgiving Day

In a book by Loy Cuyler Awkerman, V.M.D., titled The History of Veterinary Medicine in Lancaster County, and published in 1978, we found an interesting commentary on the early days of our country's agriculture.

Along with the first settlers came horses and oxen; horses were preferred. The first animals brought in for food were pigs. The land was ideal for pigs to scrounge and to root through the areas not yet cleared. Chickens came next, followed by sheep and cows. There was just not enough grazing land available for these two ruminants in the very early years. The first English settlers in Virginia, however, did have cows.

The favored breed of those pioneer years was a large brindle and white cow with long smooth horns. By today's standards it would probably resemble an Ayrshire. The type was considered a good milker and a good forager. By the mid-seventeenth century, a farmer in Massachusetts observed that cows fed hay and grain during the winter months would continue to milk. It became increasingly evident that manure on the soil produced better crops.

There were no trained veterinarians, only the neighbor who was "handy" with animals. Sometimes the physician in the village was compassionate enough to lend his knowledge and give aid to an animal in distress. It is certain that the dog and the cat had to make it on their own in those days because they were held in little regard. It is interesting that rural people even today are often not willing to seek veterinary care for their pets. The livestock of two centuries ago was worth saving if there was a way to save it.

The "Horse Doctor" was the first to gain some reknown as he would usually locate in the cities and cater to the riding and carriage horse. This person was of little value to the farmer living in the outreaches. In Lancaster County, Dr. John Breneman (1813-1877) of Mourt Joy rode horse back to surrounding farms to administer to the needs of horses and cows. Dr. Henry Freed Breneman, his son, (1843-1912), learned under the tutelage of his father and worte in his notes about a disease called "Locked-Joy." The young doctor wrote: "Locked joy—...Lock Joy-bleed largely then apply chloroform until he opens his mouth and give him 2 drahms of acifidity every 6 hours and a dose of physic. This will relief if there is any cure for him."

We laugh at the ignorance of our ancesters. But maybe we should laugh with reserve. Revolutionary knowledge of how to cure disease will soon make obsolete what we know now. The ability to raise the limits of good health will be the major reason why the bio-genetic plant and animal marvels now in the laboratory will become practical. Our descendants may soon be laughing at our limited pre-biogenetic knowledge.

In this Thanksgiving season we are grateful for what modern agricultural science has done for us and for the blessings that have come to everyone who eats because of this knowledge. Have a nice Thanksgiving day.

NOW IS THE TIME

By John Schwartz
Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Practice Biosecurity

Last week's article on biosecurity reminds us there is still a need for farmers to implement and improve their biosecurity programs.

Biosecurity is a defensive health plan to keep disease organisms away from our animals. Every farmer needs to develop and implement a biosecurity plan for his farm. Otherwise, he is playing Russian roulette.

As in Russian roulette, you eventually lose and pay a big price. This price may be in the form of economic loses, high mortality, and quarantines.

Biosecurity plans are easy to design but require a commitment to implement. Once implemented, they become habit and people learn real quickly you mean business.

Your biosecurity plan should include testing of animals before they come on your farm, clean clothes and boots before entering buildings, locked buildings to keep unauthorized people from entering, footbaths, and vaccination program.

I am amazed the survey reports only 28 percent of the swine producers required everyone to change footwear, 19 percent required coveralls, and 14 percent used footbaths. When you look at the investment you have in buildings and animals, farmers should be willing to spend a few extra dollars to buy boots, coveralls, and footbaths to protect their animals' health.

Biosecurity is insurance that pays dividends. Consult your veterinarian or extension agent to help you design your biosecurity program.

To Buckle Up

Just a reminder, on June 22, 1993, acting Governor Mark Singel signed the Child Passenger Protection Act.

This enhanced legislation requires all children under age four to ride in an approved child safety seat. The new law supersedes the old law which allowed children over the age of one to ride in a vehicle wearing a safety belt only.

The new car seat law has made riding without a safety seat a primary violation. Now police may stop a vehicle for that reason only. Also, the new law applies to all motorists, whereas the old law applied only to Pennsylvania residents.

This law took effect August 21, 1993. Now is the time to make sure all children under the age of four ride in a safety seat and all other people wear their seat belt. This practice could save your child's life or even yours!

To Salute Everett Newswanger

This week the Pennsylvania Association of County Agricultural Agents honored Everett Newswanger, managing editor of Lancaster Farming, with its Honorary County Agent Award.

This award is only presented to a very few people who assist in promoting the efforts of county cooperative extension programs.

Everett was cited for the space he makes available every week in Lancaster Farming for county, regional, and state cooperative extension news and promoting extension meetings. In addition, he publishes many, many articles and columns written by Penn State extension agents.

The Lancaster Farming newspaper is a very important vehicle that cooperative extension uses to communicate the latest educational information to farmers and agribusiness. Based on this support, the Pennsylvania county agents say "thank you" for making our programs more successful.

Welcome aboard, Everett, as our newest county agent.

Feather Prof's Footnote: "If you do not keep doing it better . . . your competition will."

Farm Forum

For 16 years we have been back on the dairy farm that has been in the family for over 100 years. When we started we thought 24 cows would provide a living for our family, but as time went on it's now even tough to make it on a fifty-sixty cow dairy. Same old story . . . You've heard it times before.

Nationally, there has been dairy over production throughout this period of time . . . funny I never seem to produce enough. Same old story . . . price of milk has never been enough! Add a cow or two to increase cash always made sense to me. We dairy farmers have always complained about pay price we have received for our milk . . . Never thought a few more cows on our farms would hurt overall surplus. After all, there has always been a neighbor down the road going out of business!

Cut the budget! Wow, what

YOUR BROTHER'S FACE
November 21, 1993

Background Scripture:
Genesis 33
Devotional Reading:
Matthew 5:23-25

Two of the most exciting verses in the Old Testament are in the final episode of the story of Jacob and Esau in the 33rd chapter of Genesis.

The first of these is: "But Esau ran to meet him and embraced him and fell on his neck and kissed him and they wept" (33:4). And the key word in this verse is the word "But," for everything in this verse stand in contrast to what went before it: the enmity between Jacob and Esau, Jacob's exile, his decision to return, and his apprehension as he anticipates his meeting with Esau.

We can understand what he must have been feeling: "And Jacob lifted up his eyes and looked, and behold, Esau was coming,...and four hundred men with him"! Was this to be the day of reckoning for what he had done so many years ago? We've got to give him credit: he possibly could have turned around and escaped. But, instead, as he had with Laban, he decided to make the best of the situation, dividing his large retinue in half for their security, and bowing seven times, he approached his brother. As "he came near to his brother," his heart must have been in his throat!

BUT ESAU RAN

"But Esau ran to meet him and embraced him.."! If Jacob had changed, so had Esau. He was still impulsive, still emotional, but obviously he had long ago forgiven his brother. Jacob still isn't sure whether to trust Esau; perhaps he's simply awaiting his chance for revenge. So, he offers his people and possessions to Esau to assuage any remaining hostility. And even when Esau protests that he has enough for himself, that he doesn't need any gifts, Jacob persists: "No, if I have found favor in your sight, then accept my present from my hand."

And then follows the second great verse of this chapter: "for truly to see your face is like seeing the face of God, with such favor you have received me" (33:10).

I have read this passage many times, but on this reading for the first time I saw the interesting link between "the face of God" which he now saw in his brother's face, and the face of God which he experienced at the River Jabbok the night before: "...I have seen God face to face, and yet my life is preserved" (32:30). That was a great mystical experience, but in Genesis 33 Jacob is indicating that the God he saw in his brother's face is no less inspiring.

ACCEPT MY GIFT

In the past we've regarded Esau as a rough-and-tumble man, insensitive to the nuances of other people's thoughts and feelings. But in this incident we can see that Esau has become more perceptive too. Jacob is intent on giving Esau something as a gift. "Accept, I pray you, my gift that is brought to you, because God has dealt graciously with me, and because I have enough."

The old Esau would have continued to refuse Jacob's gift. Just as many of us find it more comfortable to be the giver rather than the receiver, so Esau might have continued to refuse. But Esau must have realized that sometimes, when someone has done wrong and knows it, that person may need to do something or give something as partial atonement. Esau did not need any gift from Jacob, but he realized that it was Jacob's need to give. So, for his sake, he took it.

It is wonderful to have an experience like Jacob's by the River Jabbok. But it is even more wonderful to be able to see God in the face of our brother — all of our brothers and all of our sisters.

PARADISE TOBACCO SALES

PARADISE TOBACCO BARN

A Note to the Tobacco Farmer:

Do you know how auction works?! Do you know how tobacco is divided out at auction? If you don't please call Paradise Sale Barn and find out.

Why does a tobacco buyer want to buy at your farm? Because he will buy for less on the farm. Consider your low grade - what are you getting on the farm?

First sale is December 6th! Let's fill the warehouse — it's important. First sale means a lot for season pricing. New crop! Good demand! Get your check that day. Sale starts at 10:00 am. Any tobacco not unloaded by 10:00 am might be sold next sale.

A Note To The Tobacco Buyer:

All tobacco buyers are welcome at Paradise Sales Barn. If you think the warehouse doesn't give you enough tobacco on sale day, then bid stronger on low grades or outgrade and see if auctioneer doesn't give you a larger percentage. Remember, all buyers are welcome in the warehouse - we aim to please.

We will have a grader at receiving door so bottom of skid is like the top of the skid. Our warehouse personnel are there to work for you - the buyer and the seller. We are not order takers - we will represent tobacco for you.

A Note From the Warehouse:

The farmer is the number one Key in keeping tobacco barn going. If we don't get tobacco, we can not work for you - the farmer. All warehouse charges are the same.

Also, we welcome back for our 8th year - Mitch Ashby, auctioneer. We feel he is an important contributor in our warehouse.

SALES EVERY MON., WED., FRI.
beginning in December
SALES WILL START PROMPTLY AT 10:00 AM

RECEIVING: Dec. 1, 2 & 3 8 am - 3 pm; Dec. 6 til 10 am

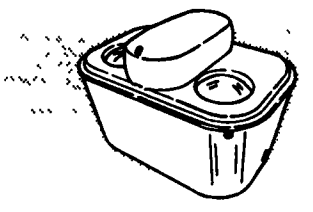
FREEDOM FOUNTAINS

Energy-Free All Season Livestock Waterers.
This all year energy-free waterer can help you save money.

Here's how Freedom Fountain does what it does:



- Works like a thermos bottle to keep water cool on a warm day and warm on a cold day.
- Energy free.
- Models for cows, sheep and hogs.
- Insulated earth tube keeps the riser pipe from freezing.
- Stainless steel hardware.

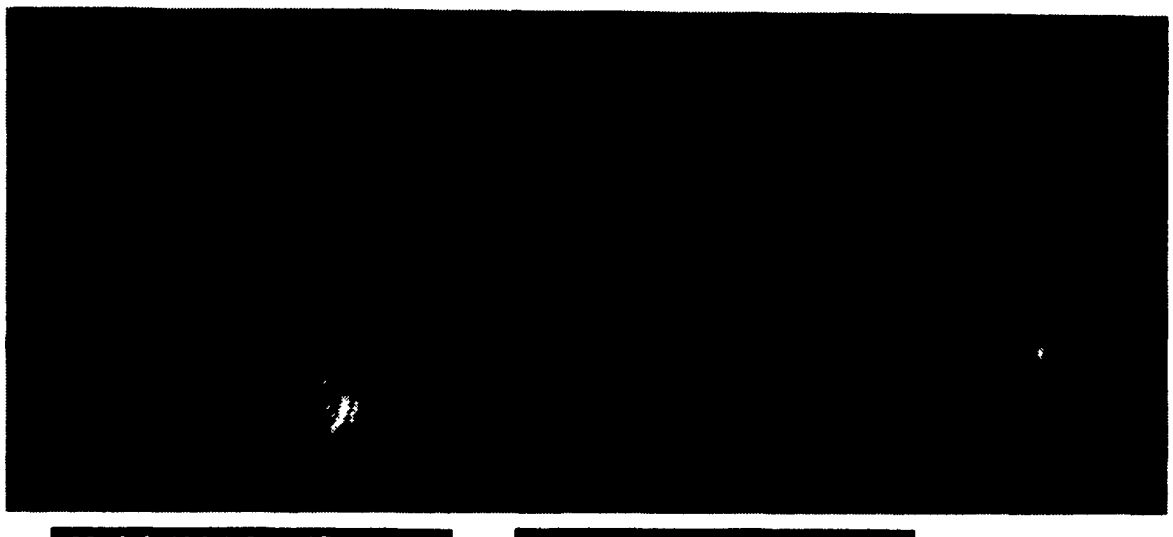
Models 510S, 515E, 520, 520H, 525 & 530T Bunk Feeders



Here's a better way to feed your herd! With the Pequea portable bunk feeder, you'll save time – save money. Load it up with silage, haylage, round or square bales or any mixture of grain and forage. Tow it into the field, and feed up to 52 head of cattle at once.

With Pequea's efficient slant-bar system cows can't push each other away from feeding spaces, so you have less feed loss from spills. Convenient low tank height accomodates any size cow.

You can save wear and tear on your pasture and they eliminate heavily trampled spots. Just move it to a new location each day.

The New 520H cattle head gate bunk feeder (below) is the modern answer for holding cattle during breeding, veterinarian, or testing purposes.

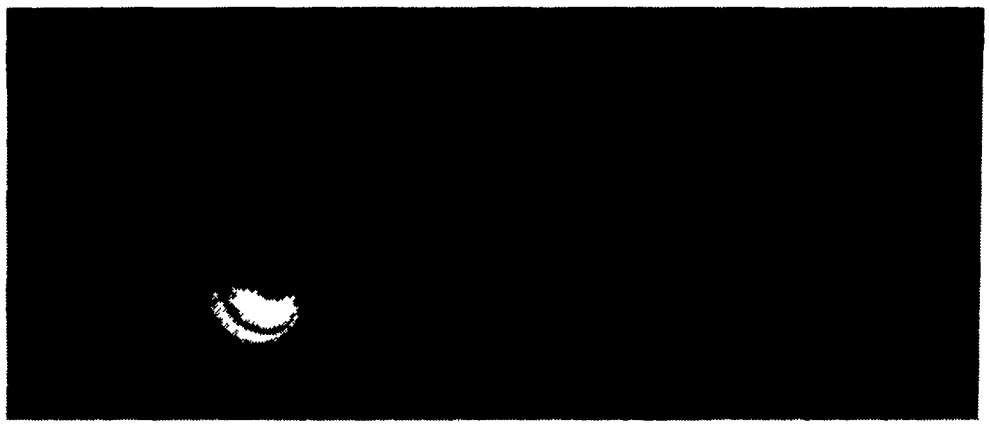
Models 50, 70, 85 & 110 Ground Drive Spreaders

Horse drawn spreaders available in Models 85 & 110



Pequea Machine, Inc. reserves the right to change specifications without notice.

High-capacity features in a practical size!

Manufactured for the smaller-scale farmer or horse farmer, the Pequea Model 85 & 110 manure spreaders are built to make a dirty job easier. Constructed of 10 gauge Cor-Ten steel to resist corrosion, the Model 85 & 110 feature Quik-Tach T-bar web chains for ease of maintenance. High-strength steel frame is designed for big loads and fast field travel. Tough, alloy-steel beater and paddles rip through manure for fine, even spread patterns. Ground-drive action minimizes HP requirements. A hydraulic end-gate is available as optional equipment. Both Model 85 bushel & 110 bushel capacity deliver big spreader features in an economical, maintenance-free size.

Plant WL 322HQ. Harvest HQ. Test for RFV & CP.

If we're not A1, we'll replace the seed PDQ!

Guaranteed.

Alfalfa growers rarely have had any assurance about how well a planting will perform. Until now. We believe that our new high quality, high yield WL 322HQ is so good that we'll do something no one else will: guarantee it.

Simply purchase WL 322HQ, fill out the official HQ Challenge card and plant WL 322HQ next to a competitive variety in your field. Harvest at the same time and have an approved lab test each alfalfa. If our bio-engineered WL 322HQ doesn't produce a higher Relative Feed Value and a higher Crude Protein, we'll replace the WL 322HQ seed with an alternate W-L variety of your choice. Guaranteed.

HQ The new symbol for high quality.

This is our way of letting you know that we believe our new HQ varieties are simply the best available in the field; university results have proven this to be true. So take the HQ Challenge. We're ready to prove our performance and back it up with more than promises. For HQ Challenge cards and complete details, contact your W-L Dealer – ASAP!

By Attending Meeting, Producers Can Learn To Stop Pseudorabies

Part 2
In A Series

Editor's Note: Last week, Lancaster Farming published the results of survey conducted by Penn State which indicated that swine producers were lax in some areas of biosecurity and overall management of pseudorabies. As a result, a meeting will be held next week to help producers learn how to control PRV, and highlight some of the things producers can do inexpensively to rid the virus from their herds.

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — To learn more about how to control the pseudorabies virus (PRV), swine producers are invited to attend a special meeting scheduled Tuesday, November 23 at 7:30 p.m. at the Bergstrasse School.

The meeting on "Swine Health, Profitability and Pseudorabies" is an informational and discussion opportunity for pork producers and ag business, according to the Veterinary Science Department at Penn State.

Abe Fisher, president of the Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council and PRV Eradication Effort chairman, urges producers to attend the meeting so "we can learn to wipe it out across the country.

"The only thing to do is to have everyone work together to clean it up at one time," said Fisher.

Speakers include Dr. Amy Nesselrodt and Dr. Paul Pitcher, who will discuss the current PRV situation in Pennsylvania; a producer panel to cover what is working and what isn't regarding PRV control; tracking PRV and the cost of PRV, by Dr. Bill Sischo; a feeder pig vaccination project in Lancaster County, by Dr. Paul Pitcher; and Pennsylvania Pork Producer Council and funding PRV control, by Abe Fisher.

One of the biggest issues facing producers is how to more fully implement biosecurity, which includes steps to ensure cleanliness in facilities to stop the spread of the virus.

pes virus that is spread through direct contact with contaminated saliva, according to Ken Kephart, Penn State swince specialist, in his "Swine Management News Column" in June 1992 at Penn State. "But reports suggest that pigs may pick it up in the air from neighboring farms at least a mile away."

The National Pork Producers Council, together with the state council, the Livestock Conservation Insititute, and USDA are backing eradication programs through education. This is seen as a more cost-effective way for producers to handle the problem of pseudorabies, rather than the costly depopulation efforts of a decade ago.

Lessons learned in the 1980s, according to Kephart, simply didn't work.

"It cost producers a lot of money who happened to be in the wrong place at the wrong time, but cooperated anyway," he wrote. "It left a taste in the mouths of Lancaster County producers that has lingered for at least 10 years. It may yet for another 10."

The biggest chance of reducing the spread in the state and region is for a widescale vaccination program to start, according to Kephart.

In the spring of 1994, results of a special vaccination test, involving about 100,000 finishing pigs and many herds in the region, will be available, according to Fisher.

Regarding biosecurity, according to Fisher, more information for producers must be made available regarding how cost effective it can be.

Many producers, he said, already know the importance of keeping away from other hog barns. He gave an example of two brothers who operate separate farrowing operations near Ephrata. They have not been inside each other's barn since pigs went in.

"Very rarely will a producer go into another hog barn after he's been in his or has hogs on his own farm," said Fisher. "That is implanted in their mind."

"Strict control of people, animals, and objects entering swine areas can help producers minimize pseudorabies risk," said Dr. Larry Hutchinson, extension veterinarian, in a Penn State release.

What works and what doesn't will be overviewed at a panel at the meeting.

For more information about the meeting, contact Chet Hughes at the Lancaster County Extension office, (717) 394-6851.

Editor's Note: In the conclusion of the series, Lancaster Farming will examine producer experience in dealing with pseudorabies and results of the meeting.

Township where he lives. He has been a notary public for 23 years and is currently the governmenal relations chairman for the Berks County Farmer's Association.

Eckel said, "I personally can't remember ever going to the Washington or the Harrisburg Legislative and not seeing Bill Moore. His relationship with legislators has always amazed me. It is obvious that they hold him in high regard."

Gertrude, too, is active politically. She has served as county chair of the political education committee for 34 years, has worked on many candidates' campaigns, been secretary for the Western Berks Democratic Club for the past 29 years, and served on the election board for Tulpehocken Township for 39 years.

The couple reared three children and were substitute school teachers for many years.

The winner of the All Star County Award, the most prestigious county award, was the Berks County Farmers' Association for excelling in program membership, organization, state legislative and national legislative activities, policy development, and insurance programs.

Edward Hartman, president of the Berks organization, credited the ability of its 1,134 members to maintain the largest county membership in the state to the example of William and Gertrude Moore.

Moore said that he always challenges members to get their money's worth from the membership fee by using the organiation. "Use the organization for Freedom to produce," he said.

Several hundred farmers, including 169 voting delegates, charted the course for the statewide farm organization by electing leaders and adopting public policies during sessions held from November 15-17.

During election of officers, PFA delegates re-elected Adams County fruit grower Guy Donaldson to his fourth two-year term as vice president of the organization. State board members elected to represent eight of PFA's 16 districts. Re-elected to two year terms were Curtis Kratz of Souderton, District 3; Roxy Levan of Milton, District 7; Richard Mains of Newville, District 9; Harold Shaulis Jr. of Somerset, District 11; Thomas McIlwain of Spring Church, District 13. Newly elected to the state board are Allen Roszel of Montrose, District 1; Milford Kinsman of Troy, District 5; and Alan Dambach of Fombell, District 15.

Delegates adopted policies on a wide range of public issues including the enforcement powers of humane societies, the Department of Environmental Resources, and re-oganization of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Policy was set calling limits and restrictions on the power of private organizations to enforce the state's Cruelty to Animals Law. Limits include background checks and psychological evaluations of humane enforcement personnell the same as municipal police officers. Weapons certification was also recommended before humane agents are allowed to bear firearms.

Outstanding Young Farmer

The Outstanding Young Farmer Award went to Daniel and Sherri Mains of Newville, Cumberland County.

The Mains operate a 275-cow, 800-acre dairy farm. The couple was honored for their outstanding business and leadership accomplishments achieved before the age of 30. As winners, they will travel to American Farm Bureau's annual meeting in Florida in January to participate in national Young Farmer and Rancher competition. The award included a $500 cash merit award the Dodge Division of Chrysler Motors, and a $100 U.S. savings bond.

Mains began farming in partnership with his father, Francis, in 1987. Three years later, the operation underwent a major expansion with the construction of a 270-head free-stall barn and double-eight herringbone rapid exit milking parlor, and an increase in the Holstein dairy herd from 70 to 300 cows.

Mains is in charge of the dairy operation, crop management, and financial management of the farm. He assists his father in Pioneer Seed sales and mushroom mulch and tanbark sales.

Mains is also a Soil Conservation Service director, a member of Cumberland County Extension Service board of directors, a member of the York Farm Credit Advisory Council, and a resource and promotion committeeman for Atlantic Breeders.

The couple have two children and are members of the Cumberland Farmers' Association Advisory Council and leaders in their church. Sherri works off the farm as a product manager for Sprint United Telephone.

PFA is a voluntary, general farm organization that represents 23,542 members and is affiliated with the American Farm Bureau Association and its four-million members.

Income Tax Meetings Set

HUNTINGDON (Huntingdon Co.) — Tax preparers, farmers, agribusiness people, and other interested individuals can secure an update about federal income tax at the 1994 area income tax meeting to be conducted in the following locations:

- January 10 — Mercer County Extension Office, Route 19, north of Mercer.
- January 11 — Butler, Days Inn Motel, Route 8, south, Butler.
- January 12 — DuBois, Holiday Inn, U.S. 219 and I-80.
- January 13 — Mansfield, Comfort Inn, Rt. 15 @ U.S. Rt. 6.
- January 14 — Tunkhannock, Shadowbrook Motel, Rt. 6, 1 mile east of town.
- January 17 — Hazleton, Comfort Inn, I-81 & Rt. 93.
- January 18 — Shamokin Dam/Selinsgrove/Sunbury/Lewisburg, Days Inn Motel, Rts. 11 and 15, Shamokin Dam.
- January 19 — Lancaster/Mt. Joy, Country Table Restaurant, Rt. 230, Mt. Joy.
- January 20 — Chambersburg, Lighthouse Restaurant, Rt. 11 North of Chambersburg.

According to Phil Rzewnicki, county extension director, information presented at this meeting should be helpful as taxpayers approach the 1994 tax filing season.

The topics covered at the meeting will range from a look at new developments to a review of important tax principles. The program will include a discussion of tax law changes affecting individuals, businesses, farms, and critical issues to be confronted by taxpayers when they file the 1993 tax return. Handout materials will be provided to support discussion by the instructors.

Penn State Faculty representing farm management extension will serve as instructors for each of the sessions.

Starting time for the income tax meeting is 8 a.m. The session will end at 4 p.m. The registration fee is $40 per person including lunch and reference materials. The registration deadline is December 10. A late registration fee of $10 will apply to registrations postmarked after December 10.

A brochure/registration form and more information about the one-day income tax meeting is available at the Huntingdon County Penn State Cooperative Extension Office. Questions about the meetings may be directed to Phil Rzewnicki, county extension director, (814) 643-1660.

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY IMPROVED EXPORT INTERESTS AND TIGHT SUPPLY OF MILLING QUALITY WHEAT EXTENDED GAINS IN WHEAT PRICES; CORN AND SOYBEAN PRICES CLIMBED SHARPLY HIGHER ON TIGHT FARMER HOLDINGS AND GOOD DOMESTIC FEED DEMAND. WHEAT 1 TO 9 CENTS HIGHER. CORN 4 TO 7 CENTS HIGHER. SORGHUM 1 TO 8 CENTS HIGHER. SOYBEANS 8 TO 10 CENTS HIGHER. MODERATE GAINS WERE MADE IN WHEAT PRICES DUE TO ACTIVE EXPORT DEMAND AND LACK OF AVAILABILITY OF MILLING QUALITY WHEAT. SPILLOVER STRENGTH FROM CORN AND BEAN PITS ALSO SUPPORTED WHEAT PRICES. CORN AND BEANS REMAIN IN TIGHT HANDS AS PRICES CONTINUE TO ADVANCE. EXPORT DEMAND SLOW BUT NEW INTERESTS SHOWING UP ON BOOKS. IDEAS USDA MAY CUT FURTHER INTO CROP PRODUCTION FORECAST ADDED STRENGTH TO PRICES. TRADERS AWAIT THE DECISION ON N.A.F.T.A.

Fresh Holiday Turkeys Build Reputation At Black's Farm

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

IMLER (Bedford Co.) — Black's Turkey Farm has been supplying fresh holiday turkeys for Bedford County families for the past 44 years.

"We've built up a reputation," says Guy Black Jr., who took over the farm after his father's death a few years ago. "And, we don't have to do much advertising."

Black sells 10,000 to 11,000 turkeys per year to individuals, local restaurants, clubs, and raffles."I think we're unique," Black comments. "We don't sell our turkeys to big processors. Instead, we do the raising, butchering, processing, and marketing ourselves. We are probably one of the few independent turkey farmers left."

Black buys his poults from Zealand, Michigan. They begin arriving in the spring and continue until August. The first poults are aimed for the Thanksgiving tables while those received later will be someone's Christmas dinner.

Turkeys range in size from 15 to 20 lbs. for the hens and 20 to 35 lbs. for the toms.

"We're the only farmers in a 100-mile radius with truly fresh turkeys," Black explains, "And, we have no trouble getting anywhere from $1 to $1.15 a pound. Our price is as high as it has ever been here and we still don't have much trouble competing."

Because of a good press from the nutrition experts, the demand for turkey has been on a constant increase. Predictions are that the demand will continue.

"But, with the demand increasing so has the number of turkey farmers," Black says, "So, price wise, we're about where we always were."

Black admits to having years when disease has wiped out a large part of his flock but the last few years have been good. "Those first few weeks are the touchiest," he says.

He recalls one year when the turkeys developed sores in their mouth and were unable to eat. "My own solution was to mix some clorox with their water. However, Penn State said we were wrong. So, we followed their advice only to find out a few months later, that we should have used our own instincts."

The Blacks have a 200-acre farm and raise about ½ of the corn they need for the turkeys. In addition to the turkeys, they also raise capon chickens.

Guy has one full-time worker, Betty Fickes, a spunky senior citizen who finds the work enjoyable. Other part-time help is needed during the processing season which begins about a week before Thanksgiving and continues until the end of the year.

Despite the constant sound of gobbling and the work which goes into raising that many turkeys, Black is still looking forward to the smell of a turkey roasting in his own oven on Thanksgiving day.

Guy Black Jr., and Betty Fickes show some of the turkeys that will arrive on Bedford County tables this holiday season.

White's Recognized As Conservation Farm

CLARKS SUMMIT (Lackawanna Co.) — Selected for its use of sound soil and water conservation practices, the White's Farm has been named a Take Pride in America Conservation Farm by the Lackawanna County Conservation District.

The outstanding conservation farm, operated by Scott White was recognized at a ceremony recently at White's Farm.

White's Farm was selected for its conscientious application of several conservation practices that help conserve soil and improve water quality. The most noteworthy aspect of White's conservation effort is not which conservation practices he uses but where he uses them and his firm belief in practicing conservation. White owns very few acres, but he has a conservation plan for it and uses conservation practices like strip cropping and cover cropping.

Most of the cropland that he operates is rented land and as such he usually must convince the owner of the importance of conservation practices. His policy has always been that he won't rent the land if the landowner won't allow him to use any necessary conservation practices. Typical practices that he uses include contour strip cropping, grassed waterways, conservation tillage, cover cropping and diversion terraces. He's been practicing conservation at home and on rented land since the early 1970s.

The public is invited to drive by or visit the farm to see the conservation practices. A roadside property sign identifies the Take Pride in America Conservation farm.

Smyser Farm Tops York DHIA

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

SHREWSBURY (York Co.) — In what has become almost a tradition, the Smyser family's Richlawn Farm claimed a large part of the recognition at the York County Dairy Herd Improvement Association's annual banquet and awards program.

The 74-head registered Holstein herd topped the York DHIA 1993 herd summary lists with an average of 26,353 pounds milk, 813 pounds protein and 886 pounds butterfat. Richlawn Farms, York, is owned and operated by brothers Rodney and Robert Smyser. Top herd in butterfat production was William Myers, Brodbecks, with 916 pounds butterfat, 22,428 pounds milk and 706 pounds averaged on the 44-head herd. The lactations-average marked a 146-pound increase over the prior year in butterfat production for the Myers herd.

For their production accomplishments, the Smyser families were also named winners of the Herd Management Award, scoring a total of 109 points, and topping contending Blue Knoll Farms by a single point. Low Somatic Cell Count award again went to the 55-cow herd of Ed and Carolyn Calhoun, Glen Rock.

Blue Knoll Farms, York, operated by Ralph, Howard and Ron Fetrow, was named the most improved herd, over 600-pounds, in protein production. Their 88-cow herd increased in protein production 66 pounds, from 743 to 809 pounds.

Most improved protein-production herd, under 600-pounds, was the 65-head herd of David and Chris Druck, Airville. Their 70-pound increase raised the herd's protein production average from 507 to 577 pounds.

High 305-day record awards were split among a trio of York County herds. Top milk record award went to the Smyser herd for their JoLynn cow, with lactation of 36,430 pounds. Blue Knoll Farms earned the 305-day protein record honor with Missy, a cow producing 1073-pounds protein. High 305-day butterfat lactation was produced by Rutter Bros.' Dorrie, with a butterfat record of 1367 pounds.

Recipients of York DHIA awards include, from left, Leo Rutter, high 305-day butterfat record; Ron and Ralph Fetrow, most-improved protein herd over 600 pounds and high 305-day protein record; and Ed Calhoun, low somatic cell herd award.

Rodney and Joyce Smyser accepted the several DHIA awards earned by the family's Richlawn Farms. Their awards included high herd for milk and protein, herd management award, high 305-day milk record and high lifetime production records for milk and for butterfat.

The Smyser herd claimed both high lifetime milk and fat production awards with Jane, completing ten lactations with a total of 250,086 pounds milk and 10,117 pounds butterfat.

York DHIA president Gary Thoman, Dallastown, told members that, as of January 1, 1994, new state DHIA by-laws will change the present structure from five to 18 districts. York and Cumberland counties will be combined to form District 10, represented on the state board by current director Neil McCullough of Cumberland County. A delegate system of one delegate to each 40 DHIA farms in a county organization will elect state directors under the new by-laws.

Thoman also reported an upcoming fee increase of about 5.5%, with slightly higher herd and individual cow fees. He noted a state operating loss of $366,000 last year and the need for fiscal balance of income and expenses. An income increase of one-cent per cow across the state equals about $40,000, Thoman added.

David Shenk, regional DHIA manager from Perry County, lauded the York DHIA members and technicians for their accomplishment of being the first county to totally transmit DHIA data electronically.

York County's DHIA technicians were recognized for their dedication to and performance within the state herd testing system. Technicians working within the county, and their years of service, are Marianne Walter, 15 years; Abbe Gore, 14 years; Jean Myers and Donald Messinger, both five years; Carolyn and Clyde Stump, four and one-half years; and Deb Messinger; who also works for Adams County herds, three and one-half years.

Elected to the York County DHIA board of directors for three-year terms were Melvin Marks, Airville, Scott Cooper, Delta, and Ed Calhoun, Glen Rock.

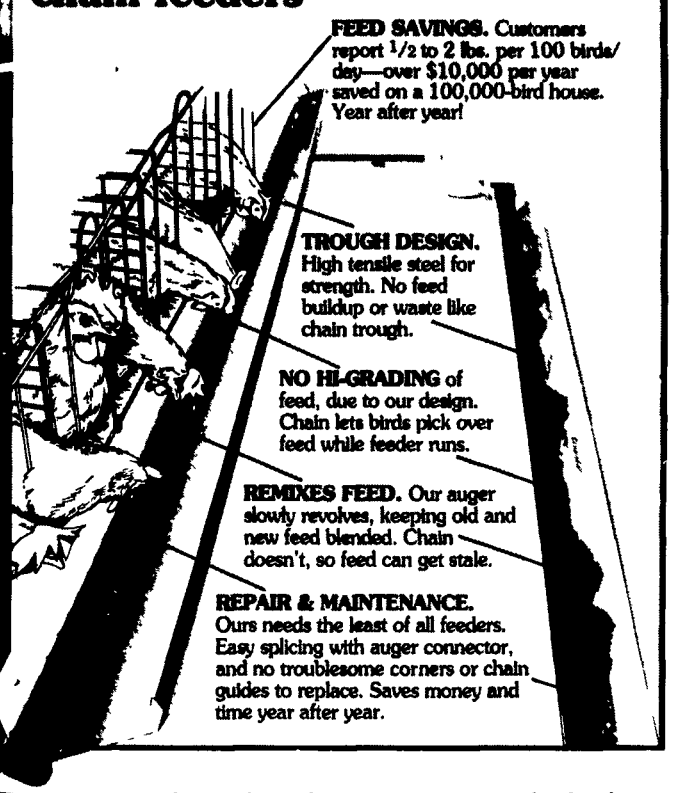
CHORE-TIME® Ultraflo® feeders

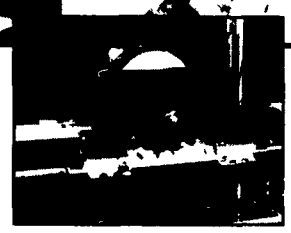
More Than 230 Ultraflo® Systems Have Been Sold In The Northeast Since 1985 - That's Over 16 Million Birds!

Over 80% of the nation's top egg producers have already switched to Chore-Time cages with ULTRAFLO® Feeders!*

Here are the facts why ULTRAFLO® outperforms chain feeders



FEED SAVINGS. Customers report 1/2 to 2 lbs. per 100 birds/day—over $10,000 per year saved on a 100,000-bird house. Year after year!
TROUGH DESIGN. High tensile steel for strength. No feed buildup or waste like chain trough.
NO HI-GRADING of feed, due to our design. Chain lets birds pick over feed while feeder runs.
REMIXES FEED. Our auger slowly revolves, keeping old and new feed blended. Chain doesn't, so feed can get stale.
REPAIR & MAINTENANCE. Ours needs the least of all feeders. Easy splicing with auger connector, and no troublesome corners or chain guides to replace. Saves money and time year after year.



SIMPLE OPERATION. "Push-Pull" Power Units with low HP motor are located along the feeder line as needed. Have hardened steel gears for trouble-free life Microprocessor control lets you program feeding time to the second.

EASY AUGER CONNECTOR. Allows fast and simple installation, also quick and easy repair of auger if ever necessary. Auger and trough are both warranted 5 full years. Chain feeders are not.

Egg producers have been putting up with obsolete chain feeders far too long. Now there's a better way: Chore-Time's proven ULTRAFLO Cage Feeding System. Since introduction, more than 80% of the top 54 egg producers* have gone to ULTRAFLO. A lot of smaller ones have too.

They've all looked at the advantages and chosen ULTRAFLO. That's because it makes them more profitable. Total egg production and egg size—these are the best benefits of our complete feeding system.

Why not check out the facts for yourself? Contact us now—or ask any producer who owns ULTRAFLO.

Because the only negative comments about our feeding system come from our competition—not from our customers.

"While you are all together, this is a great opportunity to say that many of us in agribusiness think the county agents are doing a tremendous job," Newswanger said. "Yes, we have gone from all cows and plows, bees and boars, and beef and bread, to also raising turf and teenagers.

"It's understandable that farmers don't like to share their dairy seminars with the teen-at-risk programs you people have initiated. But with the way the world is going, a lot of us not only think you are doing a good job, we believe you are also one of the major bridges between agriculture and society.

"The extension service has in place all the contacts in the local communities to be this connecting link," Newswanger said. "People outside of agriculture respect the local ag agent. They look to the extension office for answers to many problems. Extension programs and 4-H clubs give agriculture an entrance into the lives of many urban people who are agriculturally illiterate and would otherwise have no personal contact with anyone in agriculture.

"To have the agriculturally based extension service reaching into the homes and lives of urban society is certainly an opportunity that deserves recognition. Maybe we can do a creative study to see how the extension system can be even more helpful in teaching the values of agriculture to the growing population around our farms and forests."

Special recognition was given to Bill Kelly, Westmoreland County Agent, for his service as national association president, state association president, and many other state and national offices. The gift of a new deer rifle, a box of ammunition, and a standing ovation were part of his recognition.

Anderson, Welch Become Somerset Outstanding 4-H'ers

GAY N. BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

BERLIN (Somerset Co.) — Some 325 people were on hand to watch Travis Anderson and Heather Welch honored as outstanding Somerset Co. 4-H'ers at the annual 4-H Recognition Banquet held here at the Community center. Their awards were presented by Doug Huston from PennWest Farm Credit.

Anderson, son of Thomas and Betty Anderson, Somerset, is a 10-year Geiger 4-H Club member. He will attend the Slippery Rock University beginning in January.

His major will be Parks and Recreation, following a 4-H background that targeted conservation and made him a state winner.

Heather Welch, daughter of David and Connie Welch, Berlin, is a 10-year member of the Milksquirts 4-H Club and freshman at the Baptist Bible College, Springfield, Mo. Her project areas were dairy, beef, and health, winning a state award in health, and assisting her dairy bowl team to win a national title.

Michael Lynch, a Penn State sophomore, was recipient of the 1993 Memorial to Betsy Will Custer Award for the Outstanding Dairy Club member. The award, established by the Somerset County 4-H Dairy Clubs, is just two years old.

Travis Anderson was named the 1993 Outstanding 4-H Boy in Somerset Co. Heather Welch, the Outstanding 4-H Girl, was away at college and unable to attend the ceremony.

Scholarships and travel awards presented during the evening amounted to $5,450 from the various sponsors. Winners were Diana Auman, Michele Countryman, Kristen Hay, William Hersch, Heather Welch, James T. Yoder, Michael Lynch, Natalie Welch and Brian Shaffer.

Their parents are Allen and Dorothy Auman, Somerset; David and Linda Countryman, Berlin; Larry and Gale Hay, Berlin; Mr. and Mrs. William Hersch, Meyersdale; David and Connie Welch,

Governor Candidates Debate At Farm Bureau Forum

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Candidates for governor of Pennsylvania met for the first open debate during a special meet-the-candidates forum held Monday here during the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau (PFB).

Moderated by Brad Eckart, director of governmental relations, American Farm Bureau, the highly structured forum presented six questions to each of seven prospective candidates for governor for election in November next year.

Candidates include Tom Ridge, (R-Erie, 21st Dist.); Mark Singel, current state lieutenant governor, democrat; Ernie Preate, Pennsylvania attorney general, republican; Earl Baker (R-Paoli), state senator; Mike Fisher (R-Pittsburgh), state senator; Bob O'Donnell, (D-Phila.), state representative; and Charles J. Volpe, businessman, democrat.

Format for the forum was highly structured, which included an opening statement of three minutes for each candidate; a one-minute answer to the series of six questions (the order was determined through a drawing held prior to the forum); and a two-minute closing statement. Questions varied widely and ranged from property tax reform in the state to how important agricultural programs will be under the new administration to preserving wetlands and labor laws as they apply to seasonal and migrant farm workers.

Candidates were completely in favor of widespread property tax reform, giving high priority to agriculture, support of a mandatory state recycling law, and compensation for farmers if they're property is devaluated. Candidates differed in their opinions somewhat on how they would approach defining and dealing with wetlands and how state labor laws should accommodate the unique aspects of agriculture employment. Nearly all agreed that the state's Department of Environmental Resources (DER) would be restructured.

Following is the list of six questions. Each candidates response was carefully recorded, and a summary of their platforms and positions is included.

Questions

• Question 1: Do you support property tax reform in Pennsylvania, and more specifically, regarding state and local funding for public education? If you do, is there a specific approach that you favor?

• Question 2: Both farmers and consumers benefit from Pennsylvania's Department of Agriculture (PDA) programs. What priority of funding would you give to PDA?

• Question 3: Pennsylvania's recycling law hasn't done much to curb roadside litter in rural areas. What do you propose to get and keep bottles and cans out of fields?

• Question 4: What is your definition of a wetland worth preserving? How would you protect wetlands really worth saving?

• Question 5: Should property owners be compensated when their property is devalued because government regulations are placing restrictions on their land use?

• Question 6: In recent years, certain attempts have been made to apply laws written for transient, seasonal farm workers to all farm workers. How should state labor laws accommodate the unique aspects of agriculture employment?

Tom Ridge

Tom Ridge

"You need an agriculture leader in the governor's office, and I want to be that leader," said Tom Ridge in his opening statement. "You need someone who understands that you are businessmen and businesswomen and that profitability is what you're interested in, and that in order to do that, you need government off your backs, markets open, so that you can realize the potential that you have in your communities."

In the last 11 years, according to a newsletter published by the Agriculture Coalition Newsletter, Ridge for Governor, Ridge has represented rural northwestern Pennsylvania in the House of Representatives. Ridge stressed that his priorities will include "greater marketing efforts, measures to improve farm exports, and a complete overhaul of the Department of Environmental Resources" (DER).

Platform goals include developing an aggressive, well-staffed PDA; make marketing ag products a priority; make "grown in Pennsylvania" and "made in Pennsylvania" labels a trademark seen throughout the world; support new product and market research; and work with state farmers to improve their profitability.

Ridge voted for and strongly supported the recent North American Free Trade Agreement, approved by the U.S. House late Wednesday by a vote of 234-200. NAFTA will take effect on Jan. 1, 1994, if Congress approves.

Regarding the property tax reform question, Ridge said that "we don't need more taxes, we need more effective and responsible government. Any tax reform must be revenue-neutral."

Ridge said he favors eliminating the practice of unfunded mandates. He said too often that tax reform is looked at as an excuse to raise taxes, and cited the fact that farm income is down 24 percent last year, and during the past five years, farm taxes went up 38 percent.

Regarding question 2, PDA's funding priority, Ridge said the "primary responsibility is to find better ways to spend the money you're already sending" to the state. He said that if the state government would have limited its spending "simply to the level of inflation the past six to seven years, the state's funding would be $13 billion instead of $16 billion."

Regarding question 3, the Bottle Bill-type legislation, he said if the state's going to be in the business of recycling, that somehow the state would have to try to create markets for the kind of material being recycled. Public education about recycling is also key.

Regarding question 4, preserving wetlands, Ridge told those present that he tried to take the lead on a comprehensive wetlands management and reform measure in the House. "I do not thing that all wetlands are created equal. I do not thing that a farmer or a businessman in a community should have to knock on four or five different doors in order to get some kind of approval." Ridge said classification of wetlands to their ecological value and relationship they have to the community is important.

On question 5, property devaluation compensation, what amounts to taking and how that compensation should be carried out needs to be fully examined. "This question needs to be given a very high priority," he said.

On question 6, transient worker laws, Ridge emphasized the need to not take "unfair economic or social advantage of transient workers at any time or any place. The best thing for Pennsylvania to do is to understand that we need them."

Mark Singel

Mark Single has served as the state's acting government since June, when Gov. Robert Casey underwent a heart transplant. Singel is a former state senator and is a two)term lieutenant governor.

"This has been the most pro-agriculture, pro-farmer adminstration in the history of Pennsylvania," said Singel. "Every one of the promises and commitments that we made in 1986 were fulfilled. And we intend to do much more."

Singel, in his opening statement, spoke about the leadership given by Secretary of Agriculture Boyd Wolff to represent farming and related industry, the state's "$40 billion dollar enterprise.

"We will continue to treat it with the top priority that it deserved." Singel said the state has spend $100 million to preserve some 30,000 acres of farmland in the state.

Regarding the question on property tax reform, Singel said he supports a program that he has supported of which the largest benefits will go to the farmers. On the PDA's funding priority, Singel said that he "will not create new programs just to create new programs." Priorities include market development, product, salesman-

Hershey School Helps Launch Youth Ag Science Program

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — A National Institute of Youth Sciences In Agriculture and The Environment (NIYS) has been officially established under the auspices of the Milton Hershey School here in ribbon-cutting ceremonies on Monday.

According to the school's office of communications, the NIYS will work with the school's agricultural science program to develop a "community of learners" between the school's academic and residential programs. More than 20 employees at the school, in addition to the resources of 500 acres and associated equipment, will be used for the NIYS to "link classroom instruction to real-life applications, thus creating pathways to the world of work," according to a release.

The position of the NIYS reflects the philosophy of school founder, Milton Hershey, an ardent believer in agriculture. The key is "hands-on" research for the students, and students will engage in various types of research and will have the chance to enjoy the special beauty of plants and animals, according to the school.

Under the direction of Norm Miller, director of the school's Beef Producers Assn., Somerset Co. Home Builders and Suppliers Assn., Somerset Co. Lady Shepherds and Somerset Trust Co.

National award winners were Kevin Landis, automotive; Jeremy Hay, beef; Jennifer Black, bread, clothing and textiles; Natalie Welch, consumer education; Michael Lynch, dairy; Brian Shaffer, energy management; Jill Clites, fashion revue home management, outstanding 4-H'er; Jacglen Rhoads, foods-nutrition; Erica Walker, food conservation, preservation and safety; Bobbie Darr, horse; Valerie Castro, photography; Kristen Hay, public speaking; Todd Suder, sheep; James Yoder, swine; Meggan Hayes, veterinary science; Angela Livengood; wood science; Christy Wysocki, outstanding 4-H'er.

Robert C. Antram received the Sapphire Clover for 35 years of 4-H leadership in Somerset Co. Mary Ann Sorber, for 20 years of leadership, received the Diamond Clover.

Pearl Clover awards for 15 years of leadership went to Robert Hay and Samuel Hemminger, while the Gold Clover marking 10 years of leadership, went to Margaret Ream and Terry Ream.

Silver Clover awards for five years were presented to Diane Ackerman, Linda Baraniak, Stacey Cahill, Gale Hay, Larry Hay, Daniel Kimmel, Jennifer Kimmel, Paul Lenhart, Nancy Merrill, Mark Miller, Martha Miller, Judy Rhoads, Ted Shipley, Dorothy Showman, Carol Stoy and Betty Lou Svonavec.

Ron Hostetler, a Somerset County native who once was drafted by the L.A. Rams for the National Football League, was guest speaker. He shared stories and anecdotes about growing up on the farm with his sisters and brothers, one of whom is Jeff Hostetler, quarterback for the L.A. Raiders professional football team.

Hostetler spent an hour weaving into his talk the need for Godly values in 4-H leadership and all of life, for the true success. He related numerous personal experiences, praising the example of faith instilled in him by his dad and mother. He talked about lessons learned from coach Joe Paterno while playing college football for Penn State.

"Young people need good leaders. In 4-H, the centrality is the family," he said. "There is a desperate need for leaders in 4-H today. The great thing about leaders is that they lead by example."

County 4-H officers are Jason Baughman, president; Jill Clites, vice president; Valerie Castro, secretary; Natalie Welch, treasurer; Christy Wysocki, reporter; Jackie Rhoads and Jenn Black, recreational leaders.

Officers of the county 4-H Development Fund, Inc. are Ed Goddard, president; Lowell Friedline, vice president; Peggy Black secretary; Douglas Huston, treasurer.

The dinner was coordinated by the Somerset County Cooperative Extension staff of Marie Kieffer, Robert J. Brown, Linda Johnson, and Kathy Dwyer.

ship, and promotion here and abroad, preserving farmland, and "making the Department of Agriculture as user-friendly as possible."

On question three, the Bottle Bill-type legislation, Singel said that since recycling began in the state in 1988, "we have been developing new markets for recyclable materials. We recycled less than five percent of the waste stream just three years ago. We now recycle 17 percent of the waste stream, and we're moving very aggressively in that direction." He said 5 million people recycle material in the state today. "I want to make sure all commodities get recycled, no just bottles." He wants to work with the program they have now.

On the preserving wetlands question, Singel said that his general philosophy is that "where reason prevails, progress follows. I will ask the farming community to help me define once and for all wetlands, so that we can strike that proper balance between environmental and economic concerns."

On the question of property devaluation, Single said that "if some action of government results in the devaluing or taking of property, then, yes, you are entitled to compensation, period."

On the transient worker law question, the lieutenant governor said that transient farm workers "are human beings.

"I'm really disheartened by any suggestion that we can throw them off into the streets and deny legitimate benefits. But in addition to that, there are legitimate economic concerns that impact on all the farm community in Pennsylvania."

Mike Fisher

The number one issue facing the state is how to create new jobs for Pennsylvania, according to Mike Fisher, who has served 18 years in state government, according to a release prepared by his campaign.

Fisher's platform will include also the number two goal, he said, which concerns improving the educational system for the future of the state. "What I think we need to do in education is get back to the basics," he said. "That's why I think we need to get back to reading, writing, science, arithmetic, rather than trying to get into new efforts such as outcome-based education and other issues that get us away from the basics." Fisher said he has been a leader in opposing outcome-based education in the state senate.

Bills that Fisher helped put forth in the Senate include those to improve economic growth, reform the state's product liability laws, reform the state's welfare system, improve accountability in education, and others.

On the property tax reform question, Fisher said before that is done, it is important to start making spending cuts and other curbs on spending. On the PDA funding priority, because of agriculture's status as the number one industry, he said programs are neded that are effective. On the Bottle Bill legislation, he said we need more public education, and more markets for bottles and cans. On preserving wetlands, he said we have to go back "to the common-sense approach. Some wetlands need to be protected," he said, but that no bureaucrat should have the right to tell a farmer what he can and can't do with land. On the devaluation compensation question, Fisher said we need to find a way to create a fund to provide monies so that people can be compensated, but not through new taxes. On the transient worker question, Fisher said that employment costs need to be focused on, and his platform dictates that more significant reform is needed in the state.

Earl Baker

Baker is running for governor "because I'm concerned our people have lost faith in Pennsylvania's future," according to the campaign flier. He is strong on local tax reform and said, at the banquet, that as a Chester County commissioner, realized how important agriculture was to the county and state.

"We worked hard to keep the New Bolton Center open, because that's so important to our entire agricultural industry," he said. "It's one of the things that this administration has been a failure on."

He told the forum that DER needs reform, but "no matter what we do with DER, we can cut it into two pieces or three pieces or five pieces — it doesn't really matter, unless we change the attitude of the people in DER to be more cooperative and educational, rather than adversarial."

On the property tax reform question, he said he was in favor of an adaptable local tax system. According to Baker, his legislation, the Real Estate Property Tax Relief Act, could help agriculture. On the PDA funding question, he said he would make marketing his first emphasis, and it "would have to be much stronger than it is right now." On the Bottle Bill legislation, he said "I think we need to seriously study other states that have enacted the deposit laws." On the preserving wetlands question, Baker said that he served on the conservation district of Chester County for 12 years, and there are gradations of wetlands. "We should establish those that are the most high value in sensitivity and really work hard to preserve them." On the devaluation compensation question, according to Baker, more research on applying zoning to ag is needed. On the transient worker question, Baker said he is against the "blanket extension of labor laws to cover seasonal and migrant workers."

Ernie Preate

"We have problems in this state, mostly problems created by people, people who were short on vision and long on partisanship," Ernie Preate told the forum.

The current administration, according to Preate, has been a failure in many ways. "They gave us the highest corporate net income tax on employees in the United States." He decried the failing welfare system, an environmental system that "strangles initiative," and lots of red tape in productivity and regulation.

"What this state needs is an advocate to the private sector, an advocate for the small businessman, an advocate for the farmer," said Preate.

On the property tax reform question, Preate said he would support reform, but that local government should be allowed to select a mix of taxes which is most important for their community. He wants to end the partisanship and gridlock in Harrisburg, he said, because "everybody agrees that it's time for leadership and vision." On the PDA funding priority, Preate said that he would support strong funding for PDA. "I would support funding for a veterinary school," he said. "I think it was a tragedy that we left the University of Pennsylvania Veterinary School go twisting, slowly, in the wind, while it was debated whether to fund it." On the Bottle Bill legislation, he said he thought it was time "we had a mandatory recycling law in this state" and that the legislature should "step up and stop ducking the issue." On the preserving wetlands question, Preate said that a "drainage ditch or a man-made farm pond is not my idea of a wetland, and all the language and the mumbo-jumbo that comes out of the Department of Environmental Resources in Harrisburg is not going to change what is reality." He said we need more sensible and reasonable regulations and DER. "If there's ever an agency that needs to get reformed, it's that." On the property devaluation question, we need regulation that is sensible and that farmers should be compensated if they could no longer use the property for how it has been historically used. On the transient worker question, Preate said the state should go through a "cost-benefit analysis" to determine exactly what the economic impact is going to be before passing regulations. "We have to have government that works in partnership with the farm community."

Bob O'Donnell

O'Donnell, democrat, said he is "a city boy, born and bred," and has relied on the PFB to provide him information and observation on what to do regarding ag issues. But as for the future of farming, he said it is "not clear to me that we will be able to follow in that way of live," he said. "We're losing approximately 1,000 farms a year in Pennsylvania. And I think that puts that way of life severely in jeopardy."

O'Donnell said he believes that regarding state government, "I think we've lost our way, and state government is no longer fulfilling its commitment to the working people in this state." He said the school system has falling standards and rising violence and an economy where jobs are at risk and the future is in doubt.

On the property tax reform question, O'Donnell said that he supports change to permit greater flexibility at the local lvel, including a de-emphasis of property tax and a move to more income and sales "mix." The state has been picking up 50 percent of the cost of education, and "we're not getting our money's worth." On the PDA funding question, he said the PDA is a "catalyst and strategist for this industry" and funding would have to be commensurate with the role of the department. On the Bottle Bill, he said he favors the deposit law. "I'm a co-sponsor of the bill, period." On preserving wetlands, O'Donnell said that he said that more needs to be done on looking at the impact this has on jobs and economic development. On the devaluation question, he said you can't take property without due process of law, and, as importantly, when economic activity has been impared. "If you're losing money, you ought to get reimbursed." On the transient worker question, he said that he has experience in drafting and crafting legislation that embodies most of what the forum has heard on the subject, and a "useful experience" is seeing what the executive branch of the government does to it. He said in his administration that he would make an executive branch to take these conflicting values of farmers and be able to draw the line "in the way that reflects the common sense and is able to make the distinction between operating a family farm and a steel mill."

Charles Volpe

"I'm the only person not holding elective office on this state," said Volpe, who said his campaign will not accept "one cent of any PAC (Political Action Committee) or special interest money.

"We need an independent governor in Harrisburg, and I find that we have lost that connection," said the insurance businessman, who operates a 32-employee firm and is in charge of many of the week-to-week operations of the business.

Volpe, running as democrat, in his flier, said we are taxing "small businesses to death. Once again, I'll fight the insurance industry for lower workers' compensation rates and lower insurance rates."

Volpe said that he spends time at farms. He was told a "fairly scary story" about a diary farmer, who obtains $12.75 a hundredweight for milk, how that price has remained constant for 13 or 14 years. But the farmer then showed Volpe a farm tractor, bought five years ago, that cost $15,500 now cost $25,000. "We need to change the way we do business in Harrisburg," he said.

On the property tax reform question, Volpe said he supports reform, but that he advocates a per-district, by county, median income. "All houses below the median income should be given a homestead exemption, and senior citizens on fixed income should receive an exemption, depending on ability to pay." He said that his plan to announce property tax reform will be released later this year on a dollar-for-dollar basis.

On the PDA funding question, Volpe said he will strongly support the department. "What's good for how farmers and agriculture help our economy is good for the entire business community and economy in Pennsylvania." He said he would widen the responsibilty of the PDA at the expense of the DER. "We have too many environmental people coming out of DER, environmental engineers, who know very little about what the farmer does, in imposing stringent regulations that farmers can't live with."

Volpe said he would support Bottle Bill legislation. On wetlands, Volpe said that farmers told him that what consitutes a wetland, according to DER, "is that every time a cow urinates on a knothole in the fence on the farm, that seems to constitute a wetland." Meaningful reform about the definition and regulation is needed. On the devaluation question, Volpe said that farmers need more protection from government and that farmers need to be compensated if property is taken. Also, the economic security zone needs to be expanded beyond just farmlands. On the transient worker question, he said it is too easy to obtain welfare in the state, and that reform is necessary.

New World Milk Record of 59,300m Set

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. — A new world record for milk production has been set by Robthom Suzet Paddy in the herd of the Robert M. Thomson Jr. family of Springfield, Missouri.

Born December 1, 1986, Suzet recently completed a 365-day production record with 59,300 lbs. milk, 2, 297 lbs. fat and 2,038 lbs. protein on a twice-a-day milking as verified by the Holstein Association. During her lactation, started at 5 years, 6 months, Suzet peaked at 200 lbs. and averaged 162 lbs. per day.

An X-Ray Picture of the Herd

For months, I've been writing about the many ways your DHIA records can be used as a helpful management tool.

On a recent farm visit, I asked the dairyman if he was on DHIA, and if I could see his records. His DHIA Herd Summary report gave me an X-ray view of his herd, and in a manner of minutes I spotted a number of problems that were hurting his cash flow.

Somatic cell counts averaged 621,800 for the year. He was at risk of losing his market, and he was losing a lot of milk as a result of udder damage. He had one "hot" cow that was responsible for over 30% of the cells in the bulk tank on last test day. About 40-50% of the cows had SCC codes over 5 every month of the year. He had one "hot" cow, but he also had a herd problem.

With a few exceptions, heifers freshened with very little mastitis, but their cell counts rose as their lactations progressed. Chances are he had contagious mastitis that was being spread at milking time in spite of his good milking practices and a functional milking system.

Too many of his older cows freshened with mastitis. Some of them were probably chronic and carrying Staph infections over from the previous lactation and failed to respond to dry treatment. Another thing to be concerned about is the maternity area, but it did not appear to be a problem at this point. Sanitation in general was fairly good. Some of the high count cows need to be cultured to get a more accurate feel of the situation.

Herd average fat tests were very low (2.6 - 3.3) for about 10 consecutive months, and as I would expect, he had some problems with appetites, DA's, silent heats, retained placentas and cystic cows, but he had very little ketosis.

Days open averaged 144, days to first service was 115 and the projected calving interval was over 14 months. He had a lot of stale cows and some of them were starting to get a little fleshy.

Milk production was off because of feeding, breeding and mastitis problems. If he had been on a base-surplus milk market, his calving season would have cycled out of his base building period.

Very quickly, I saw a need to refine the feeding program concentrating on forage and fiber intakes, ration balancing and pre-calving care of bred heifers and dry cows. With the feeding program corrected, a lot of the reproductive and metabolic problems will probably disappear. Even though milk fat doesn't have much market value, it's still important to maintain a normal test of about 3.5 for Holsteins just to maintain normal rumen function, efficient digestion and good herd health.

As I mentioned earlier, I also saw a need to do some selective culturing to determine the nature of mastitis infections and to identify chronic cows, and cows that need to be treated, milked last, dried off or culled.

This is just one example of how I found the herd summary report very useful for helping to quickly and rather accurately analyze farm situations and troubleshoot herd problems.

agricultural science program, the school has committed 500 acres of existing farmland, associated equipment, and a team of more than 20 employees to achieve the goals of increased science and interdisciplinary education through practical agricultural applications. Heading the NIYS will be Richard Hann, executive director, and Tom Helm, director. Hann is president-elect of Penn State's Agricultural Alumni Association and Helm is a nationally recognized leader in educational program design and implementation.

The school, according to the office of communications, plans to share its model youth science/ag science program with other schools throughout the nation and to incorporate ideas from other schools and organizations who are developing program aspects of a similar nature.

At the ribbon-cutting ceremony, those present included various school leaders and local representatives.

tough words . . . They are not new words . . . I can't do it on our own farm so I understand how it is so tough for my richest uncle to do it. You know my Uncle Sam don't you?

We dairy farmers and Uncle Sam have worked together many times in recent years to solve our over-production problem. He has always said over-production is bad business. In economic terms, supply exceeds demand. Uncle's policy has been a cheap food policy to guarantee our country's people food on the table. That makes sense to me, but at whose sacrifice? We dairy farmers have done our share. Uncle Sam says cut production . . . Cut production. We have stirred congress up so many times about our plight I believe they're sick of us! Over recent years, through different farm programs that congress approved, they tried to help us get that supply and demand in a proper balance . . .

Mandatory advertising - hard to sell to most dairymen

DTP (Dairy Termination Program) not the answer

Whole Herd-Buy Out, not the answer either!

We dairy farmers still need HELP! Some of us have different ideas as to what the answer is even now!

I do not think there is one and only one answer as how to get the pay we need for our milk. One thing I am sure of, this is a country where free enterprise is guaranteed. That's what we dairy farmers are is entrepreneurs . . . How about that! We organize, arrange and assume responsibility for our dairy business in order to produce milk to feed our fellow people. Our past dairy programs have not worked and now on the positive side there is probably more unity among dairy farmers across the entire country than ever before. The problem must be solved! I call to your attention that before as all, are new words that must be noticed.

SELF-HELP "God helps those who help themselves," I was always told that. I believe it! This program is approved and made legal to implement would ask for nothing more from our Uncle Sam than to give we dairy farmers the ability to control the distribution of our surplus products. No more would excess products be an expense to Uncle Sam. He could cut his budget . . . Dairy Farmers could collectively, through a dairy board, decide what to do and where to move our surplus products. We must expand our markets and SELF-HELP could be the way.

I urge any and all concerned to remember the words SELF-HELP, I urge you to support it and if in position to promote or pass it, please do so.

Other new words that not only concern we farmers, but should concern all who want to expand their markets are NAFTA. Many other businesses in this country have also hit a lull in their growth because of supply exceeding demand. NAFTA is the answer to allow these businesses to grow and expand.

Please, for the future of our American dairy farms . . . support SELF-HELP and for the betterment of most American businesses, support NAFTA.

Thank you for your time and may all your decisions be made with more than yourself in mind. We all live collectively, cooperatively, and completely!

Mason-Dixon Red And White Association Meets

MANCHESTER, Md. — The Mason-Dixon Red and White Association met for the first time on November 7 here at the home of Jack and Vicki King.

All Red and White Holstein owners and enthusiasts are encouraged to join the new association.

The newly formed Mason-Dixon Red and White Association will host a national Red and White Show and Sale on April 8 and 9, 1994 at the Maryland State Fairgrounds in Timonium, Md. This spring show and sale was the catalyst for the formation of the new association. The annual event will be alternating between Syracuse, New York, and Timonium.

Directors elected were: 3-year term, Michael Allen, Jack King, and Harold Smith.

Two-year-term, Roscoe Harbaugh, Kenneth Myer, and John Weiler.

One-year term, Gary Derr, Charlie Hudson, and Glen Peachy.

Officers elected were Jack King, president; Harold Smith, vice president; and Kenneth Myer, secretary-treasurer.

Membership dues were established at $10 per farm family. For additional information, call Jack King at (410) 848-6650 or Kenneth Myer at (717) 367-3344. For membership for 1994 send your name, address, and phone number along with $10 to Mason-Dison Red and White Association, c/o Kenneth Myer, 393 Ridgeview Road North, Elizabethtown, PA 17022.

HE'S REPLACING SOYBEAN MEAL AND CORN TO IMPROVE HIS PROFIT . . . SHOULD YOU?

This dairyman just took a delivery of brewers wet grain from the Miracle Feeds division of Furst-McNess. When he put a sharp pencil to it, he found that each ton of Miracle brewers wet grains could replace 230 pounds of 48 percent soybean meal (@ $250/ton) and 195 pounds of shelled corn (@ $90/ton) making brewers wet grain worth over $35.00/ton in his ration. With the average price of brewers wet grains running at approximately $25.00-$27.00/ton (depending on distance from the brewery) this dairyman has realized that brewers wet grains is an excellent buy versus soybean meal and shelled corn.

And, the dairyman found Miracle brewers wet grain also enhanced his cows' production since it is an excellent source of bypass protein and helps make up for some poor quality forage he is forced to feed this year. It also improved the palatability of his total ration. Brewers wet grains also contains 9% fat making it an excellent source for this important nutrient.

Say you're already feeding brewers grains? Maybe you should consider switching to Miracle, where you can get free computerized ration balancing plus forage testing to get the most out of your feeding program. Just call toll-free 800-888-0230.

Hand joined Atlantic's staff in 1957 as an economist. He worked his way up through the cooperative ranks and was named general manager in 1982. He served on numerous industry boards and often spoke at dairy-related meetings.

"Paul Hand truly is a recognized leader in the dairy industry," said Robert B. McSparran, president of the 3,500-member cooperative. "Much of the success of the cooperative can be attributed to his leadership and management."

The Paul E. Hand Scholarship at Penn State will be dedicated to graduate students in agricultural economics. Hand himself received his Ph.D. from Penn State in 1960.

Earlier in the day, Dever reported that Atlantic Dairy ended the 1992-1993 fiscal year with sales of $573 million and a net margin of $5.4 million--the third highest margin in the 76 year history of the cooperative.

The net margin resulted, in part, from sales of 3.5 billion pounds of member milk. The volume marketed represents a 1.4 percent increase over the prior year. It also represents the greatest volume of member milk marketed by the cooperative.

In addition, Atlantic marketed approximately 700 million pounds of milk through joint marketing agreements with other cooperatives. The total milk marketed was 4.18 billion pounds.

Also contributing to the net margin were finished product sales from Atlantic's manufacturing division, Holly Milk, and profits from QC Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary providing quality testsing services.

The net margin, down from $7.5 million last year, equates to member earnings of 15.3 cents per hundredweight.

"A net margin of more than $5 million should be considered staisfactory and consistent with our goals and sound financial position," Dever said. "Other good indicators are the extra payments made to members during the year."

These extra payments totaled $16.5 million. They included $2.2 million in quality milk bonuses, $5 million in equity payments and $9.3 million in over-order premiums. The total amount of such payments since the cooperative's 1987 merger is $141 million.

"We have had six and a half years of good income levels," Dever said. "As we get bigger, maintaining that high level of income must be one of our primary goals."

During the past fiscal year, the cooperative's membership grew by 23 members. The total membership stood at 3,572 on July 31, the close of the fiscal year.

"Size in membership is only one part of the marketing equation," Dever said. The other part deals with the cooperative's ability to negotiate with its buyers. And the majority of these buyers are represented by large national or multinational corporations.

"Even though we think of ourselves as a large corporation, we are still only a regional dairy farmers' cooperative," We cannot be weak at the negotiating table."

Dever said the cooperative needs to have the same levels of expertise about the business as its customers. It also needs to keep up with technology and to adjust to modern marketing principles.

"A 76-year-old organization that has changed with the times, that is still in business and doing a good job of it, does have value," Dever said. "ADC is that kind of organization."

Mary Margaret Pecht a reporter for The Sentinel in Lewisburg was named the 1993 Agricultural Communicator Award winner.

Pecht was recognized for her "exemplary services to the dairy cooperative community" and given a plaque by Atlantic president Robert B. McSparran.

Pecht joins a select group of communicators who have been recognized by Atlantic for their roles as both communicator and educator. Through their work, these communicators have provided cooperative members, consumers, legislators, youth, young farmers, industry employees and land-grant universities with agricultural and cooperative information.

Pecht began writing for the newspaper 32 years ago. In addition to general reporting, she serves as agricultural editor and religion editor. She also writes a column titled "View from the Valley."

Pecht is a familiar face at the cooperative's local and district meetings throughout Juniata County and the surrounding area. She also is familiar to a number of Atlantic's managers, whom she has interviewed for various farm news stories over the years.

Pecht grew up on a dairy farm near Vira and graduated from Chief Logan High School. She says she knows how to milk cows but never mastered driving a tractor. "They always had three pedals, and I only had two feet," she said.

Pecht and her husband, Richard, live in the village of Matterntown, a few miles from Lewistown. They have a daughter, Tamra Seiler, and two grandchildren, Katie 4, and J. Dwight 2. They are members of Evangel Baptist Church, the Fort Granville Grange, Pomona Grange 35, the Pennsylvania State Grange and the National Grange.

In addition, Pecht is a volunteer reader in the public schools. She also enjoys traveling, reading, sewing and quilling (that's QUILLing). She collects autographed editions of books and antique hymnbooks.

Pecht is the 21st person to receive the Agricultural Communicator Award, which Atlantic first awarded in 1973. Past winners have included various media representatives, Extension education specialists and cooperative leaders.

Atlantic Dairy Cooperative represents more than 3,500 dairy farm families in Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia.

Lancaster Mennonite High School senior Wendall Landis received a gold medal in the National FFA Livestock Evaluation Contest held November 11-13 at Kansas City, Mo. LMH juniors Leon Trager, Jr. and Joleen Herbert both received bronze medals in the contest. In addition, the four-member LMH livestock team received a bronze medal.

The livestock team consisted of Landis, son of Abram and Dorothy Landis, Manheim; Trager, Leon and Della Trager, Quarryville; Herbert, son of Luann Newswanger, Terre Hill; and LMH junior Kendall Reiff, son of Samuel and Elva Reiff, Ephrata. The team received a $1,000 first-place award in state competition last June. Teacher Lem Metzler serves as advisor of LMH's Hans Herr FFA Chapter, chartered in January, 1992.

Also, in a recent regional FFA competition in Lebanon County, Pa., senior Crystal Hershey, daughter of Marlin and Barbara Hershey, Lancaster, placed first in the Salesmanship Contest. Sophomore Maria Hurst, daughter of George and Mary Hurst, Lititz, placed fourth.

FFA is a national organization of 416,529 members preparing for leadership and careers in the science, business and technology of agriculture. The organization has 7,545 local chapters located throughout the U.S., Puerto Rico, Guam and the Virgin Islands. At LMH 79 students are members of the FFA.

REAL

al aggreggate increase beginning with the 1996 tax year — at all levels, including school, township, and city — to no more than 10 percent.

According to the 15-minute video shown at the young farmer meeting, the county, townships, boroughs, and school districts are not allowed by state law to increase their total property tax income by more than 10 percent from the amount received the previous year. This increase excludes taxes from any new construction added to the tax roles the first year after the reassessment.

This will reduce millage, which Kauffman believes only allows taxes to go up again. In every case, the millage will go down, "I'll guarantee you," said Kauffman.

"They can tell you anything they want about fairness, they can tell you anything about losing revenue, the bottom line is, without reassessment, they could not raise their taxes," said Kauffman.

Kauffman outlined a timetable to alert farmers to the fact that specially trained data collectors, provided by Automated Valuation Services (AVS) (the company doing the reassessment), are visiting farms. In some cases, there will be teams of collectors, according to Kauffman, which will be measuring and accounting for farm property. During the summer, aircraft recorded property size using telephotometry, with United States Geological Survey maps, to form soil type overlays.

Records in the tax office in the county are on 3-inch by 5-inch index cards since the last countywide reassessment in 1962. The new reassessment will feature computerized information on all aspects of commercial and residential operations.

Now, however, the data collectors will be stopping at the houses and farms. They will ask questions and record information on a wide variety of items. Later on, an assessor will be sent out to double-check the information. Some assessor "teams" will arrive at farms to double-check information.

Within a few months of the data collector, information will arrive in the mail detailing the data collected on the farm property and house. Property owners will have a chance to correct the information. Later on, if they don't agree with the information collected, they can appeal.

Kauffman said that Chester County went through reassessment in 1988. Berks County went through reassessment last year. Now, there are about 25,000 appeals in at Berks County.

"There is an extreme amount of discontent within the agriculture community" regarding the issue, according to Kauffman. He urged homeowners and farmers to cooperate as much as possible.

Kauffman said that the law says you do not have to let the assessor into the house or the farm buildings. "If the assessor comes, you don't have to let him in your house, you don't have to let him in your buildings," he said. "That's your choice.

"Is it smart to let him in? Is it smart not to let him in? I don't know. It's a call you got to make. I can't truly tell you what the right answer is."

In late 1994, the appeals board in the county will be ready to handle appeals. No tax increases, however, will take until the 1996 tax year.

Kauffman said meetings will be held in the coming years for farmers to consider options regarding reassessment. One such option is a total tax reform, which he wants to happen before the reassessment goes into effect. (See related story on tax reform.)

The reassessment mandates that, as a whole, the aggregate county tax base cannot increase more than 10 percent as a whole. But individual taxes can go up dramatically, in some cases as much as 40 percent. "There is absolutely no individual limit," said Kauffman.

"My best guess judgment is that (some of the value of) the residential properties will go up, some will go down," he said. The county commission said properties built in the "peak times" of the residential building in the late 1960s and mid- to late-1980s will probably go down, and some built in the off-peak years will go up. "It'll probably just about balance.

"In my opinion, commercial properties will go down a little bit, and . . . agricultural properties will go up a little bit. How much? Probably not a whole lot."

The good news, according to Kauffman, is that the feedback he's received about the visits to the farms so far has been positive, because the assessors have solid backgrounds in the various types of farming.

Some of the glitches include trying to perform assessment for some of the highly intensive operations, such as hog or poultry contract operations, where the equipment is part of the building. That is being taken into account, according to the commissioner.

Kauffman said that farmers have considered the preferential land value legislation, Act 319, or the Clean and Green Law. But farmers wouldn't be saving themselves anything in most cases by signing up under Act 319. "In most cases, it wouldn't save you a nickel," he said. In many cases, land value after reassessment would increase, perhaps even dramatically.

Kauffman said he hopes to meet with various farm groups early in 1995 to work with groups of farmers and industry representatives before the new rates begin.

Commissioner Says Income Tax Should Replace Property Tax

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — The answer to fair taxes is not reassessment, according to Lancaster County commissioner Terry Kauffman. The answer is statewide tax reform.

A proposal which is known now as the Gerlach Bill, will be under review in the state House of Representatives early next week to consider a way to reduce reliance on real estate property taxes.

The proposal, which needs to go into effect, according to Kauffman, before tax year 1996 (when the reassessment results effect taxes countywide), puts forth a method that Kauffman thinks is so simple. "A personal income tax to replace real estate property taxes dollar for dollar," he said. "And it enables those that can pay, do pay."

Kauffman outlined some of the elements of the Gerlach Bill to 32 farmers and industry representatives at the Tuesday night meeting of the Ephrata Area Young Farmers Association.

The Gerlach Bill was proposed as the result of the unfairness in the tax structure. As an example, Kauffman spoke about a dairy farmer in southern Lancaster County who manages 35 head on his farm and has a net income of about $8,000, who pays about $2,400 in taxes. Nearby, an executive in a large company, in a house worth about $200,000, makes $58,000 a year and pays only about $1,200 in taxes.

Another example includes a retired farmer who makes less than $20,000 gross income and pays twice the real estate tax of a lawyer earing $500,000 a year in a home built nearby.

"I just think it's that important for our agricultural community and our senior citizen community in this county that we have to have tax reform before this new assessment takes effect," said Kauffman. "I think it would be devastating to seniors and the ag community."

Kauffman urged farmers and industry representatives to contact their local House representative to push support of the bill through.

Milk Record

Green County, Missouri supervised Suzet's lactation. Nash has worked as a certified DHIA supervisor since 1978 in the states of Washington, Kansas and Missouri.

Suzet's record surpasses the former world record held by Tullando Royalty Maxima owned by Tullando Farm, in Orford, New Hampshire, announced last February.

The Robert and Mariann Thomson family operation includes daughter Janice and husband Alton Ling; daughter Mary and husband Ryan Angelo; daughter Carol and husband Ronnie Tag and son Mark Thomson. Mark is the owner of Suzet.

Suzet is classified Excellent 93-2E. She is homebred on both her paternal and maternal sides (or, "on both sides of her pedigree"). Her sire is Robthom Royal Paddy, a full brother to the 1982 All-American two-year-old Robthom Patty Royal EX 94-2E. Her dam is Robthom Suzzie Star VG-88 GMD DOM.

Rations were balanced closely on the Thomson farm this past year with the help of specialists at the University of Missouri and the farm's feed consultants, according to Alton Ling. The farm's herd average increased dramatically during the year after the ration was balanced, Ling said.

The Robthom Holstein farm has owned Holsteins since 1905. The first registered Holsteins were born on the farm in 1923. The herd became all-registered in 1937. The farm has been on the Holstein Association's DHIR since 1940.

The Robthoms received its first Progressive Breeder Registry Award in 1956, keeping a PBR herd for the past 37 years. The herd has also won the Progressive Genetic Herd Award.

Robthom has developed more than 100 Gold Medal Dams and thirty-seven 200,000-pound milk-producing cows.

Students Participate In Dairy Contest

ATLANTA, Ga. — Four Penn State College of Agricultural Sciences students participated in the Midwestern and International Intercollegiate Dairy Product Evaluation contests in October in Glenview, Ill. at Kraft and at The Dairy and Food Expo '93 in Atalanta, Ga., respectively.

The team of Amy Fuller, Amy Musser, and Michele Rager placed eighth of 12 teams with third place in both butter and cheddar cheese.

Michele led the team with individual placings of second in butter, sixth in cheddar cheese, and was the third high individual among 36 contestants at the Midwestern Regional Contest.

Linda Marshall judged as the alternate. Her scores would have placed her as the third high individual in both butter and strawberry yogurt, and as high as the fifth individual in the contest.

In Atlanta, the team of Linda Marshall, Michele Rager, and Amy Musser placed 12th of the 20 teams overall, with placings of fourth in yogurt, eighth in cheddar cheese, and eighth in cottage cheese. Linda Marshall led the team with a 21st place individual ranking in all products among the 60 contestants, and was the second high individual in strawberry yogurt. Michele Rager was the third high individual in cottage cheese and was in the top 50 percent as an individual in all products.

Three of the four students had evaluated dairy products three times a week since early July. There were eight samples of each of six dairy products — milk, vanilla ice cream, cottage cheese, cheddar cheese, butter, and strawberry yogurt.

Funds were provided by the dairy industry, individuals, and student activities to cover expenses for participation in the ples from stores.

The students were trained and coached by Sidney E. Barnard, professor of food science, and Ruth Bicher, a member of the 1991 team and a senior in food science.

The October 1993 Dairy Herd Improvement information for Maryland dairy herds is listed by herd name, county association, number of cows in the herd and the average production per cow in the herd. To be included, the herd must have 10 cows averaging 65 pounds or more of 3.5 percent fat corrected milk per cow, per day. All herds reported are on official DHI or DHIR test.

Also listed are the top 10 herds in Maryland for the Brown Swiss, Guernseys, and Jerseys, and the top eight herds for Ayrshires.

Dairy Cattle Group Works To Keep Competitive Edge

COLUMBUS, Ohio — In a move designed to maintain competitive superiority of U.S. dairy cattle breeding, the Council on Dairy Cattle Breeding recently agreed to strengthen collaborative relationships within its organization.

"We face an increasingly competitive world for dairy genetics," said DuWayne Kutz, Board Chairman, National Association of Animal Breeders. Kutz is also chief executive officer of Sire Power, Inc.

"If we don't intensify the efforts of those involved in genetic progress, the superiority we now enjoy will erode," Kutz said.

The Council comprises six American dairy breed associations, the National Dairy Herd Improvement Association and the National Association of Animal Breeders.

Founded in 1986, the Council has provided a forum for discussion of common issues.

At its October meeting, the Council agreed to move beyond its former role into a more strategic function based on its cooperative activities. The goal: to find the best and least costly tools for dairy cattle breeding.

Wisconsin dairyman John Selz called the action a significant change for the Council. Selz, president, Holstein Association of America, said, "The organizations of the Council are the backbone of efforts to improve profitability of dairy cattle through better breeding.

"Farmers need to work more closely together to ensure there is no duplication of effort and that their considerable resources are focussed toward that end," Selz said.

To give the Council a structure which will support the strategic purpose, plans were made to "formalize" the group with current participants becoming "members" and by choosing a chairman annually.

Idaho dairyman Mike Quesnell was chosen 1994 chairman. Quesnell also serves as president, National Dairy Herd Improvement Association.

Quesnell said, "I look forward to the opportunities that this collaborative approach will bring to dairy cattle breeding. Dairy farmers need the synergies and efficiencies that this can produce."

In the months ahead, the Council will meet to develop strategic approaches to issues involving dairy cattle breeding.

While most lenders have barely scratched the surface in agriculture, we've gone a bit further.

Fact is, you can explain your needs to some bankers until you're blue in the face and chances are they still won't understand. Farm Credit loan officers, on the other hand, have been through the most comprehensive ag lending training program in the nation. And many have farm backgrounds themselves.

They can approve loans for just about any farm need from land to equipment. And since a committee isn't necessary for most decisions, loan approval is easy and fast.

Stop by and talk with your Farm Credit loan officer.

MILK MARKET NEWS

Market Report
By Tom Jurchak
Penn State Cooperative Extension
Agent for Lackawanna County

Increasing milk production per cow can no longer make up for the drop in cow numbers and milk supplies have gotten tighter in the last two months. The upper mid west, where milk prices start in Minnesota and Wisconsin, has led the other top dairy states with as much as six percent less milk than last year. Even in the northeast states that were awash with milk a few months ago, nearly had a call order in September from the market administrator in Order 2 to divert milk from manufacturing to fluid use. Only voluntary action by handlers prevented the call order.

Feed Problems

Much of the blame for lower milk production goes to lower quality as well as lower supplies of forage in the critical milk production areas. Weather conditions during the growing season have finally caught up with forage and grain supplies and there's more trouble ahead as corn harvests are showing. Low yields plus low bushel weights plus low quality in some corn production areas are contributing to the forage quality and supply problems that all add up to lower milk production. It's that time of the year when we expect seasonal drops in milk production but this year it started earlier and, because of the reasons for the drop, it may continue longer.

Product Prices

Looking at cheese prices the last two months you would think the market reporters weren't paying attention. For nine weeks cheese prices stayed the same at $1.34 for blocks and $1.31 for barrels. The good news was that prices had increased 13 cents in three weeks in September so they held the higher price for nine weeks not the lower price of $1.21 where it was in August. So, cheese prices went up 13 cents in September and stayed there for nine weeks to November 12 because milk supplies were dropping and cheese handlers didn't want to be caught short for the holidays. In addition, dry milk product prices were also going up and about everything from dried skim to whey to buttermilk was adding to the demand for manufacturing milk. Helping also were sales of dry milk products by USDA through the Dairy Export Incentive Program mainly to Central American countries.

The question is — how long can it last? Cheese prices normally decline as we get this close to the holidays and the barrel price did drop on November 12 but it was less than a cent. What's equally important is how much will the milk supply drop? While the upper mid west and the northeast are lower there are increases in the western states. Once again it's a question of whether increasing milk production in the west can make up for dropping production in other areas.

Enjoy It Now

Before you start worrying about next year, start enjoying what you have now from higher milk prices at the farm with more to come before the end of the year. With cheese and powder prices holding as long as they have the Minnesota-Wisconsin Price Series has jumped $1.29 in September and October just about matching that 13 cent increase in cheese prices. For October the M—W was $12.46 with more expected in November. It's already 41 cents better than last October and the second best since the record year of 1989. With the help of better dry milk prices and increasing commercial demand for dairy products generally, the increases in farm prices should continue to the end of the year. By then we may have a better fix on the effect of feed supplies and quality on milk production but in the meantime — have a happy holiday.

Cooperator Of Year Award

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Speaking before the Cecil County Soil Conservation District, Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Robert L. Walker presented the Goodyear Award for the Cooperator of the Year to Kenneth England of England Farms. England was recognized for his outstanding accomplishments in resource conservation.

"Mr. England, like many other Maryland farmers, is doing a terrific job as stewards of our valuable land and water resources. I am proud of the contribution Maryland farmers are making to the improvement of our environment and to the Chesapeake Bay restoration effort," Walker said.

In his keynote address, Walker talked about both the domestic and international marketing efforts his department has made on behalf of the Maryland agricultural community.

"Both domestically and internationally, Maryland's agricultural commodities are being sold as never before. What has occurred over the last four or five years in terms of the expansion of markets is nothing short of a revolution," said Walker.

Since 1989, the Maryland Department of Agriculture has helped to open more than 20 new producer-only farmers' markets across the state. At the same time, the department is helping Maryland companies find markets around the world.

Baltimore County Completes Purchase

TOWSON, Md. — In a continued effort to preserve farm land in the county, Baltimore County government and the Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation have recently completed the purchase of agricultural easements on four farms encompassing 372 acres. These purchases bring the total number of agricultural easements to 87 on 9,739 acres.

The easements purchased recently are on farms in the heart of the Worthington Valley as well as in My Lady's Manor. In the Worthington Valley, one farm consists of 68 acres and the easement is valued both for its extremely productive soils as well as its scenic location. The second piece of property is an 168-acre farm owned by the Green Spring Valley Hounds of which two-thirds of the property is used for the production of corn and soybeans and the remainder is used for the pasturing of horses. The other two easements purchased on My Lady's Manor consist of a 31-acre farm which is in woodland management and a 108-acre nursery.

In regards to this land preservation endeavor, Hayden said, "These four farms on which the development rights were purchased represent some of the diverse characteristics of farms entering the easement program. The variety of resources under these easements will remain for the use and enjoyment of future generations."

The total acreage of land under both agricultural and environmental easements in Baltimore County is 15,000 acres.

Mother's Advice Spurs Children To Achieve

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

BUCK (Lancaster Co.) — Jessica Schmidt is 11 years old and a rising name in sheep show circles. Showing sheep is her passion, but it was only two years ago in preparation for her first show that Jessica sobbed, "I hate sheep. I don't want to do this."

The sheep had knocked her down, ran over her, and when Jessica stood upright, knocked her down again and put hoof prints across her back.

It's been many shows later with just about as many repeat performances but Jessica no longer gets upset. She merely jumps up, brushes off the dust, and takes a firm hold on the sheep.

What brought about this change of attitude?

The credit needs to go to Jessica's mom, Lauria, who told her, "All you need to do is show this one time. After that, you can drop out."

That was all it took — one show, one ribbon, one premium — Jessica was hooked with show fever.

Now her mother couldn't stop her from showing if she wanted to do so.

Lauria admitted that she was a bit wary that one show could persuade Jessica to pursue sheep raising, but Mom was counting on the advice she was given as a child when she showed horses.

"If you fall off a horse, you must get back on immediately," her instructor insisted.

"If Mom wouldn't have said that I needed to do it one time, I would never have done it again," said Jessica, who has 16 Dorsets. Her 10-year-old brother John has three Montadales.

"I will never sell Maggie. She's my first and favorite lamb," Jessica said.

The newest addition to the Schmidts' melange of animals is this peacock chick, hatched in the incubator.

In front of the Schmidt home, John stands with the scarecrow he made. Jessica and mom Lauria are seated. Although dad Pete missed the picture because he was at work, you can see some of his landscaping talents and the snake fence that he built around the property.

The siblings also care for an assortment of other animals on the family's four-acre farm a few miles from The Buck.

There are 3 Indian Blue peacocks, 2 pot belly pigs, 2 Holstein-Angus cross beef, 5 roosters, 2 dogs, 3 rabbits, cats, 1 goat, and 4 pigs.

Lauria and her husband Pete purchased the property with only a house and a garage. They tore down a barn in Lititz and rebuilt it.

"It took us five weeks to tear down and five years to put up the barn," Laurie said. Pete, who works in landscaping, also profusely landscaped the property with shrubbery and built a snake fence.

The family got into sheep raising when they traded a pig for a sheep several years ago.

"Maggie is my first and favorite. I will never sell her," Jessica said of her special affinity with the aging sheep.

The peacocks came when a store purchased them for a special event petting zoo and no longer wanted them.

Jessica and John admire one of the two pot-bellied pigs they raise in the barn — not in the house.

The peacocks roam free but hang around for food. At first, the Schmidts clipped the peacocks wings but recent sightings of foxes have made them decide to stop that practice.

The peacocks lay eggs outside, which Lauria confiscates and puts into an incubator for 28 days. So far, they have only one successful hatch. A power outage earlier in the year resulted in only one of the four eggs surviving and producing a chick, which they raise in the house.

Lauria has lots of experience with using an incubator as she is a 4-H assistant for the Lancaster County 4-H program. She is in charge of the embryology projects in schools throughout the county. She especially delights in working with city children who have no other contact with farm life.

"They are always so amazed to see life inside an egg," she said.

Through some of these projects, the Schmidts have inherited some chickens and roosters that also roam free on the land.

(Turn to Page B3)

This is the barn that the Schmidt family said took them five weeks to tear down and five years to rebuild on their four-acre farm.

Homestead Notes

Mother's Advice

The two steers, bottlefed from four days old, are raised for meat purposes only. Jessica would like to get a 4-H steer for showing, but that would require a better trailer for hauling.

Jessica and her mother plan to enlarge and improve the flock through breeding.

"The show string needs to be top quality sheep to make a name for yourself," said Lauria, who is mapping out a plan to attend larger shows. Jessica shows her sheep under the name Susquehannoch Farm — Jessica Schmidt.

"You really don't know how well you're doing just by showing in local fairs, she said. You must go to bigger shows. At Keystone International Livestock Exposition, Jessica placed eighth out of 20.

"That was a cheap lamb," she said. "I bought a good one for Farm Show."

With the sheep bred on the farm, the Schmidts have not had any birthing problems.

Each one is named and pampered by Jessica who said that each one has its own personality. She finds it difficult to sell market lambs.

The money is used to purchase supplies and equipment and a portion stashed away for a college fund even though Jessica is only a sixth grade student at Swift Middle School. John is a fourth grader at Clermont Elementary.

It isn't just showing sheep that Jessica enjoys. Almost against her wishes, she won the blocking and fitting contest at Lampeter Fair this year.

Jessica said that she had wanted to do a good job in blocking and fitting but she really did not want to win because that would eliminate her from next year's competition when she wanted to enter again with some of her friends.

Despite the drawback of being eliminated from next year's competition, Jessica accepted the first-place ribbon with pride.

Lauria's only experience in caring for animals was with horses during her growing up years. Now she pours over books about the breed that interests her and bombards extension agents with questions.

"I spent hours on the phone with Nancy Frey, a 4-H sheep leader, asking about feeds," Lauria said. "If you don't know something, 4-H families are always willing to share information."

Lauria had a difficult time finding a vet who knew a lot about sheep. Most, she said, don't want to bother with sheep.

The Schmidts are thrilled with the veterinarian services of Nancy Winning. In addition to coming whenever needed, she has also taken the time to meet with 4-H groups and demonstrate an ultrasound machine on sheep.

Lauria, who confesses to becoming attached to any and all animals, seems to have a perchance for picking up an odd assortment in round-about ways. She finds fairs exciting and is always eager to load the show animals in a homemade trailer and head for another fair.

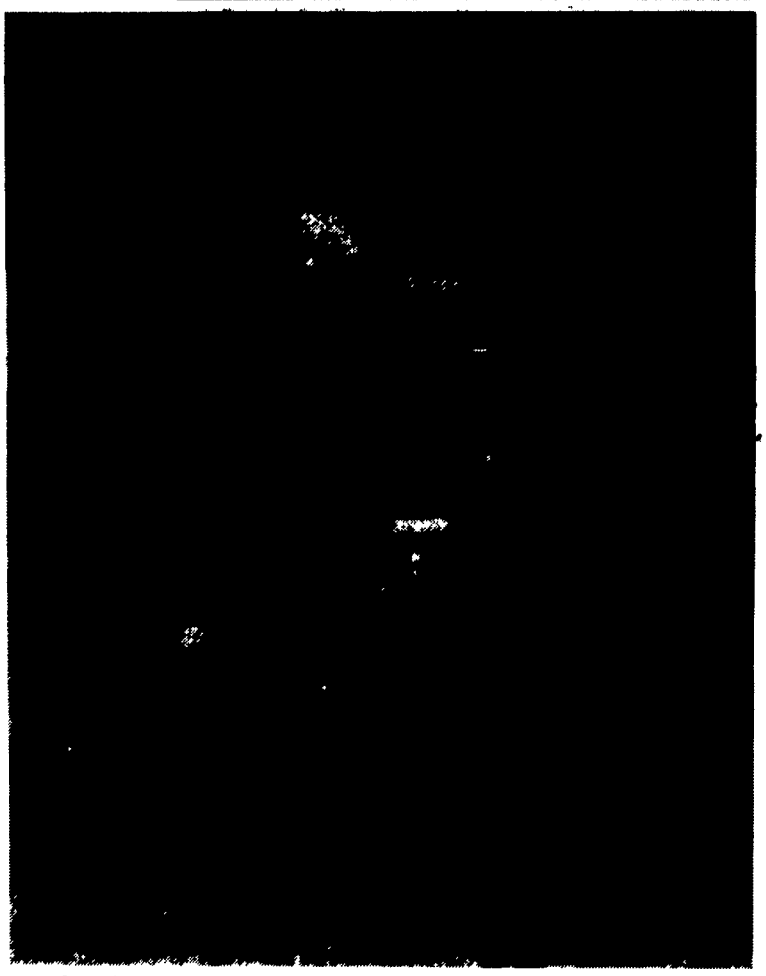
Her husband Pete, she says, likes to lean on the fence and look at the animals. Although he isn't enthusiastic about the fairs, he puts up with the commotion caused by the children attending six each year.

Jessica said that kids can't be successful in showing animals without help from parents.

"If my mom wouldn't have made me get up and try again when I wanted to quit, look what I would have missed," she said.

Lauria said, "As a parent, it is always difficult to know exactly where to draw the line between encouraging your child to persevere or pushing them too hard. I'm glad, in this case, I made the right decision."

Even sheep enjoy pumpkin feasts this time of the year. Many stores discard pumpkins after Halloween. A truckload of these discarded pumpkins are just what the sheep and the pigs enjoy.



Jessica wins first place in the blocking and fitting contest at Lampeter Fair.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Empty, just as I thought.

While the woodstove was still quite warm, the log sections stuffed in earlier had burned down to a glowing bed of coals. And the night was to be another frosty one.

Empty. What looked like a sizable supply of wood in the basement, stacked there a few days before after morning barn chores, had dwindled to a scattering of wood crumbs and bits of bark. Time to refill the space from the main supply kept on the basement porch beneath a bright blue tarp.

Empty. Well, almost. All that remained under the tarp on the porch were a few odds and ends of firewood chopped a little too long to fit the stove. Getting desperate, I dove into the emergency, back-up, wood supply in the woodshed. The woodshed holds my supply of flowerpots, garden mulch bags, tools, plant flats, the lawn mower and other such miscellaneous outside-use items — oh, plus a small reserve of cut, dry wood. But not more than a few wheelbarrow-loads worth. Making it, well, almost empty.

A couple of armloads of wood I carted inside would hold us overnight — but not much more. We need a firewood stocking session — or the fuel oil tank filled. The Farmer is way ahead of me; he had already planned spending the next afternoon restocking the empty firewood supply.

Cutting firewood here on the farm actually serves a dual purpose. It saves considerably on heating costs. Our oil furnace runs only on extremely cold and windy days, very early mornings when the stove has burned low, or if we've been away and not kept the woodfire stoked.

Cutting firewood also helps keep the pastures, fence rows and edges of fields along woods clean of debris. Few wind-packed storms — summer or winter — roll through the farm without tossing down a limb or two. Sometimes we lose whole old trees, especially since the Gypsy Moth infestations of past years.

So we burn the "falls," the "drops," the "trimmings" which are already on the ground and which clutter sections of the meadow or get in the way along the edge of fields. It makes for some interestingly-shaped firewood sometimes — but the stove doesn't care if the stuff has kinks, curves, knots or holes. And, it burns fine.

On this particular "harvest" afternoon, the three of us — man, woman, dog — bounce in the pickup to a distant, hilly corner of the heifer pasture, where a couple of large, dead limbs have toppled out of fence row trees.

Sunlihgt bathes the meadow in a warm November afternoon glow and the sky hangs overhead in a clear, gorgeous shade of blue. A perfect day for this harvest. Oaks have turned a leathery brown but the maples are still golden. The local mockingbird clan scatters as we truck through the creek-bottom area and climb toward the farthest hill. And our resident redtail hawk, resentful of our disturbance, gracefully glides out of a tree near the field road, sails across the meadow and lands in the distance.

The Farmer slices through downed limbs with the blaring saw. Solomon goes off to sniff at groundhog holes and enjoy whiffs of rabbit trail in the meadow grass. I trek to several trees hanging full with colorful bittersweet vines for fall decorations.

Small bits of wood scattered about make great kindling, filling the two boxes we brought along — and then some. While The Farmer cuts, I gather and toss the wood in the pickup. In little more than an hour, we have a full load. Solomon has curled up in the warm sunshine, away from the grating chain saw noise. It is time to go bring the cows in and milk.

Later in the week, The Farmer relates a radio news report he has heard. In Bosnia, a small bundle of firewood is worth half-a-year's wages. Half-a-year's wages! We pile a pickup full of waste wood without giving it a second thought. Halfway around the world, that tiny amount could mean the difference between life and freezing to death for someone.

We have many, many, MANY things to be appreciative for as we offer Thanksgiving for our blessings. And a full woodpile is just one of them.

Thanksgiving Thank-You Notes

Most families celebrate Thanksgiving, but they don't always consider its meaning: to gtive thanks for the many things that make life worth living. This activity encourages each family member to think about what Thanksgiving means to him/her by thanking other family members for everything they've done to make life happier.

Needed: 3x5 index cards and pens marking pens or pencils, slips of paper, hat to draw papers from.

While waiting for Thanksgiving dinner, write each family member's name on a separate piece of paper. Place names in a hat. Each person draws a name. (Draw again if you get your own name.)

Give each person an index card and these directions:

- Fold the card in half.
- On the outside write the name of the person you drew. (Use markers or stickers to decorate, if desired.)
- On the inside write a note of thanks for something that person did, or write something about that person you particularly admire.
- Sign your name at the bottom of your thank you note.

Collect the notes (don't read them). Use as place markers at the Thanksgiving table. When everyone assembles for dinner, read the notes before beginning the meal. The family can decide whether or not to take turns reading the notes out loud.

Avoid An Uninvited Party Guest

It seemed like a perfect party. Uncle Bob did not bore everyone with his war stories and even your weight-conscious sister-in-law had a second helping of your souffle. They why do you not feel well this morning?

It could be that an uninvited guest was at your party last night — salmonella bacteria. Although it's seldom a problem when food is handled and cooked properly, when it's not, it may cause illness. While rarely fatal for healthy people, salmonellosis can cause nausea, vomiting, cramps, diarrhea, and feverishness. Symptoms generally develop 12 to 72 hours after eating contaminated food.

For pregnant women, young children, older people, and anyone taking antibiotics, the risk is even greater. Other at risk groups include organ recipients and those with a chronic disease such as cancer or AIDS because their immune systems are weakened.

Although food-borne illnesses are more common than you might think, they can be prevented.

Preventing of salmonellosis starts at the grocery store. Never buy anything you will not be able to use or freeze before the expiration date or any food that is in poor condition.

Put all perishable foods away, as soon as you arrive home from the store. Raw meats, fish, or chicken may drip, so be sure to place these packages on a plate before storing in the refrigerator.

Set your refrigerator at 40 degrees F (or lower), your freezer at 0 degrees F. Generally speaking, your refrigerator should be as cold as possible without freezing your milk or salad greens.

To keep bacteria in check, thaw frozen foods in the microwave or refrigerator never on the kitchen counter. Always marinate chicken and meats in the refrigerator.

When preparing food, keep everything clean from your hands to your cutting board and knife. Always wash your cutting board well in hot, soapy water after using it to cut up raw meats. Bacteria can live in dish towels and cloths, too, so be sure to wash them often. Replace sponges every few weeks.

A leading cause of salmonellosis is undercooked food, especially meats, so be sure to cook thorough, and don't taste for seasoning before food is done. Red meat is cooked when it is brown or gray inside. Fish flakes with a fork. Poultry juices run clear.

Or use a meat thermometer to determine internal temperature. Meat should be cooked to 160 to 170 degrees F, poultry to 185 degrees F, and any cooked combination food to 160 degrees F.

Eggs also can be a problem if not cooked properly. The yolk and white should be firm, not runny. Avoid any recipe in which eggs remain raw or only partially cooked such as Hollandaise sauce and some eggnog recipes.

Always use clean dishes and utensils to serve food, not those used in preparation. Keep party food on ice or serve from platters in the refrigerator throughout the gathering.

The bacteria that causes food poisoning grow rapidly at warm temperatures, so be sure to refrigerate perishable foods as soon as possible after serving and always within two hours. When storing leftovers, use small containers for quick cooling. Finally, always remove stuffing from poultry and other stuffed meats, and refrigerate separately.

Nationally-known potter David Eldreth is one of more than 150 artisans who will participate in the 23rd annual Belsnickel Craft Show, held Friday, November 26, noon to 8 p.m., and Saturday, November 27, from 10 a.m to 5 p.m. at the Boyertown Elementary School and Junior High School, West. Admission is $3 for adults.

Combat Insurance Fraud

When it comes to auto insurance, fraud artists are imaginative: They know a variety of ways to cheat insurers and their policyholders.

One way is through staged accidents. A driver deliberately stops in front of a car traveling at low speed, causing a rear-end collision. That driver (and probably several passengers as well) claims to have suffered injuries and seeks payment from the other driver's insurance company.

Another scam involves lawyer-doctor conspiracies. A "runner" prowls the streets listening to a police radio and looking for accidents. He delivers "victims" to a lawyer who takes the case while a doctor builds up medical bills, giving needless treatment or charging for treatment never given. The goal: an insurance settlement much greater than actual damages.

About 15 to 20 percent of auto theft claims involve fraud — often with the cooperation of the owner.

A common scheme: Using vehicle identification numbers and titles from wrecked cars, crooks get insurance on "paper" cars, report them stolen, then file an insurance claim. Or the owner "gives up" the car by abandoning it and reporting it stolen.

The National Insurance Crime Bureau is leading the fight against fraud. Call its hotline at 1-800-TEL-NICB if you suspect fraud.

Shopping By Mail, Telephone, TV

If you buy items through mail order, telephone or television shopping programs, keep the following tips in mind:

- Be suspicious of exaggerated product claims or very low prices and read product descriptions very carefully. Sometimes pictures of products are misleading.
- Before you order, ask about the return policy. Does the company pay charges for shipping and return? Is a warranty or guarantee available: Does the company sometimes substitute comparable goods for the product you want to order?
- Keep a complete record of your order, including the company's name, address and telephone number, price of items ordered, any handling or other charges, date you mailed or phoned in the order and the method of payment. Keep copies of canceled checks and/or statements.
- If you buy a product through a television shopping program, check the cost of the same item sold by other sources such as local stores and catalogs.
- If you buy a product based on a telephone call from the company, ask for the name, address and phone number where you can reach the caller after considering the offer.
- If you have doubts about the company, check with the US Postal Service, the Consumer Protection Agency (518-474-8583) or the Better Business Bureau (1-800-328-2930) before ordering.

Thanksgiving Feast

This Thanksgiving, why not bend tradition a bit and serve beef, lamb or cornish hens in place of turkey. Or, at least, embellish the holiday bird a little differently than usual with a herb-seasoned butter.

A butter baste is the easiest and most delicious way to add both flavor and moisture to roasted turkey. Rubbing a flavored butter beneath the skin enhances the buttery flavor even more by allowing the butter and seasonings to moisten the turkey meat instead of just the skin.

While family and friends will probably think you took a cooking class to learn how to do this, it's really quite simple and requires just a little patience.

The first step is to make a flavored butter. The butter must be softened to the point that it can be spread easily. Do this by letting cold butter stand at room temperature for 20 minutes or so, or by heating it a few seconds in the microwave oven; the butter should not melt.

To add flavor, stir chopped fresh or dried herbs into the softened butter. Remember, with dried herbs, use about one-third less because the flavor is more intense. Finely minced or crushed garlic can also be added to the butter with the herbs.

With the butter ready to go, you're ready to tackle the turkey. Start with a completely thawed bird.

- Rinse turkey inside and out; pat dry. Season cavity with salt and pepper.
- Starting at neck cavity, loosen the skin from the breast and drumsticks by inserting one hand palm side down. Gently push hand beneath skin against the meat to loosen, being careful not to tear skin.
- Using your fingertips, spread the softened, flavored butter evenly over the meat. (If butter is too firm, it will not spread easily; the skin could tear as a result). Press sprigs of fresh herbs under the skin against the butter, if desired.
- Pat skin back into place and secure butter and herbs. Truss turkey and roast as usual. Any leftover flavored butter can be melted and used to baste turkey.

GARLIC-SAGE BUTTER

½ cup butter, softened
2 tablespoons chopped fresh sage
2 large cloves garlic, crushed
Sage leaves, if desired

Stir together butter, sage, and garlic. Spread butter mixture under skin of poultry. Arrange sage leaves under skin. Use any remaining mixture to baste poultry during roasting. Makes enough butter mixture for a 10 to 12 pound turkey.

Mid East United Dairy Industry

ROSEMARY THYME BUTTER

½ cup butter, softened
1½ tablespoons chopped fresh rosemary
Chopped fresh thyme
Rosemary sprigs, if desired
Thyme sprigs, if desired

Stir together butter, chopped rosemary and thyme. Spread butter mixture under skin of poultry. Arrange herb sprigs under skin. If desired, flavored butter may be prepared in advance and refrigerated. Allow to stand at room temperature about 30 mintues prior to use.

WILD RICE APRICOT STUFFING

12 ounces pork sausage
¼ cup butter
¾ cup sliced green onions
¾ cup chopped celery
1 cup bread crumbs
3 cups wild rice, cooked
¾ cup chopped dried apricots
½ teaspoon thyme
1 teaspoon rosemary, crushed
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup chicken broth
1 egg, beaten

In medium skillet, brown sausage, drain and set aside. In small skillet, melt butter; saute onions and celery until tender. In large bowl, combine sausage, onions, celery, bread crumbs, wild rice, apricots, thyme, rosemary and salt. Mix in broth and egg. Place in buttered 2-quart casserole. Cover and bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes. Uncover and continue baking 10 minutes. (Will also stuff a 10-pound turkey).

Apricot glaze:

12 ounces apricot preserves
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon butter

In a medium saucepan, combine glaze ingredients. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer 10 minutes. Serve with turkey and wild rice apricot stuffing.

Rice Council

Turkey with all the trimmings remains the favorite choice for most Thanksgiving diners.

NECIA'S MINCEMEAT

2 pounds cooked lean meat, chopped
1 pound suet
3 quarts sour apples, chopped
3 pounds raisins
2 pounds currants
1 tablespoon citron
3 oranges
3 lemons
2 cups sour jelly or sweet pickle syrup
2½ pounds sugar
1 cup molasses
2 tablespoons cinnamon
2 tablespoons salt
2 teaspoons nutmeg
2 teaspoons mace
2 teaspoons cloves
2 teaspoons allspice
1 quart meat broth
3 cups boiled cider

Cook meat and add water to make enough broth. When meat is tender, grind it with suet. Add apples, raisins, currants, and citron. Wash and grate oranges and lemons. Remove juice and grind the remainder and add to meat mixture. Also, add sugar, molasses, salt, cinnamon, nutmeg, mace, cloves, allspice, broth, cider, and jelly or pickle syrup.

Simmer 2 hours. Pack into hot jars, leaving 1-inch head space. Adjust caps. Process pints and quarts for 20 minutes at 10 pounds pressure or freeze.

CRANBERRY SALAD

1 large package raspberry Jell-O
1 can whole cranberry sauce
1 can crushed pineapple
1 jar red cherries
¼ cup chopped nuts

Drain pineapple and cherries. Reserve juices. Mix Jell-O as package directs for adding fruits. Use reserved fruit juices as part of the cold liquid. Chill Jell-O slightly. Add remaining ingredients. Refrigerate.

Contributor writes: Looks wonderful in Jell-O mold or clear glass bowl. Make sure to make a small bowl to hide for husband to eat later.

BROCCOLI AND CHEESE SALAD

1 large head broccoli, chopped
1½ cups shredded mozzarella cheese
¼ cup chopped red onion
6 slices bacon, fried and crumbled

Mix together broccoli, cheese, onion and bacon.

Dressing:

½ cup mayonnaise
¼ cup sugar
1 tablespoon vinegar

Combine mayonnaise, sugar, and vinegar and pour over broccoli mixture. Let set several hours or overnight in refrigerator.

HARVEST TIME CRANBERRY BREAD
Yield: one 9 x 5-inch loaf

3 cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon EACH: baking soda, ground cinnamon
¾ cup sugar
½ cup butter, softened
1 egg
1 cup milk
1½ cups cranberries, coarsely chopped
1 cup chopped walnuts, if desired.

Preheat oven to 350°F. Combine flour, baking soda and cinnamon; set aside. Cream sugar and butter in large mixer bowl until light an fluffy. Add egg; blend well. Add flour mixture alternately with milk to butter mixture, blending thoroughly after each addition. Fold in cranberries and nuts. Pour batter into buttered 9 x 5 3-inch loaf pan. Bake 1 hour or until wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool bread in pan on wire rack 10 minutes. Remove from pan. Transfer to wire rack; cool completely.

Turkey Talkin'

Each year as the holiday season begins, the 48 professionally trained home economists at the Butterball® Turkey Talk-Line™ prepare themselves to alleviate the "turkey trauma" of thousands of consumers across the country. Despite the intense turkey training, every now and then the folks at "Turkey Central" are caught off-guard by a caller with an unusual question or a heart warming story. Following is a list of the 13 most memorable calls fielded at the Butterball Turkey Talk-Line during the 1992 season.

1. Most of a Wissonsin resident's Thanksgiving Dinner and kitchen literally went up in flames. After the fire department left, the optimistic caller relayed the fiasco and said at the end of the story, "... but the turket turned out great! I will always use Butterball Turkeys!"

2. Desperately wanting to impress her family and friends, a woman from Colorado envisioned bringing a flaming turkey to the table. She wanted to know what kind of flammable liquor to use and where to put the sugar cubes.

3. A midwestern mom called because her son's first-grade class was having a potluck Thanksgiving Dinner. Each of the six-year-olds were bringing a dish to share. Without consulting his mom, the boy volunteered to bring the turkey. Knowing that a parent would have to do all the work, the Talk-Line home economist asked, how could a teacher let her son bring the turkey and not a smaller dish like the rest of the children? The woman replied, "My 30-year-old son is the teacher."

4. Tired of catering to the male members of her family who were shouting orders from the living room while watching the football game, an exasperated woman from California wanted to know if it was possible for a man to cook a turkey.

5. An inquisitive man from Arizona asked, "I've got a Butterball Turkey ready to go in the oven. I know the instructions say to put the temperature at 325 degrees, but is that Bake or Broil?" He thought it was bake, but called just to make sure.

6. A woman from Michigan prepared a huge turkey dinner for all of her relatives. When the turkey came out of the oven, it was bright blue. Afraid to eat the odd-colored turkey, she threw it away. Later, she discovered her roommate had used the same pan earlier to dye a dress blue.

7. Knowing it was best to stay out of it, "Turkey Central" dispatch let a North Carolina couple fight it out over the phone. Many minutes passed while the husband and wife argued about how to store their fresh turkey. One wanted to refrigerate the wrapped bird in the brown paper bag given to them at the store; the other also wanted to refrigerate it, but skip the bag.

8. A shivering chef from Ohio wanted to know how long she could let her thawed uncooked turket set out of the refrigerator. She was hoping her turkey could be room temperature before cleaning out the cavity because her hands always got cold.

9. With 30 turkeys, three dozen side-dishes and only one oven, a California home economics teacher called to ask the best way to cook for 3,000 students.

10. An inquiring chef from Nebraska wanted to know if the cooking times were the same whether the oven door was open or closed. When asked why she would roast the turkey with the oven door open, she said she didn't know why, but her mom always cooked it that way.

11. A mother of the bride from Michigan called and asked how to have a Butterball Turkey roasted and ready for her soon-to-be son-in-law. He requested she prepare it for the newlyweds to be ready just after the wedding ceremony.

12. It was a family tradition. Every year mom cooked the turkey and every year it was tough and dry. Discouraged by her inability to cook a tender, juicy bird, she broke down in tears and the family would spend the day consoling her. Hoping the family could enjoy a tear-free Thanksgiving, a concerned and caring son from New York wanted some hints to pass along to his mom.

13. A recent widower from Connecticut invited his children and their spouses over for Thanksgiving. Wanting everything to be perfect, he called the Talk-Line several times and wrote down the exact instructions provided by the home economist. After a successful dinner, he called the Talk-Line one more time to express his gratitude and appreciation for making his first Thanksgiving without his wife more bearable.

QUESTION — Ruth Cantello, Somerset, N.J., would like recipes for food gifts that are suitable for mailing.

QUESTION — Sheryl Wolfe, Wellsboro, would like homemade bread recipes made without yeast using all purpose flour. She especially wants a peanut bread recipe made without yeast.

QUESTION — Brenda Bradish, Latrobe, would like a cookie recipe for peanut butter logs. The inside of the cookie tastes like Zagnut candy bars and is rolled in either nuts or coconut.

QUESTION — Louise Graybeal, Renick, W.Va., would like recipes for low-fat sauces, vegetables, noodles, and lean meats — but not for seafood. She writes that she had gallons of cod liver oil as a child (long before the nice little pills that kids eat now) so therefore she doesn't like fish. She doesn't like apple butter either since she had to take a spoonful of apple butter with a spoonful of the cod liver oil.

QUESTION — Carole Nace, Mifflintown, would like a recipe for chocolate trifle.

QUESTION — Effie Sanders, Gettysburg, would like a potato candy recipe. As she recalls a potato is cooked and mashed, confectioners' sugar is added. The mixture is flattened and spread with peanut butter and rolled up a like a jelly roll and sliced.

QUESTION — D. Shultz would like a recipe for Rivvel Cake, a cake made to dunk in coffee.

QUESTION — S. Smith, Lebanon, would like recipes for making cheese with goat's milk.

QUESTION — Samuel Musumeci, Woodstown, N.J., has a non-cooking question, which he hopes readers can answer. He would like to know where to purchase coal to use in an old forge.

QUESTION — Virginia Kalp, Stahlstown, would like a recipe for rice pilaf.

QUESTION — Virginia Kalp, Stahlstown, would like a recipe for walnuts in syrup topping.

QUESTION — Roma Leibensperger, Germansville, would like a recipe for pumpkin cheese cake.

ANSWER — Some time ago a reader had requested a recipe for cakes made without wheat flour. Here is one that calls for only 1 tablespoon flour, which can be rice or oat flour. It sounds like a scrumptious, calorie-rich cake. Thanks to Jen Kopf, Lancaster, for sending the recipe.

Flourless Chocolate Cake

1 pound semi-sweet chocolate, chopped
10 tablespoons lightly salted butter
1 tablespoon water
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon flour
4 eggs, separated

Place oven rack in center of oven. Preheat oven to 450 degrees. Lightly grease and flour 8-inch springform pan. Melt chocolate and butter over low heat or in microwave oven. Remove chocolate mixture from heat and pour into a large mixing bowl. Stir until evenly blended and cooled.

Stir in water, sugar, and flour. Beat egg yolks in a separate bowl until thick and a light lemon color. Fold into the chocolate mixture.

Beat the egg whites in a very clean bowl until they hold medium peaks. They should appear glossy, not stiff or dry.

Fold half of the beaten egg whites into the chocolate mixture gently but quickly. Fold in remaining egg whites until just blended and immediately pour the batter into the prepared cake pan. Place the cake on the center rack of the oven and bake in a 450 degree oven for 15 minutes. Carefully prop open oven door and leave cake in the oven until both the cake and oven are cooled. Serve the cake at room temperature, plain or garnished with a dollop of unsweetened, unflavored whipped cream, if desired. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

BUTTERY CORN BREAD STUFFING

½ cup butter
¾ cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped celery
2 teaspoons poultry seasoning
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ cup milk
2 eggs, slightly beaten
2 cups dry corn bread stuffing
2 cups coarse, dry, whole wheat bread crumbs

Melt ½ cup butter in large skillet. Saute onion and celery until tender, about 8 minutes. Remove from heat. Stir in seasonings. Add milk and eggs; mix well. Gently toss with corn bread and whole wheat crumbs. Enough stuffing for one 12- to 14-pound turkey or place in casserole and bake, covered, for 30 to 35 minutes at 325 degrees.

SNOWY MASHED POTATO CASSEROLE

4 pounds potatoes, peeled and quartered
1 cup sour cream
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup chopped chives
2 teaspoons salt
1 clove garlic, crushed
¼ teaspoon paprika
1 tablespoon butter
8-ounces cream cheese, softened

Cook potatoes in boiling, salted water in large kettle until tender, about 30 minutes. Drain. Place in large mixer bowl; beat until light. Beat in cream cheese, sour cream, salt, pepper, and garlic at high speed until smooth. Stir in chopped chives. Spoon into lightly greased 10 cup casserole dish; sprinkle with paprika. Dot with butter. Bake at 350 degrees until top is golden, about 30 minutes. Serves 10.

SPICY PUMPKIN CIDER MOUSSE

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1 cup apple cider or apple juice
3 egg yolks, beaten
½ cup sugar
16 ounces canned pumpkin
1¾ teaspoons pumpkin pie spice
1½ cups whipping cream
2 tablespoons maple syrup
Whipped cream, if desired
Ground nutmeg, if desired
Thinly sliced red apple, if desired

Sprinkle gelatin over cider in medium saucepan. Let stand 5 minutes or until softened. Stir in egg yolks and sugar. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until gelatin is completely dissolved and mixture has thickened slightly, about 10 minutes. Remove from heat. Stir in pumpkin and pumpkin pie spice. Refrigerate 30 to 45 minutes or until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon. Combine whipping cream and maple syrup in chilled mixer bowl. Beat until soft peaks form. Fold in pumpkin mixture. Spoon into decorative 1½ quart bowl or individual serving dishes. Cover and refrigerate at least 4 hours or overnight. Garnish with whipped cream, nutmeg, and apple before serving.

RIB EYE ROAST AND OVEN BROWNED VEGETABLES WITH EASY SAVORY SAUCE

4-pound boneless beef rib eye roast
2 tablespoons minced fresh rosemary leaves
4 cloves garlic, crushed
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon black pepper
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
3 medium baking potatoes, peeled, quartered
4 small onions, peeled, cut in half
2 large sweet potatoes, peeled, halved, quartered

Easy Savory Sauce

Combine rosemary, garlic, mustard, salt and pepper. Rub half of herb mixture evenly over surface of beef roast. Add oil to remaining herb mixture. Place vegetables in large bowl; add herb-oil mixture, tossing to coat evenly. Place roast, fat side up, on rack in shallow roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer so bulb is centered in the thickest part but not resting in fat. Arrange coated vegetables around roast. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in 350 degree oven to desired degree of doneness. Cook vegetables 1½ hours or until tender. For roast, allow 20 to 22 minutes per pound for rare or medium. Remove roast when meat thermometer registers 135 degrees for rare, 155 degrees for medium. Place roast on carving board; return vegetables to oven if longer cooking is necessary. Tent roast with foil and let stand 15 minutes before carving. Roasts should continue to rise about 5 degrees in temperature. Meanwhile, prepare sauce. Carve roast into slices. Serve with vegetables and sauce. 8 servings of vegetables.

Easy Savory Sauce:

1½ teaspoons dry mustard
1 teaspoon water
12 ounces prepared brown gravy
¼ cup currant jelly

Combine mustard and water in saucepan, stirring to dissolve mustard. Stir in brown gravy and currant jelly. Cook over medium heat, about 5 minutes or until bubbly and jelly is melted, stirring occasionally. Yield: 2 cups.

ANSWER — Thanks to Janet Gill, Taneytown, Ma., for sending a recipe for hard chocolate chip cookies, and to Sue Pardo, Jarrettsville, Md., for sending a recipe.

Oatmeal Chocolate Chips

2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup softened butter
1½ cups packed brown sugar
2 eggs
1 tablespoon water
1½ to 2 cups uncooked oats
12-ounce package mini chocolate chips
1 teaspoon orange extract
¼ cup chopped nuts

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Combine flour, baking powder and baking soda. In mixer bowl, combine margarine, brown sugar, eggs, and water. Beat until creamy. Add flour mixture. Stir in nuts, oats, and chocolate chips. Mix in orange extract last.

Drop by spoonful onto cookie sheets and bake for 10 to 12 minutes. Or, spread mixture into a jelly roll pan. Bake 10 to 12 minutes.

Chocolate Chip Cookies

1 cup granulated sugar
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup butter
½ cup shortening
1 egg
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
2 teaspoons baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup chocolate chips

Cream butter and shortening. Add brown and granulated sugar and egg. Combine flour, baking soda, salt, cream of tartar, and vanilla; add to butter mixture and mix well. Add chocolate chips. Drop by teaspoon on greased cookie sheet. Bake 8 to 10 minutes in 325 degree oven.

Mifflin 4-H Told To Help Students At Bottom

GAIL STROCK

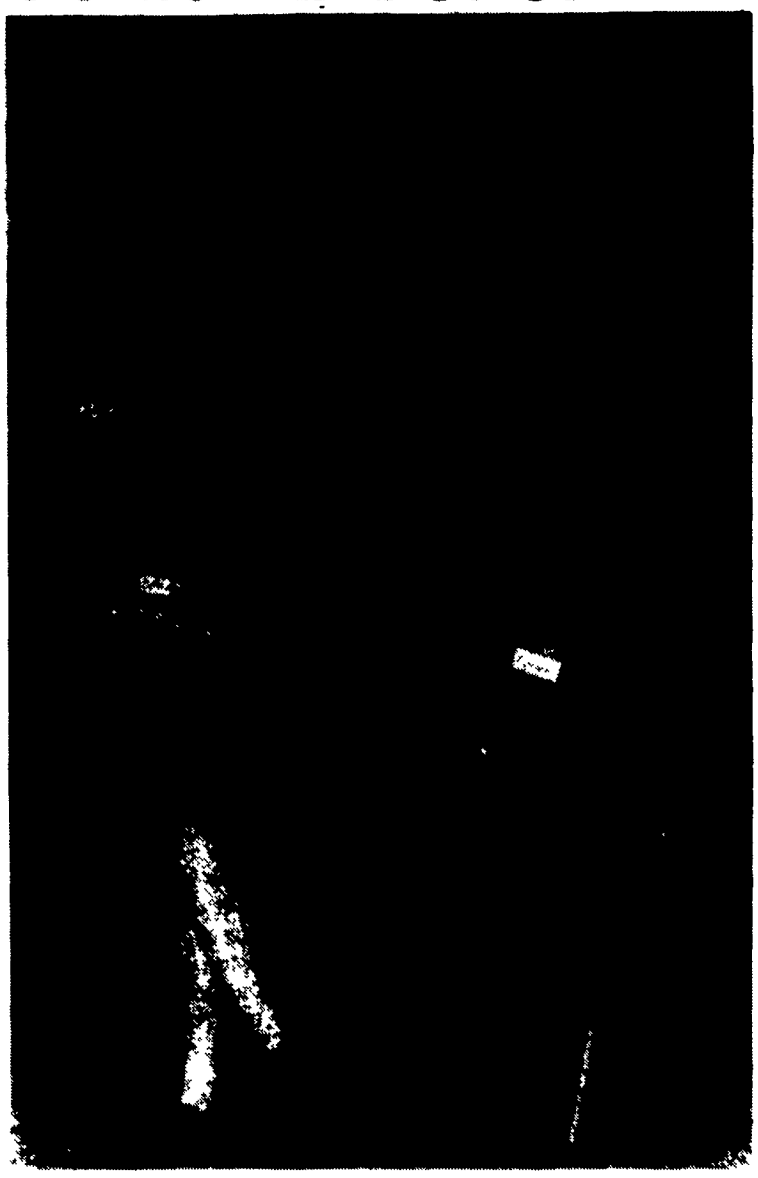
MILROY (Mifflin Co.) — Leadership. Responsibility. Cooperation. Respect.

Everyone knows the resulting value of good leadership. That's why the Mifflin County 4-H Junior Leaders took one evening last month to show their appreciation for their 4-H leaders. They awarded leader pins for one, five, 10, 15, 20, aqnd 25 years of service at their annual banquet which took place at Hartman Center, Milroy, with Junior Leader president Beth Ann Shade as Master of Ceremonies.

For the "Friends of 4-H" award this year, the Junior Leaders chose Dr. Anthony Potorti of the Big Valley Veterinary Clinic in Reedsville for helping the 4-H youth with animal projects. Potorti, in thanking the youth, said this was the first plaque he has ever received for anything like this. Potorti said he is where he is today because of his leaders in FFA. He urged leaders to go for the student "at the bottom and make them better", to give them the advantages of guidance and self-esteem typical of the 4-H program.

"These programs are so important", Potorti said. "I will really cherish this."

Recognition for leadership was due to these leaders for their years of service. Front row: Jake Fisher, one year; Helen Seaholtz, 25 years; Beth Ann Shade, president of the Mifflin County Junior Leaders; Ron Aurand, one year. Back row: Darvin Yoder, five years; Jackie Lindsey, five years; Paula Glick, 10 years; James White, 10 years; and Carol Aurand, one year.



Mifflin County Junior Leaders officers had a hand in selecting Dr. Anthony Portorti for the "Friends of 4-H" award. President Beth Ann Shade joins Dr. Portorti (front row) and Amy Laughlin, news reporter, Jeremy Fisher, treasurer, and Erin Goss, secretary.

Six of the youth present approached the podium to tell the crowd how 4-H and their leaders have affected them.

Jeremy Fisher, who's been in 4-H for eight years, said he learned responsibility through preparing projects for the fair and cooperation in order to have the fair run smoothly. He said he saw inner-city 4-H kids take projects to the Farm Show, sell the animals, and send the money back to their schools for future 4-H'ers.

Eight-year member and Junior Leader secretary Erin Goss said none of the retreats, conventions, meetings, and parties would have happened without their leaders, their patience, and eagerness to help.

Betsy Glenney, who has had 4-H projects for six years, said she learned how to work at something and not give up, and how to do things you don't want to do, adding that that is all part of life. "4-H has helped me handle life's ups and downs," she told her leaders.

Amy Laughlin said her father was a 4-H'er and she never would have done the things she's done if not for 4-H. She discovered she can do things even though they may be hard.

Beth Ann Shade, with seven years experience in 4-H, said she learned cooperation and respect for others. She enjoyed meeting new people, especially through

Family Raises Plump Turkeys For Thanksgiving

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co.) — Somebody has got to raise a turkey for your Thanksgiving Feast.

If you're lucky, that turkey will be raised by the Graybill family in Mt. Joy.

"It's a family project," Joyce, the mother, said of the 31 turkeys that gobble incessantly and ruffle their white feathers on the Graybills' 6½ -acre farm.

Five turkey toms and 16 hens excitedly greet visitors to their domain in the barn. The toms' normally-colored red heads and beards turn blue with excitement as the three Graybill children, Mark, 11; Sarah, 8; and Rebecca, 5, line up in front of the turkey pen.

The children repeat this little ditty:

"The turkey is a funny bird,
His head goes wobble, wobble, wobble.
And all he says is just one word:
Gobble, gobble, gobble."

As the children repeat the poem, the turkeys crowd against the fence. For a moment they silently stare at the children. Then as if on cue, all the turkeys chant in unison, "gobble, gobble, gobble." The birds intermittently lapse into another moment of silence followed by "gobble, gobble, gobble."

The Graybills started raising the day-old turkeys in May. At first, the poults needed to be kept underneath a heat lamp in the house.

Not all the turkeys survived.

"That's because turkeys are stupid," Mark said.

"Well, maybe stupid is a strong word," his mother cautioned, "but they do need to be taught everything."

Even to eat.

Pushing the turkeys' beaks into the feed doesn't seem to help the newborn turkey understand that feed is for eating.

Since turkeys like bright objects, the Graybills interspersed colorful marbles among the feed placed in a shiny aluminum pan.

The shiny colors enticed the turkeys to peck at it. When the birds pecked at a marble, they accidentally tasted a little feed.

And, that little taste has them pecking again until they finally realize that feed is to be eaten.

The day the turkeys were big enough to move from the house to the barn was the time three curious turkeys climbed from the box and decided to explore the Graybills' basement. In one corner of the basement was a sump pump immersed in some water. The three turkeys decided to go for a swim. Unfortunately, turkeys cannot swim so that was three less turkeys.

By nature, turkeys like to peck everything and anything. Occasionally a turkey will become cannibalistic and peck a sibling until it draws blood. When this happens the turkey must be removed from the flock.

The surviving turkeys are now plump and healthy. In fact, some weigh 40 pounds — that's a lot of turkey for the Thanksgiving table.

Of course, before the turkeys are prepared for the table, they need to be dressed. That means the turkey must first be killed and have its feathers removed. That's a big job and one that Joyce can do for a couple of birds but doesn't have the time to do for all of them.

"One of the hardest parts of raising turkeys is to find a processor to dress them," Joyce said.

Because U.S.D.A. requirements for doing custom work keeps changing, many processors said that it is not cost effective to dress the turkeys.

"Dressing birds seems to be a dying art," said Joyce, who found someone who will do it this year, but will not next year. Husband Dale delivers and picks up the birds at the processing plant.

When customers come to the Graybill farm to pick up the turkeys, Sarah and Rebecca entertain the children who come along. They show them the pygmy goat, cats, beef cattle, and rabbits on the farm. Mark, whose specialty is math, will count the money and add up the profits.

Some people do not know that turkeys are raised on the farm. As a nursery school teacher, Joyce teaches her students about turkeys and other farm animals. Other years, she brought her class to the farm, but recent changes in state laws require three-year-olds to be seated in car seats for traveling. This makes it difficult to take the nursery class on field trips.

Joyce wants to show her class what a turkey looks and sounds like so she has taken lots of pictures of the turkeys and has tape-recorded the turkeys' gobble, gobble, gobble to share with her class.

"We'll talk about turkeys, read stories, about them and make turkey designed refrigerator magnets," she said.

"It's an opportunity to weave agriculture into the classroom setting."

Joyce is always looking for innovative ways to teach the children about agriculture because only two of her students live on a farm.

Joyce comes from a family who has always been strong on promoting agriculture whether it is milk, corn, or Harvestores. Before the children were born, Joyce worked in dairy promotion for the Department of Agriculture and for the Atlantic Dairy Association.

Visiting a farm is one of the best ways for people to understand farm life, she said.

Turkeys can be purchased fro-

The Graybill family raises Large Broad Breasted Whites for private customers who prefer homegrown turkeys raised without additives and are tender and juicy.

Mark and Sarah play with their pgymy goat Pride, which, they say, makes a better pet than a dog. In addition to turkeys, the children raise rabbits to show and sell. Mark has 11 Palomino rabbits; Sarah, 8 Florida Whites; and Rebecca, 4 Mini-lops.

Living Fair Adds Meaning To Holiday Giving

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — Tired of the crowds at the mall the day after Thanksgiving? This year you can beat the "Black Friday blues" and add meaning to your holidays by shopping a day later.

A wide selection of living gifts will be on hand at a unique Living Gift Fair at the Lititz Church of the Brethren, November 27 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Fairgoers will choose from a variety of Heifer Project International animals. Big spenders might prefer to buy cows, pigs, water buffalo, or yaks. Thinking smaller? How about rabbits, chickens, ducks, or honeybees.

Here's how it works: Fairgoers purchase animals or shares of animals in the name of a friend. The friend receives an attractive HPI gift card. A family in need receives the HPI animal. Decorated tables provide information about how the HIP animals benefit hungry families in the US and abroad.

In addition to animals, shoppers can choose form homemade baked goods, arts and crafts, and HPI souvenir items.

Children will enjoy the petting zoo, clowns, and free balloons. Lunch is available for the whole family.

The Lititz Church of the Brethren is located at 300 W. Orange St., across from Warwick High School. To learn more, call Dan Fritzkee at 665-5743.

Farm Women Societies

Lancaster Society 20

Lancaster Farm Women #20 met on Thursday, November 4 at the home of Dorothy Crawford with Pauline Reinhart as co-hostess.

In answer to roll call each of the 22 members present gave their remedy for a cold. The Sunshine Committee reported 3 cards sent and 2 bouquets during the month. Four of the members went to Conestoga View to help entertain in October and seven attended the County Convention November 6. Vivian Trout and Marie Foose were appointed as delegates for the State Convention in Harrisburg. The guest speaker was Mrs. Pat Fulvio who gave an interesting talk on Spina Bifida. She mentioned there are 300 people with the birth defect in Lancaster County.

The meeting closed by singing "Brighten the Corner." There will be no monthly meeting in December but the Christmas Party is December 11 at the Quarryville Fire Hall.

Berks Society 3

Eleven members of Group 3 of the Berks County Society of Farm Women met at the home of Sonya Moyer, Boyertown R.D. 4, for the October meeting. Designing Halloween and Christmas sweatshirts was the activity for the evening.

Members will assist with bingo at the Berks Heim Annex on November 11.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mayetta Shane, Valley Road, Boyertown. Each member is asked to bring three dozen cookies and the recipe used to make them. There will also be a turkey raffle following the business meeting.

York Chamber Offers Farm Visitation Day

YORK (York Co.) — The Agribusiness Committee of the York County Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring its annual farm visitation day on Sunday, November 21, from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Seven farms in the Dover and surrounding area will open their doors to the public, free of charge, to see their operations. Participating in the 1993 tour are the following:

Sinking Springs Farm, 2825 Susquehanna Trail, York - This farm features 70 registered-classified Holsteins, as well as corn, alfalfa, wheat and soybean crops on the 600-acre farm which was founded in 1841.

Whitcomb Produce, Bull Road, York - This farm offers a greenhouse which produces bedding plants and flowers. Tomatoes, corn, strawberries and pumpkins are grown on this farm in addition to Christmas trees.

Strathmeyer Forests, Inc., 255 Zeigler Road, Dover - This family-owned and operated business since the early 1900s features 1,200 acres of Christmas trees. The tour will also showcase wreathmaking.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Charles Dairy Farm, 5350 Carlisle Road, Dover - See a dairy operation of 45 cows with a pipeline system to handle milking chores. Corn and alfalfa are also grown for feed.

The Trail Nurseries, 4912 Harmony Grove Road, Dover - See this 10-greenhouse operation which produces wholesale flowers, bedding plants and vegetable plants. Five greenhouses with different colors and sizes of poinsettias will be featured.

Wayne M. Hoffman Farm, 4200 Davidsburg Road, Dover - This father and son operation owns 358 acres and farms 1,450 acres. The Hoffman's beef, hog and crop farm features a new steer feeding barn with a totally slatted floor that holds 600 head of beef-type, fed-for-market heifers.

Ken and Deb Snyder's Lakeview Farm, 3440 Admire Road, Dover - This farm features a beautifully remodeled barn that holds 16 horses. Deb operates a horse boarding facility and is a barrel racing enthusiast.

Green and white directional signs and balloons will help guide visitors to the different tour stops. For more information on the tour, stop by the Chamber office at One Market Way East, York or call the office at 848-4000.

zen in many stores and markets, but many people prefer a fresh turkey without additives.

"Plus, the turkeys taste more tender and juicy," Joyce said.

When the Graybills sit down to their Thanksgiving feast, Mark, who much prefers the quietness of raising his 11 Palomino rabbits, said that he will be thankful he won't need to listen to gobbling turkeys.

His sister Sarah said, "I am thankful for family because they are fun to be with."

Families everywhere will be thankful for people like the Graybills who raise turkeys for Thanksgiving feasts.

multi-county activities with Perry and Juniata counties.

Tiffany Goss, who's been in 4-H for five years, said 4-H has been a wonderful experience and said she has learned responsibility and skills, such as cake decorating, that can be used throughout her life. "I really need to thank the leaders who taught us these skills," Goss said.

Leaders receiving pins include the following:

One year: Judy Armstrong, Ray Aumiller, Carole Aurand, Ron Aurand, Sunday Boozel, Elissa Bradford, Marty Brehman, Cheryl Briggs, Candace Ciercierski, Jacob Fisher, Linda C. Fisher, Harold Gibbins, Dixie Goss, Harold Griffith, Dave Kleinfelter, Ann Lauder, Mike Manning, Barbara Miller, Tammy Sheaffer, Steve Snyder, Sally Staley.

Five years: Cindy Aurand, Joy Boreman, Kathryn Casner, Kathy Druckenmiller, Tim Fisher, June Fultz, Jackie Lindsey, Diane McCalips, Sandra Vaughan, Bonnie Watson, Darvin Yoder.

Ten years: Susan Carstetter, Craig Fisher, Paula Glick, David Kauffman, Georgia McKelvey, Martin McKelvey, Laurinda Shafer, Jamey White.

Twenty years: Linda R. Fisher.

Twenty-five years: Helen Seaholtz.

Beth Van Horn, acting assistant to the Regional Director, complimented Dave Filson, Juniata/Mifflin Extension director, and Jim Ladlee, youth development agent for their "creative and innovative" programming in the county.

Earlier in the evening, Tiffany Goss led the Pledge of Allegiance while Jeremy Fisher, treasurer for the group, led the 4-H Pledge. Prayer before the meal was given by Amy Laughlin, news reporter. Suzanne Fisher and Betsy Colye serve as Junior Leader Club advisors.

Connie Rose Combines Farm Life With Singing

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — Not all of Connie Claycomb's days have been sunny, but she's always found something to sing about.

Known throughout Bedford County and much of Pennsylvania as Connie Rose, the female singer in the John Topper Band, Connie grew up singing.

Her parents were Jim and Jane Claar better known as "Jim and Jane and their Western Vagabonds". They were the forerunners of country music, rubbing elbows with such stars as Gene Autry or Roy Rogers, brightening up the lives of country folks everywhere with their morning radio show.

Jim and Jane grew up together, singing. And, when eventually they joined hands in both show business and matrimony, along came Connie Rose. The little blond girl immediately joined her parents in their show business ventures. "I didn't know any other life," she said. "I never lived one place more than two years. But, I was never afraid of a microphone. It was a wonderful life."

But, those days of wine and roses also had their down sides. Somewhere in her travels, Connie picked up the polio virus, only a few years prior to the Salk prevention. It was a traumatic time for the Claars, which now included sister Audry and brother Ricky.

Connie eventually recovered, but the disease left her with a paralyzed leg which would forever require a brace.

Today, Connie notices the effects of that tragic disease more and more. "Everyone loses muscle elasticity as they age," she comments. "But, a leg damaged by polio loses it much faster."

Eventually, Connie married one of the Vagabonds, Buzzy Brant, and the two continued to enjoy show business. But, the marriage was not destined for longevity. Buzzy was killed in a truck accident while Connie was pregnant with her first child.

"It wasn't easy," she remembers. "For awhile, I quit singing and pretty much stayed to myself."

A sunny disposition isn't destined to stay down long and, Connie soon met and married Fred Claycomb.

Fred was not a musician, instead, farming had been his lifelong dream and Connie was willing to help him achieve it. The couple bought a farm near Bedford and soon, Connie had two more children, making a total of three in less than five years.

"I didn't stop singing altogether," she remembers. "I couldn't. I still sang in the Lutheran church choir and two of my old friends and I formed a trio. We sang at weddings and for other social occasions. It was an outlet."

The Claycombs still live on the farm although they lost some acreage recently to the new Bedford airport. Including leased ground, they farm about 600 acres and raise a mixed beef and dairy herd of 100 head.

"I could never do a lot of work on the farm because of my leg," Connie says. "But, I've always enjoyed being a farm wife. I like to keep house, cook, can, and have vegetable and flower gardens. Really, I never expected to sing professionally again."

It was John Topper, a local high school history teacher who also had a love for country singing, who gave her other ideas. He had started a band and was making a recording when he realized he was missing from female harmony.

Remembering Connie from an early local TV show that the "Western Vagabonds," had done on a weekly basis, he gave her a call.

"Fred was all for it," Connie remembers. "He had always loved my singing and thought it was time for me to get back into it. So, I agreed. It was about that time that one of John's band members had asked for a leave of absence. I was to fill in for a year. That was

Make A Holiday To Remember

LOU ANN GOOD

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — What makes a holiday to remember?

Gifts, food, the perfect tree, photos, decorations, or sharing with others?

How about a little bit of all these. That was the message at the Berks County Cooperative Extension's Holiday program. To accomodate all those who wanted to attend, the day-long program was repeated several days at the 4-H Community Center in Leesport last week.

In the spirit of sharing, participants brought items to donate to the Greater Reading Food Bank, which will be distributed to the needy, and donated money to the Berks County Extension Homemaker's Scholarship.

Grace Kline of the Sewing Guild of Berks County explained how to make many handcrafted items for gift giving and decorating. Directions and patterns for many of the articles are available in a booklet (while supplies last) at the Lebanon County Extension office. Here are directions for the Snowman pair.

Antiqued Wooden Snowman

Both large and small snowmen need:

Twigs for arms

White, black, and orange acrylic paint

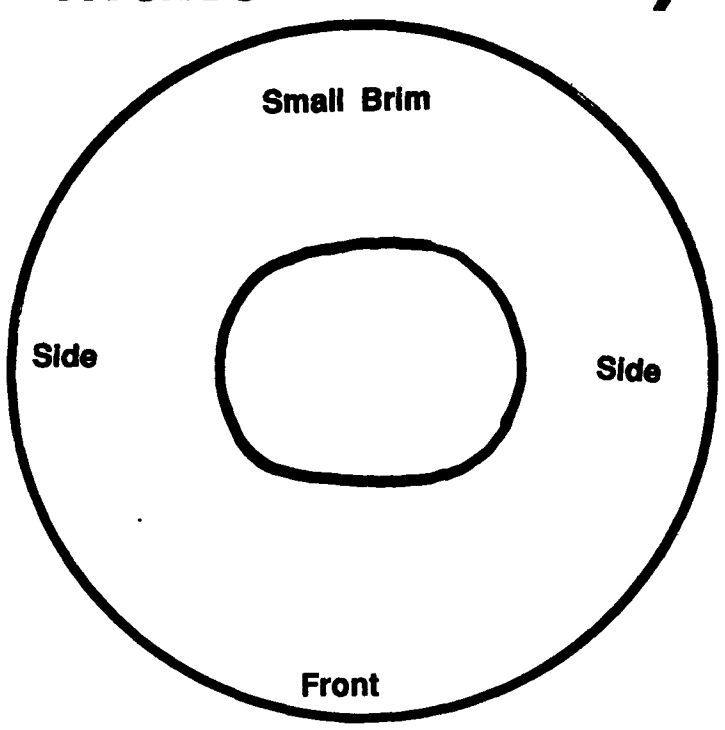
Water based antiquing medium

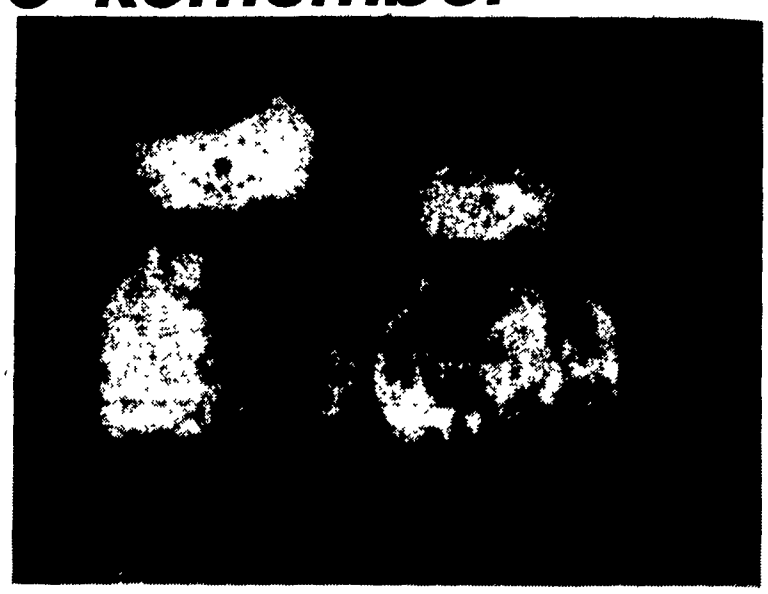
Twine, yarn or gold braid for band on hat

Trace pattern onto pine board. Cut out snowman and hat block with jig saw or scroll saw. Sand all edges until smooth.

Drill holes for nose, buttons, armholes and in hat block and top of head. Use pattern to check angle for arms and hat. Sand over holes and remove sawdust.

Sand one end of ¼ -inch dowel to a point for the nose. Paint with orange paint. Use two coats. Let dry; paint with antiquing medium. Leave on 5 minutes then wipe off.





These delightful snowmen can be made with the instructions and patterns that appear with this article.

Paint snowman with two coats white paint. Let dry between coats. Apply antiquing medium to snowman. Leave on for 5 mintues then wipe off with cloth.

Press nose into face of snowman, leaving about ½ -inch sticking out.

Paint axil pins with black paint. When dry, press into body of snowman.

Insert dowel into hat piece and other end into head.

Cut out hat pieces from felt. Glue hat top piece to top of hat block. Pull hat brim piece over hat top. Adjust folds in hat top and glue in place. Tie twine, yarn or gold braid around hat and make a bow.

Karen Darby Zalewski shared ideas for taking and storing photographs for memories.

For picture albums, use acid-free paper and plastic-free PVC; otherwise pictures will fade or discolor.

In addition to pictures of the family opening gifts, at the dinner table or decorating the tree, snap some of the family preparing for Christmas such as baking Christmas cookies and cleaning the house.

Try journaling by including both factual and emotional information as captions for pictures.

Dave Reber, owner and designer of the Country Greenery, demonstrated how to make a fresh flower arrangement for the table and a dried and silk arrangement for a grapevine wreath.

When making wreaths to place outside, do not use glue as it loosens from temperature changes.

Christmas trees

Herbert Wetzel, retired extension agent, told of the types of trees available and the pros and cons of using each one.

Needle retention of Scotch Pine, Eastern White Pine, and other pines are excellent.

Needle retention for spruces such as Colorado Spruce, Norway Spruce and White Spruce is not as good as pines or firs.

Fraser Fir, Balsam Fir, and Concolor (White) Fir have excellent needle retention.

Considerable money is spent on chemical additives each year to prolong the life of the tree. Wetzel said, "Save your money because several floral and tree preservatives were evaluated and showed using water alone works just as good if not better. No commercial products gave better results than distilled water.

Holiday baking

Alletta Schadler, Lebanon County Extension home economist, in sharing recipes for holiday baking, ask, "Have you ever had a flop and wondered why?"

When you make substitutions, it's important to know why things work or do not work, she said.

"Baking can be a wonderful experience, very satisfying to create products that have just the right texture, appearance and flavor."

Of the following ingredients, here is a condensed version of what Schadler said:

Fat: changing the form or type of fat in a recipe can have significant effects on the texture. Other alt-

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Life surely has its ups and downs. One day you feel fine and the next you have an ache here and another bigger one there.

One evening a child phones to tell you that he can come home for a visit and you are elated. Then in the same hour another phone call informs you that a friend has died. And, down go your feelings of happiness.

Recently I read something in the newspaper that I thought had merit. The man was talking about marriage and our need to understand that it too runs in cycles. There is romance, disillusionment, misery, and joy. The main point was that we should be patient enough to wait for the joy!

I've just buried three little kittens that apparently their mother neglected. She moved them to the outside and I provided a shelter for them. They were doing fine for a few weeks and then the weather grew colder. I cannot figure out her thinking. Over the years, I've certainly buried more than my share of cats. Some were buried with deeper feelings of sorrow than others. It is not a nice job.

With Armistice Day or Veterans Day just behind us, I'm reminded of the loss of young men in World War II. I was a young woman working in a small company and two of our employees were killed in the war. Their families were deeply touched for many years. And, years later, when I found letters that they had written to me, I gave them to their relatives.

We live to give happiness to others and hope that they will return some to us.

erations must be made to compensate.

Fats tenderize baked products and improve keeping qualities. Reducing fat will usually affect the finished product's texture and shelf life.

Amount of fat in recipe — Try reducing the total amount of fat in a recipe by ¼. This works best in fruit and nut breads, cake recipes and sauces. Do not do this in rolled cookies or pie crust recipes where fat is critical.

If the recipe calls for oil, use one that is lower than saturated fat. The lowest is canola, then sunflower or corn or olive oil.

If the recipe calls for shortening, use solid vegetable shortening that is hydrogenated. Do not substitute oil as this will alter the texture greatly. Butter flavored shortening behaves like shortening — not butter.

If you substitute butter or margarine for shortening, there may be a change in the texture of cookies and other baked products because the water in the butter will usually cause the batter to spread more as it bakes.

Margarine and butter: There are many new spreads and stick-form diet margarines that have less fat than regular margarine, but these products have increased water added and behave differently than butter or margarine in recipes. Recipes are being developed especially for the use of these products as many regular full fat margarines are disappearing from the market.

Sugar blends do not behave in the same way as cane sugar. Crumb toppings melt. It does not make jelly or frosting. It does make chewier cookies, if that is what you prefer.

A thorough research by Schadler showed how substitutions for lower fat dairy foods, sugars, and flours may and may not be used. She also experimented how texture, dryness, appearance, flavor, doneness, and volume of your finished product is affected by baking in pans from different materials. If you have any questions concerning these topics, contact the Lebanon County Extension office.

Fire safety

What is the perfect Christmas if it is ruined by fire?

Jean Hertzog, Burn Prevention Foundation education director, told of fire hazards to avoid not only during holidays but throughout the year.

One of the biggest causes of kitchen burns is the result of wearing inappropriate clothing. Baggy sleeves can brush against burners or catch kettle handles. If you must cook wearing baggy sleeves, put a large rubber band around your sleeve to make it tight and push above the elbows.

If grease fire starts, put a lid on it, turn off the heat, and let the kettle set two to three hours before attempting to move it. As long as grease is hot, it can start on fire again.

Use cool water on burns — nothing else.

Connie Rose

10 years ago and I'm still singing."

Connie considers herself to be extremely blessed. "I love to sing and I get to sing everything," she comments. "I still sing in the church choir and we still have our trio known as "Joyful Noise".

She also sings with the Dutch Corner Community Choir, a prestigious group which performs music ranging from Bach to folk tunes.

The band performs at least two nights a week. "Sometimes in the summer we have four to six gigs a weekend," Connie smiles.

Locations for the performances have ranged from the Poconos to near Pittsburgh.

Getting back into show business brought back many memories for Connie of her growing up years. "I had often told mom and dad I should write a book. Finally, I decided that I had wasted enough time, I was going to do it. In 1992, shortly after her father's death, Connie began compiling notes and information and with the help of friends and family sorted through hundreds of old photographs.

The book, "The Life and Times of Jim and Jane and their Western Vagabonds," was published in 1992. It was reveals the up times and the down times of the country performers. Connie's polio wasn't the only tragedy to strike the family but, through it all, they kept on singing.

Connie sells her books through the local book stores or through the mail. The profits are donated to her mother. Order a book by writing to Connie at Bedford RD 2, Box 123. Include a check for $11, which includes postage.

"Writing that book was one of the most satisfactory accomplishments of my life," said Connie, now a grandmother of two.

Vegetable Growers Prepare For Meeting

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — The Vegetable Growers Association of New Jersey will once again return to the Trump Taj Mahal Casino Resort in Atlantic City for their 1994 annual meeting on January 18-20.

Educational sessions, a trade show, spouses program, and dinner show are the featured events of this year's meeting.

Growers and the vegetable industry are looking forward to another successful meeting in the large and spacious facilities of the Taj Mahal, located on the boardwalk. Plans are being completed to house the more than 2,000 attendees, which includes growers, agribusinessmen, county agents and state specialists from New Jersey and the eastern United States. This meeting is one of the largest of it's kind on the entire East Coast.

VGANJ Secretary, Phil Traino, is coordinating registration. Dr. Steve Reiners and Dr. Steve Garrison of Rutgers Cooperative Extension are coordinating the educational sessions, and Rocco DiGerolamo is coordinating the trade show.

The trade show area with space for 150 exhibits is available in the Grand Ballroom of the Taj Mahal. Agribusiness representatives will display new tillage, irrigation, planting, seeding, packing, and pesticide application equipment. Suppliers and distributors of fertilizers, pesticides, containers and other farm supplies will be available to discuss the use of their products.

Once again, lunch will be available in the exhibit area, allowing participants to enjoy their meal without waiting in long hotel lines. Don't miss this opportunity to learn about new products and services, and to exchange information with other growers and industry representatives.

This year, the educational program committee has developed 16 sessions and workshops on topics and issues of special concerns to growers. Featured speakers at this year's meeting include leading researchers, extension specialists and agents, industry scientists, and growers willing to share their expertise and success.

Speakers from Massachusetts, North Carolina, Florida, North Dakota, California, Ohio, New York, Vermont, New Hampshire, and Maryland will all participate in this year's sessions.

Rutgers research and extension faculty as well as personnel from the New Jersey Department of Agriculture and the Department of Environment Protection and Energy will provide growers with the latest information on regulations, pesticides, IPM, and cultural practices for the New Jersey grower. Core and category pesticide recertification credits will be offered in most sections.

On the evening of Wednesday, January 19, the annual dinner show will again be the social highlight of the three-day event. All ticket holders will be able to enjoy an exciting variety show in the Tiara Ballroom.

Anyone buying a ticket for the dinner show is automatically entered into a drawing for a vacation trip for three days and two nights at the Taj Mahal. Proceeds from the dinner show help support a scholarship fund for students studying vegetable culture at Cook College.

For more information on meeting registration, call Phil Traino at (609) 985-4232. For information on the trade show, call Rocky DeGerolamo at (609) 561-9522. On educational sessions, call Dr. Steve Reiners at (908) 932-9395 or Dr. Steve Garrison at (609) 455-3100.

Ivy Topiary Care

Topiaries in the shape of trees, spheres, hearts and even animals are popular holiday gifts for gardeners. If you are the lucky recipient of a topiary house plant or plan on giving one as a gift, here for some tips for helping them stay healthy:

• Ivy likes a dry/wet cycle. Allow the plant to dry slightly and then water it until the root ball is well soaked. During the winter the plant will require less water.

• As long as the plant is producing new leaves it may be fertilized with a diluted fertilizer solution. Choose a fertilizer specifically formulated for house plants that is high in nitrogen.

• Ivy thrives in cool temperatures; even 50° is not too cool and the plant will produce the most new growth when room temperature ranges from 50-60°. Keep the plant away from forced air vents that blow dry air. Ivy requires high humidity.

• Place the plant in bright light. Windows that face south or east receive the most light especially during the winter. Spider mites are the biggest pest problem for ivy topiaries. A good sign of mite infestation is mottled leaves that keep dropping from the plant. Minor mite problems can be cured by washing them off the leaves with warm water. If you observe tiny spider webs between the leaves and stems, the plant is in serious trouble. Ivy can be treated with a house plant insecticide, but the best cure is to avoid the problem by providing the plant with the proper growing conditions.

Once a month give the plant a warm shower to help clean dust off the foliage.

Ivy likes to be potbound and can remain in the same pot for several years. Keep the topiary looking at its best by snipping off leaves or shoots that grow too far away from the wire support system.

Candlelight Tours

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — Hibernia Mansion will host its annual Christmas Candlelight Tours, Thursday through Sunday, December 2 to 5. The 19th century mansion will be decorated with greens and private collections illuminated solely by candlelight.

The tours are sponsored by the Friends of Hibernia County Park using the theme, "Christmas in the Twenties."

Hibernia Mansion dates back to 1765. The mansion today is the result of renovations and extensions made between 1895 and 1920 by Colonel Franklin Swayne, a Philadelphia real estate lawyer.

The Christmas Tours are Thursday-Saturday, December 2-4, 6:30-9 p.m., and Sunday, December 5, 1 to 4 p.m. Admission is $1.50/Adults, $1.00/Children and Seniors.

Drivers should look for signs featuring a candle, which will mark the way. For additional information, call Hibernia County Park at (215) 384-0290.

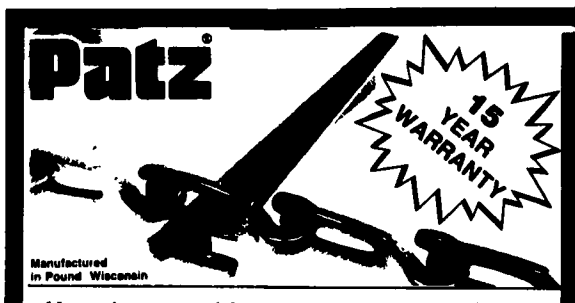
Consumers Dial Phone For Cheese

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — More than 11,600 consumers picked up the phone and dialed 1-800-NY-CHEESE in response to the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council's (ADADC) free coupon booklet offer for New York state cheeses during the October television campaign in the Syracuse market.

The 30-second commercial was filmed in Rochester, New York in August and aired for three weeks in October on ABC, NBC and CBS local affiliates in Syracuse (WIXT-TV Channel 9, WSTM-TV Channel 3, and WTVH-TV Channel 5). The 800 number concept was being tested as an alternative way of distributing coupons to consumers.

Based on the overwhelming response to the 800 number, ADADC is considering introducing this strategy into other markets in its region.

Patz



Here is something often overlooked...

Only Patz gives you 45 years of experience with hook-and-eye chain, resulting in a chain so good that others are attempting to copy it

Many Patz Gutter Cleaner chains are still working well after more than 30 years of use

After the Patz patent on hook-and eye chain expired some other companies have attempted to copy the Patz chain Some promote 10- and 12 year warranties on chain—but they have not yet had 10 or 12 years of experience with hook and eye chain

Patz has continued to improve its chain for 45 years with special-formula steel special forging techniques and special steel hardening processes

Rely on the proven, long-life chain Patz provides a 15-year chain warranty because so many chains are working well long after 15 years of use

Better yet your Patz chain warranty is backed up by a solid, reliable company that has been serving farmers for 45 years with the same family ownership

Insist on Patz chain!

Students Win First With Sampler Design

NEWARK, DEL.—This summer, three students from the University of Delaware department of agricultural engineering won first place in a student design paper competition sponsored by the Northeast branch of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers.

The students presented their paper August 10 at the Northeast Agricultural/Biological Engineering Conference held at Clayton Hall on the University of Delaware Newark Campus.

In their winning paper, engineering technology majors Timothy Stephens, West Chester, Pa., Joseph Salinski, Newark; and Andrew Brown, Doylestown, Pa., described the portable hydraulic soil sampler they designed and built for a class project. Salinski and Brown graduated in May. Stephens is completing his final semester.

The project grew out of an assignment in professor Palaniappa Krishnan's machine design class last fall. Krishnan, a specialist in power and machinery in the College of Aricultural Sciences, asked student teams to design a soil-sampling machine using the skills they had acquired in other agricultural engineering classes. The sampler had to be portable, fit between crop rows, and require no more than two people to operate. Safety and ease of maintenance were other considerations.

Salinski, Brown, and Stephens built a prototype of their power soil sampler last spring with the aid of a research grant from the university Honors Program. The machine, which cost $1,100 to build, uses a conventional auger powered by a hydraulic motor to extract soil samples in 6-inch increments down to a maximum depth of 5 feet.

The machine will be taken to the university's Research and Education Center near Georgetown for field testing. If it proves practical, it would provide a less laborious means of collecting soil samples.

Researchers affiliated with the university's soil test and water quality laboratories routinely collect more than 3,000 soil samples per year. Sampling is now done by hand — an arduous process, especially in hard or compacted soils.

The design paper competition was open to undergraduate professional engineering and engineering technoloy students at Northeastern universities.

Helping Memory Impaired Elders

The amount of care, supervision, and help with tasks needed by a memory-impaired person will depend upon the extent of the progressive dementing illness. Managing a person with progressive memory loss is not easy, but patience, understanding, and skills will help.

The following guidelines may reduce anxiety and improve the quality of life for both the patient and the family.

Keep expectations realistic. Realistic expectations will reduce frustration for both you and the patient.

Maintain a calm atmosphere. Being rushed or being around a lot of activity tends to confuse and frighten the memory-impaired.

Be consistent. Avoid changes and surprises. Persons with a dementing illness generally do best in familiar, well-organized environments and with consistent routines.

Limit choices. Limiting the choices the person has to make reduces confusion.

Use repetition. Memory-impaired people need frequent, patient reminders.

Use memory aids. Memory aids such as signs, clocks, calendars, seasonal decorations, and a schedule of the day's activities can reinforce memory.

A singel complimentary copy of "Helping Memory-Impaired Elders - A Guide for Caregivers" is available if picked up at the Berks County Cooperative Extension, Berks County Ag Center, Leesport, PA 19533.

Apple Program Appoints Administrator

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The appointment of Brenda Beleski Briggs to the position of program administrator for the Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Program was announced by chairman Lee Showalter.

In her new position, Briggs, of Carlisle, will manage the merchandising, consumer education, and public relations campaigns promoting Pennsylvania apples, which are funded by the state's network of growers.

Prior to her appointment, Briggs served as a marketing specialist in the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Market Development, where she was responsible for overseeing six commodity marketing programs, including the Apple Marketing Board.

"As a former liaison for the Department of Agriculture, Brenda has a thorough understanding of the state's apple industry," Showalter said. "We're very pleased that she will be applying her talents to our program on a full-time basis."

A McCormick Farmall was one of the displays at the 1994 Red Power Roundup at Boonville, Mo.

Roundup Is 'I.H. Heaven'

BOONVILLE, Mo. — The I.H. Collectors Club National and Worldwide's fourth annual "Red Power Roundup" and the I.H. Collectors Missouri Chapter's second annual "Show Me I.H.," held at the Missouri River Valley Steam Engine Association Show, was billed as being "I.H. Heaven".

Nearly 10 acres were filled with more than 630 I.H. exhibits. The I.H. Feature portion of the show, was layed out beautifully with red and white pennant banners, and in huge big top tents.

I.H. tractors, numbering about 356, were displayed by model starting with the oldest, and progressing to the newest, including Titans, Moguls, Motor Cultivators, 8-16 Internationals, Regulars, F series, Letter series, and finally Numbers series tractors.

The tractor displays included almost every model, and ended up in a special big top tent containing the last Farmall built, the 5488 out of the Case Museum, the earliest known experimental regular, the first no-till planter from Purdue University, and Tracto the I.H. Robot.

Small and Large I.H. engines numbering more than 50 were housed in and around another special big top tent. Two more huge big tops housed more than 20 I.H.-only vendors, and more than 85 smaller item I.H. displays, ranging from belt buckles, refrigerators, deep freezes, hat displays, toys, pedal tractors, literature displays, memorabilia displays, signs and other collectable I.H. items too numerous to mention.

Fifty-three pieces of I.H. equipment graced the machinery area. Action demonstrations with all I.H. machines were conducted daily, such as threshing, baling, corn shredding, corn shelling etc. Numerous restored plows, cultivators, mowers, wagon loaders, mills, combines, loaders, disks, and spreaders, added to the machinery area. Of special interest were a model M, and a Super C tractor, both with mounted corn pickers, a restored 52R Combine, and a 1948 H-14 Cotton Picker. I.H. trucks lined up out front, creating an impressive display of 65 various units along Interstate 70.

The I.H. Collectors Club National and Worldwide operated a Club Information and Membership Sign Up Booth in the Headquarters Tent. More than 100 new members were signed up for the national.

The I.H. Collectors 1994 Winter Convention is set for Elgin Ill., on March 4-6, 1994. The 5th annual "Red Power Roundup" is set at the Beaver Valley Antique Show in Hookstown, Pa., September 16-18, 1994.

The I.H. Collectors Missouri Chapter will be doing all this again next year (on a slightly smaller scale) at their Third annual "Show Me I.H." to be held at the Macon County Flywheel & Collectables Show at Macon, Mo., on July 28-31, 1994.

Major Changes For Rutgers Pest Control Meeting

CLAYTON, N.J. — "The fiftieth annual Rutgers Pest Control Meeting has instituted some major changes," said Dr. Lou Vasvary, long-time program chair. The two-day meeting is scheduled for December 14-15.

Changes are

- The meeting has been moved to the Holiday Inn on Rt. 295 at Exit 10 in Bridgeport, N.J.
- The Plant Food Educational Society along with the Pesticide Association will be co-sponsoring the meeting along with Rutgers Cooperative Extension.
- The meeting, in addition to regular pest management sessions on all crops, will have presentations made on soil fertility and plant nutrition.
- A banquet is planned for the evening of December 14 to honor distinguished award recipients.
- The number of core credits and special interest presentations increased to attract farmers and agrichemical industry people.

The meeting will begin at 8 a.m. on Tuesday, December 14. Seven presentations on insect, disease, and weed management in vegetables as well as fertilizer and lime placement in sweet corn and vegetable will be made according to Phil Neary of Rutgers Cooperative Extension - session program chair. Said Neary, "The Plant Food Educational Society will also close this morning session with a very important business meeting."

The afternoon session will continue with disease and fertility management talks on vegetables. Of special interest will be a talk on the Certified Crop Advisor Program in Pennsylvania by Dr. Elwood Hatley of Pennsylvania State University. Peter Nitzsche of Rutgers Cooperative will demonstrate and discuss a new Fax-On-Demand Pest Control Delivery System. Ray Ferrarin will bring attenders up to date current DEPE pest control regulations.

According to Pesticide Association of New Jersey President Wayne Knerr, the annual meeting will close out the first day sessions. Said Knerr, "We will convene at 7 p.m. for our banquet to recognize three who have excelled in pesticide education, agrichemical industry, and service to agriculture."

The Wednesday, December 15 morning session will begin with presentations on fertility, insect and weed management in field and forage crops, according to Dan Kluchinski of Rutgers Cooperative Extension. Dean Polk, chairperson of the fruit sessions, will chair talks on disease management and nutrition of fruit crops to close out the Wednesday morning talks. Richard Roundtree, manager of public affairs at Rhone Poulenc Co., will discuss food safety and product defense before the luncheon on Wednesday.

Dr. Terry Logan of Ohio State University will discuss sludge management laws and their impact on agriculture to kick off the Wednesday afternoon session. Presentations on ornamental and turf pest management and fertility will be the focus of the afternoon sessions. Dr. George Hamilton, extension specialist of Rutgers Cooperative Extension, will close out the two-day conference on EPA farm worker Standards and how to comply.

Pesticide applicator and core credits will be given. Complete details and a copy of the program can be obtained by contacting program chairs Dr. Lou Vasvary at (908) 932-9324 or Dr. George Hamilton at (908) 932-9801. Copies are also available from southern New Jersey county offices of Rutgers Cooperative Extension.

Protect Bulbs, Perennials

If you've planted bulbs or perennials this fall, mulching is an important step to take to protect them from the winter cold. Mulches slow evaporation and build an insulating layer that helps keep the soil temperatures even throughout the winter. Mulches also help bulbs and roots retain moisture during the winter. If roots dry, plant growth will be diminished in the spring, or plants may die.

Dry bulbs mean no blooms in the spring. You can mulch with lawn clippings that are free of weed seeds and diseases. Or you can use leaves mixed with grass (to avoid compaction when the leaves become wet), compost, pine needles, bark or wood chips. Pile the mulch at least three inches thick.

Key To Better Mosquito Control May Be Egg-Laying

NEWARK, Del. — The itch from a mosquito bite is a minor annoyance compared to the risk of disease that bite may pose. Mosquitoes are carriers of many diseases, including malaria, the world's number-one killer disease.

"If it weren't for good public health and mosquito control programs, we'd still have outbreaks of malaria and yellow fever in the United States," said Dr. Richard Weber, a specialist in mosquito behavior at the University of Delaware College of Agricultural Sciences. But the threat of mosquito-borne illness remains. Last year, for example, two cases of mosquito-transmitted malaria were reported in New Jersey.

A mosquito picks up a pathogen by feeding on an infected host. Once infected, it then introduces the pathogen to new hosts at subsequent feedings. Only the female mosquito bites. It requires a blood meal for each clutch of eggs it produces and may feed and lay eggs up to five times during its life.

Weber has spent the past eight years looking for effective ways to kill mosquitoes without harming other organisms in the environment. He is currently studying mosquito egg-laying behavior and the chemicals females respond to when seeking sites to lay their eggs.

Mosquitoes lay their eggs on the water surface, but they're quite selective about the sites they choose. Some species prefer stagnant water or water standing in tree holes or inside discarded tires.

The mosquito species Weber is studying, Culex pipiens, is important in tropical parts of the world as a carrier of the parasitic worm that causes elephantiasis — a disease of humans characterized by the enormous swelling of a limb. In Delaware and most of the United States, C. pipiens feeds mainly on birds but is also involved in the spread of dog heartworm.

If Weber can identify the chemical compounds that attract C. pipiens females to egg-laying sites and the behaviors they use in assessing these compounds, he may be able to develop traps — super-attractive artificial egg-laying sites — treated to kill pregnant females and larvae.

What he is learning about C. pipiens should make it possible to control other mosquito species more effectively, too.

"This research has potential to relieve not only local nuisance biting but to greatly reduce the prevalence of mosquito-borne diseases," Weber said. "My ultimate goal is to reduce mosquito numbers."

Openings Outnumber Applicants In Wood Industry

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — A boom in the wood products industry has created more jobs than there are qualified college graduates to fill them, said an expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"World demand for wood products has grown by more than 90 percent on the past 30 years and is expected to grow 45 percent more by the year 2000," said Dr. Paul Blankenhorn, professor of wood technology in the School of Forest Resources. "As a result, excellent employment and advancement opportunities exist in wood products.

"The industry needs highly trained professionals with excellent technical and communication skills," he said. "An extensive survey of the 34 college degree programs in wood products in the United States and Canada shows at least two jobs are available for every undergraduate in wood products. Government job openings exceed available graduates by more than three to one."

Each year, the United States uses roughly as much wood by weight as all metals, plastics, and Portland cement combined. The U..S. wood products industry consists of approximately 38,000 manufacturing plants and 22,000 sales and distribution centers with more than 2 million employees and an annual payroll exceeding $36 billion.

All Penn State wood products graduates during the past five years have found jobs in the industry. Salaries of recent baccalaureate degree graduates range from $20,000 to $35,000, depending on level of training and academic achievement.

Graduates with a master's degree can earn starting salaries of $30,000 to $40,000, while those with a doctorate can earn $39,000 to $50,000.

Blankenhorn said that many universities have begun developing programs in either wood products business or processing to prepare students for the industry. Penn State's wood products program was initiated in 1942.

Students in the Penn State program can specialize in one of two areas. Those taking the business and marketing option can work in sales, management, market analysis, or other business-oriented roles. Graduates of the processing and manufacturing option can work in applied and basic research, technical service, and manufacturing.

"Students in the wood products processing and manufacturing option gain a basic understanding of the anatomical, physical, chemical and mechanical properties of wood, as well as a sound general education in communications, sciences, arts, humanities and social and behavioral sciences," Blankenhorn said.

"In the wood products business and marketing option, students receive training in the basic sciences, computer programming, business management and marketing while acquiring a thorough technical knowledge of wood products and related manufacturing technologies."

The program also offers a wood products marketing minor, giving students in other majors the chance to develop skills in wood products marketing and processing.

For more information about careers in the wood products industry, contact the Wood Products Undergraduate Programs Office, the Pennsylvania State University, 213 Ferguson Building, University Park, PA 16802, (814) 865-4237.

District Offers Free Nutrient Assistance

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — The Chester County Conservation District is accepting requests for nutrient management assistance. The district program is designed to help farm operators who generate manure to maximize nutrient benefits and cut down on fertilizer costs. The program is free to interested farmers in the Brandywine, French, and Pickering watersheds on a first-come basis.

As part of the nutrient management program, 10 free soil tests plus a manure analysis are performed. These are used, along with general farming practice information, to develop a nutrient management plan. The plan can then be used as a general guide for safe and effective manure management. Technical help on water control, barnyard runoff management and pasture, streambank and cropping issues is also offered to those participating.

According to Lori Sandman, nutrient management resource conservationist for Chester County, farmers can save money by implementing a nutrient management plan. "The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has estimated that Pennsylvania farmers overapply as much as $90 million worth of nutrients (nitrogen, phosphorous, and potassium) annually, or on average about $2,200 per farm. Through careful planning and management of a farm's manure resources, many farmers can come close to meeting their crops' nutrient needs without supplemental fertilizer. Additional fertilizer application not only results in unnecessary expense, but can lead to water quality problems."

The information needed to write the plan is basic, and can usually be collected in one farm visit lasting about an hour. If soil and manure tests are requested, these are then taken at a return visit. Then, if the farmer would like additional help on other areas of concern, or would like to develop a complete conservation plan, the nutrient management technician works with Soil Conservation Service (SCS) or other agencies to coordinate best management practices, technical, and financial assistance. Complete conservation plans are encouraged at the time a nutrient management plan is written.

To sign up for the nutrient management program, or for more information, contact Lori Sandman at the Chester County Conservation District, Government Services Center, Suite 395, 601 Westtown Road, West Chester, PA 19382-4519, (215) 696-5126.

NFU Supports Water Ban

WASHINGTON, D.C. — National Farmers Union (NFU) Legislative Representative Allen Richard told the House Subcommittee on General Farm Commodities that his organization "strongly supports the Federal Grain Inspection Service (FGIS) proposed regulation which would ban the use of water for the purpose of suppressing grain dust."

Richard told the subcommittee that his organization of 250,000 family farmers and ranchers supports the proposal because it would protect and improve the reputation of U.S.-produced agricultural commodities. "Export customers should pay for shipments on a clean grain basis, just as farmers are paid on a clean grain basis," he said.

NFU views the practice of adding water to grain in the handling process as nothing more than a way to cheat both the grain producer and the buyer of the "adulterated grain."

Advocates of the practice claim adding water is the most economical way to control dust in stored grain. Opponents charge that the practice serves as a catalyst for mold formation and decay, as well as adding artificial weight to the grain.

Richard pointed to the grain handling policy adopted by Cargill, Inc., banning the addition of water to grain because of the practice's harmful effect on grain quality, saying the practice is unnecessary. In fact, said Richard, Cargill now presents to buyers in writing that the company does not add water to any grain it handles and requires its suppliers to sign an agreement pledging that water has not been added to their product.

NFU agrees with Cargill that the addition of water to grain undermines the integrity of the U.S. grain handling system.

"Adding water to grain has nothing to do with dust," Richard told the subcommittee.

4-H Leaders Recognized

At the annual meeting of the Monroe County Penn State Cooperative Extension recently, 42 4-H leaders were presented awards for a total of 260 years of service to the youth of Monroe County.

Ten people were recognized for contributing one year of service as a 4-H Leader: Ryan E Argot, Gail Belfiore, Sandy Boyland, Kathy Breslin, BJ Hapke, Karen Hirschmugl, Jen Kresge, Chris Matthews, Gayle Miller, and DeDe Norman.

Eight 4-H leaders generously gave two years of service: Lina Briffa, Winnie Dorpfeld, Susie Hook, Cindy Hughes, Barbara Mazziotta, Ruth Ruzycki, Winnie Serfass, and Carol Taran.

Another nine leaders were recognized for three years of volunteerism: Dora Arnold, Larry Booth, Lorrie Booth, Robin Braun, Donna Cotter, Shirley Fenner, Signe Gray, Carol Kern, and Mary Jane Kizakavich.

Fran Yuhas was recognized for the four years she has given to 4-H.

Three leaders have served 4-H youth for five years: Adele Argot, Kerry Keller, and Janet Smith. Dot Fabel has donated six years. Kathy Schramer and Jan Thomas have each given seven years of their time. Another two leaders, Malinda Brodt and Pat Speziale, have served our county's youth for nine years.

With 12 years of 4-H leadership, Dwight Heist is still dedicated to assisting youth in their growth. Wanda Bonser and Bobbie Snyder have been involved with 4-H for 13 years. Volunteering for 4-H for 20 years, Sherry Wills generously donates her time. Hilda Rowlands has served our youth as a 4-H leader for 21 years. For 27 years, George Kerrick has committed himself to 4-H. And it was 34 years ago that Mary Lou Kerrick first became a dedicated 4-H leader, and has seen many a child grow through the 4-H programs.

For more information on how you can share yourself with the youth of Monroe County, or become a 4-H'er, call your 4-H agent, Donna Brown, at (717) 992-7344 or (717) 421-6430 at the Penn State Cooperative Extension office.

New Jersey 4-H Beef Sale

Going! Going! Gone! Twenty-three top quality steers went under the gavel of auctioneer Wayne Beal recently at the 55th annual N.J. 4-H Beef Sale held at the Cumberland County Fairgrounds in Carmel, N.J.

The beef sale was preceded by the 55th N.J. State Beef Show, held on Saturday, October 9, also at the Cumberland County Fairgrounds, where 4-H members from all over New Jersey competed for the coveted title of grand champion steer and heifer.

Much hard work and dedication goes into preparing the animals for this event, and the animals offered for the sale are of the finest quality and make excellent cuts for the table. Judge Greg Kruger awarded the overall grand champion steer award to the angus steer "Sylvester" grown and shown by Nick Faber from Hunterdon County. The grand champion steer weighed 1,315 pounds and was purchased by Ron Dilzer for $1.50/pound.

The reserve champion steer, also an Angus, was grown and shown by Dana Mickel of Hunterdon County. The 1,295-pound steer was purchased by W.S. Coles & Sons for a price of $1.30/pound.

Robert Faber, Hunterdon County, captured the crossbred grand champion and Garret Tice from Cumberland County was reserve grand crossbred.

In the Hereford class, Amanda Sylvester of Gloucester County captured the grand with Steve Burger Standing reserve. In the Simmental Class, Elias Duppin, Gloucester County, showed the grand champion animal and Travis Tice, Cumberland County, was reserve champion.

In the heifer division, the overall grand champion heifer was a Simmental shown by Travis Tice of Cumberland County and the reserve champion was a Hereford heifer shown by Jason Allar from Gloucester.

Annual 4-H Capon Auction

The Manheim-Mastersonville 4-H Capon clubs held their annual capon judging and auction at the Manheim Rotary Club on Nov. 9 at Kreider's Restaurant.

Club members brought their dressed birds for a weigh-in by Zoann Parker, Penn State extension, Lancaster County. The birds were then judged by Larry Yager, Penn State marketing agent.

Yager judged Michell Gruber's capon to be the grand champion. Rotarian, Jay Witman, in a lively auction, sold Michell's 12-pound capon for $6.75 per pound to John King, King Photography, Manheim. The reserve champion capon showed by Curtis Gruber was purchased by Jim Peters for $3.50 a pound.

Kervin Myer, Bill Simons, Tom Creighton, and Morris Shaffer were the successful bidders of birds shown by Karl Bucher, Dan Geissinger, Eric Siegrist, and Sara Brubaker.

The Manheim Rotary Club members paid a total of $272.37 for six capons shown by the 4-H members.

Bedding Plant Program

WESTMINSTER, Md. — The Carroll County Extension Office will be hosting a three-day short course for producers wishing to grow bedding plants on a commercial level.

This comprehensive course will cover basic greenhouse management, crop scheduling, production basics, and marketing. This course will be held on three consecutive Mondays starting at 9 a.m. November 22 and concluding on Monday, December 6.

There is a $45 registration fee for this program and seating is very limited. If you would like to attend this program, please contact Tom Ford at (410) 848-4611.

4-H Achievement Night

The Annual Adams County 4-H Achievement Night will be held on Saturday, November 20, at 7:30 p.m. at the Adams County Extension Office, two miles west of Gettysburg on Rt. 30 across from Doersom Airport.

4-H families, members, leaders, parents, and friends are invited to attend this special night of fellowship and recognition.

The evening program includes 10- and 11-year and graduating member recognition, Junior and Senior National 4-H Award Program recognition, I Dare You Award recipients, and the following Memorial Award presentations: Rose Murren, ABC Williams, William Miller, Mrs. Edward Snyder, Clue Meyerhoffer, Robert Lott, Frederick Rarig, and Larry Feeser Sr. 4-H teens from across Adams County will be recognized for their efforts in 4-H.

The McSherrystown 4-H Club will serve refreshments. The Adams County 4-H Senate meeting will also be held at 4-H Achievement Night.

Lycoming 4-H Horse Show Winners

Lycoming County 4-H horse members received 12 awards at the 34th annual State 4-H horse Show, held October 29 through 31 at the State Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

County winners in 4-H performance classes were Melissa Irion, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Irion, Montoursville, 10th place in pleasure pairs; Christine Stroup, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stroup, Hughesville, 10th place in pleasure pairs; Heather Griggs, daughter of Ms. Virginia Griggs, Muncy, 9th place in hunter hack horses; Ian Andrews, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kim Andrews, Cogan Station, 2nd place in pleasure pony driving; and Brett Rogers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milt Rogers, Williamsport, 9th place in obstacle trail course and 1st place in walk-trot equitation.

In 4-H horse production classes, members breed and raise their own project animal. Local winners were Kelly Pentz, daughter of Ms. Barbara Pentz, Montoursville, 1st place in quarter horse colt of this year; Floyd Sholder, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Sholder, Sr., Linden, 2nd place in quarter horse yearling filly, 1st place in quarter horse yearling gelding, and 2nd place in 3-year-old western pleasure futurity; Christine Stroup, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stroup, Hughesville, 2nd place in stock type horse; and Megan Hartranft, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Hartranft, Williamsport, 2nd place in stock type pony colt of this year.

Several other Lycoming County horse club members received recognition in the state contest. They were Amanda Staggs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Staggs, Williamsport; Jennifer Botsford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Botsford, Loganton; and Tipson O'Donnell, daughter of Ms. Connie O'Donnell, Muncy.

"The competition gave 4-H'ers an opportunity to display their horsemanship skills," said Thomas B. Murphy, Penn State extension Agent.

THE ALL-NEW MoCo's BY JOHN DEERE

NOBODY DOES HAY BETTER

NOBODY CUTS HAY BETTER. A 5-bar reel, new guards, and a 9-foot 9-inch cut give the 820 MoCo (above) a cleaner, 6-inch-wider cut. And an all-new, John Deere-built, rotary cutterbar makes the 920 and 930 MoCo's stronger and easier to maintain. All three use an innovative 3-point suspension for unbeatable flotation.

NOBODY CONDITIONS HAY BETTER. You can't beat the conditioning or simplicity. Choose John Deere urethane roll (sicklebar and rotary models) or V-tine impeller conditioning (rotaries only). All adjustments are made easily...many without tools. So matching field conditions is easy.

FFA HAPPENINGS

Cedar Crest FFA Attends Area Leadership Conference

Cedar Crest FFA recently attended the 1993 area FFA Leadership Training Conference at the Cedar Crest Middle School.

The purpose of this event was to familiarize FFA participants with their duties and responsibilities as chapter members. The conference also included sessions on developing leadership skills.

The group was greeted by Kevin Bomgardner, county FFA president. As part of the program, Amanda Peak, state FFA reporter, spoke to the group about setting your goals in the FFA.

First-year FFA members from Lebanon and Schuylkill counties competed in a quiz contest. Participating students had to answer questions about the FFA.

Wendy Atkins, Shannon Heim, and Heather Orner competed for Cedar Crest. Wendy Atkins placed 1st, Heather Orner placed 3rd, and Shannon Heim placed 6th.

A meal was then served to everyone. After the meal, the FFA'ers were divided into groups. The groups were as follows: official dress and etiquette, supervised agricultural experience (SAE) and what are FFA membership advantages? While in the groups, members learned how they could improve both their chapter and themselves.

Other Cedar Crest participants were Scott Nolt, Danny Atkins, Matt Sensenig, Chris Kepley, Jeff Zimmerman, Stacy Krall, Bill Smeltzer, and Mr. Berkheiser, chapter advisor.

Cedar Crest FFA Participates At All-American

The tour included identifying the six different breeds of dairy cattle and showing how a cow is milked.

The All-American Show is one of the top three dairy shows in the country. The elementary students were then treated to milk, and at the conclusion of the tour were given coloring books.

The children went home with a new knowledge of the dairy industry and found out that the milk they drink doesn't really come from the store.

'94 PA FARM SHOW COLLECTOR MODELS

For the fourth consecutive year, limited edition collector models will be offered at the state farm show. The 78th show runs Saturday, Jan. 8th through Thursday, Jan. 13th. All models are approved by the Pennsylvania Farm Show Commission and are licensed by the Department of Agriculture.

For Ertl bank collectors, a 1923 Chevrolet ½ ton delivery wagon is available. 1248 will be made. Banks cannot be reserved, but will be sold in limited quantities daily with most going on sale on Saturday and Sunday. Price will be $18 each with tax.

For farm toy collectors, a 1/25th scale model of a FRICK steam traction engine has been approved. The cast metal models are individually serial numbered, include a dated farm show keystone emblem and are gift boxed. When the model is moved, a small belt drives the belt pulley, piston rod, and slider valve rod. They will sell for $56.60 plus tax.

Winross collector trucks will also be available and this year's model is designed to honor the state's dairy industry. It features the newly designed tanker that looks like a real farm pick-up tanker. Both Ford and Kenworth cabs are available and design assistance was provided by the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion employees. The photo shows preliminary models, additional graphics will be added to the cabs and the tankers. They will sell for $42.45 plus tax.

RESERVATION PRIVILEGES, AVOID POSSIBLE LONG LINES

FRICK steam tractors and Winross models can be reserved in advance, but they must be picked-up at the farm show during the scheduled farm show days. All models designed for collector use only, not for use as childrens toys.

For reservation instructions, send a Self Addressed Envelope to: 94 FARM SHOW MODELS, PO Box 553, Gap, Pa. 17527. Write promptly so you don't miss reservation deadlines.

10 A.M.. SATURDAY, DEC. 11, 1993

Ridge Fire Co. Pavilion, Along Rt. 23, Between Phoenixville, PA and Rt. 100

We Are 10 Miles West of Valley Forge

Bad Roads Date - Mon., Dec. 13

This collection was no accident. It filled 1,000 sq. ft. and weighs 6 ton. It was a dream, not a diversion. It was a faithful replica, not a repository. It is a charming example of country retail merchandising from 1880 to 1960. It will be on exhibition from 12 noon to 8 p.m. Fri., and from 8 A.M. Sat. Coca Cola collectors should attend. The collection was removed from a home in Atlanta, and Coke items were a special thing: Pendulum clock, many tin signs of all periods, early store cooler, porcelain Coke signs, hanging Coke sign and paper bag holder, grill & soda fountain menu boards, blue Coke paper weight, satin glass Coke pin box, many Coke trays, Coke bottle thermometer, red plastic Coke radio, Coke syrup keg, Coke elec. clocks. MAY SELL COKE ITEMS IN A SEPARATE ROOM. Toy Coke trucks, collection of Coke bottles & cans, steel craft Coke truck, tin Coke arrow, two Coca-Cola Vienna art plates and much more. We have at least 100 good strong lots of vintage Coke adv., plus another 100 lots of collectibles. We will sell the best half at 12 noon. We judge the entire collection to contain 1,000 pcs. in all. The auction will last 6 to 8 hours, even though many smaller items will be sold in groups. There is a considerable sub-collection of tobacco signs, tins, lighters, lunch boxes, tags & jars - over 200 items in that category, for sure. Patent medicines are represented. Embossed Lone Ranger Merita Bread sign. Framed Permit cigar sign on card. Cigarette coin op trade stimulator. You will find an exciting selection of candy cases, counters, brand name display cases - some with samples intact. A goodly number of these are glass and can be used to any purpose in your displays. A few have curved glass. Sunny Side washer sign. Devil tobacco plug cutter, old Virginia cherroots, tin store box. Putnam & Diamond Dye cabinets, Black Draught display w/two dispensers. Rowe coin op cigarette machine. Umbrella floor model enclosed display. Several Royal Crown bottle signs. An assortment of antique clocks, incl. time clocks. Biscuit tins, boxes & show cases. Candy molds, pro-phy-lac-tic tooth brush display, various scales. Store counter w/10 window display front. Coin dispenser & changer. Zeno coin op gum machine. Oak ribbon case, 4 sided revolving hdw. cabinet. Adams gum machine, Red Top gum machine, chlorophyll gum ball machine, peanut dispenser plus a half dozen more machines & dispensers. Tin Dutchess Trousers sign. Bull of the woods sign. Remington Plu knife display, label dispenser, Shapleigh's diamond edge knife display, cuff & collar display in case, Edison phono. Genco razor display, machinists chart, really neat hanging adv. display holder for eye glasses. Several Coats spool cabinets, one w/tambour door, stacking oak record file, Winchester 22 pump and Winchester mod. 67-A 22. Barber pole in electrified case. Concave tin comfy slippers sign. Sauer's extracts cabinet. Men's brighton leg garters display. Ingersoll watch display, Boyce needle display, Arbuckles coffee sign. Early oak National Cash register. Clockwork fly chaser, 2 wheel coffee grinder. IT MAY BE NECESSARY TO SELL IN 2 AUCTION RINGS.

Queen Bee whiskey (Stimulator), Freihofers baked goods case, stereoscope machine, Waterman's pen display case, McCaskey oak bill file, Mail Pouch thermometer. Robeson knife display, clock adv. star brand shoes, curved barber shop sign. pr. of rev. painted glass shoe signs in copper frames. Oak wall telephone. 6 ice cream chairs & table "Normandy" coin op. scale by National Automatic Machine Co. Dozens of BEER TRAYS TO CHOOSE FROM. Oak roll top desk. brass national cash register #313. National hunter coin op gun game. Pinball mach. Hudgepahl self framed tin beer sign. Coca-Cola chewing gum canister. Tin Budweiser sign. Oak ice box, postal telegraph sign. Birchola syrup vendor. Hires syrup vendor. Hires root beer "Health & Cheer" pitcher, Nugrape dispenser. Orange Crush dispenser. Stella #12748 steel disc music box pat. 1897. Chautauqua Roller Organ. Regina wall mount music box #32292.

This is far & away the best country store auction we have ever sold, in spite of the fact that dust & dampness have caused damage in some cases. Many items will require extensive cleaning.

FEEDING LAYING HEN RATIONS FORMULATED WITH STOCHASTIC NONLINEAR PROGRAMMING

W. B. Roush, Ph.D.
Associate Professor
Poultry Science

The lack of nutrient consistency in livestock feeds adversely affects animal performance.

One of the primary sources of this lack of consistency is the variability associated with the nutrient content of feed ingredients. As a decision tool, linear programming, with a nutrient adjustment (margin of safety), is commonly used to formulate feeds to compensate for nutrient variability.

However, variability is nonlinear. A basic assumption about linear programming is that the variables must be linear. As a result, linear programming is an inefficient approach to solving nonlinear problems.

Stochastic nonlinear programming has been introduced as a feed formulation approach which incorporates nutrient variability of ingredients into the computer formulation process. The result is a lower-cost ration which more closely approximates the requested probability of meeting the animal's requirements.

Broiler feeding trials have shown that birds fed diets formulated by stochastic and linear programming treatments performed the same with the stochastic nonlinear rations being more profitable due to lower feed costs.

How do laying hens perform when they are fed rations formulated by a stochastic nonlinear program? To examine this, laying hen performance was compared using stochastic nonlinear and linear programming adjusted for a margin of safety feed formulation. Four hundred eighty Dekalb XL laying hens were fed one of four experimental rations from 19 until 67 weeks of age. The first ration (LPMS69) was formulated by linear programming with a margin of safety. The LPMS69 ration guaranteed the requirements of methionine, lysine, calcium, and phosphorus at 69 percent of the time. The second ration, LPMS90, was similar, except that calcium and phosphorus were guaranteed at 90 percent.

The STCH69 ration was formulated by a stochastic program which considered the variances and guaranteed requirements of methionine, lysine, calcium, and phosphorus at 69 percent of the time. The fourth ration, STCH90 was similar to STCH69, but guaranteed calcium and phosphorus at 90 percent.

Among treatments of the same probability level, stochastic rations cost less per ton than linear program rations. Levels of methionine, lysine, calcium and phosphorus were higher in the experimental rations formulated by linear programming. It was this overestimation of nutrient levels, in comparison to stochastic programming, which resulted in higher feed costs for birds fed rations formulated by linear programming (for example, LPMS69 cost $.70/metric ton more than STCH69).

Egg production, calculated as both hen-day and hen-housed percentage, was not significantly different among treatments. Feed conversion differences per dozen eggs, and cumulative percent mortality, were also not significantly different. Measures of egg quality, such as egg weight and shell percentage, were not significantly different.

Overall, there were no differences in production performance when comparing stochastic versus linear program treatments at the same requested probability level. There were also no performance differences when comparing the linear programming and stochastic programming treatments at different probability levels. There was apparently little benefit of increasing the nutrient probability from 69 to 90 percent.

For example, increasing the linear program and stochastic guarantee from 69 to 90 percent increased the cost per metric ton by $2.01 and $1.30, respectively. This increased cost would be inefficient as performance was not improved.

When comparing formulation methods, birds fed stochastic rations produced eggs less expensively than those fed linear program rations. Birds fed diets formulated with the same method, but at different probability levels, performed similarly.

Developments in computer systems and software have made use of stochastic feed formulation practical. Because of the ability of stochastic programming to incorporate variance (variability in the nutrient content of ingredients) directly into feed formulation in a nonlinear manner, rations can more accurately meet requested nutrient requirements.

Many segments of the animal industry could benefit from using stochastic feed formulation. In addition to formulating rations which cost less, improvements in final feed consistency have been noticed. Future research may also indicate the effect of stochastic programming on the amount of nutrient excreted by birds in the manure. These findings should impact the issues of nutrient waste management and water quality.

Pest Management Publication Available

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — For suggestions on controlling turfgrass pests, homeowners and turfgrass managers can consult "Developing an Integrated Turfgrass Pest Management Program," a newly released publication from Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Nearly every lawn, golf course, athletic field, or institutional ground harbors some weeds, diseases, insects, or other pests," said Dr. Peter Landschoot, assistant professor of turfgrass science in the college, and author of the publication. "It's only when pest populations build to sufficient levels to cause intolerable damage that they need to be controlled."

Keeping pest damage at tolerable levels is the goal of integrated pest management (IPM) programs, which are gaining popularity in the turfgrass industry. An IPM program uses all suitable control techniques to manage pest populations with minimal impact on people and the environment.

"It's important to understand that IPM is not pesticide-free," said Landschoot. "But a successful IPM program can result in a more efficient use of pesticides, which usually means a reduction in pesticide use.

"Tolerable levels of pest damage — called pest-response threshold levels — are determined by the number of pests or the amount of pest damage that can be sustained before an unacceptable amount of damage occurs," said Landschoot. "Threshold levels vary from site to site and are based on the user's needs and expectations."

Golf putting greens, for example, have a low pest-response threshold level because they must be smooth and blemish-free. Disease injury or weeds can mar the surface and interfere with the roll of the ball. Golf course fairways have much higher threshold levels because a smooth surface is not as important.

"The keystone of an IPM program is frequent, careful monitoring of pest activity," said Landschoot. "Pests that are detected early can be controlled before the threshold level is exceeded."

Beef Briefs

John Comerford

Penn State Beef Specialist

IT'S THAT TIME AGAIN

The Halloween weekend was a stark reminder in central and western Pennsylvania of what is to come in the next few months.

Winter feeding of beef cows started early this year, so it may cause feed supplies to be tight before we see grass again. There are a few things that you may consider to help keep costs down and stretch feed supplies.

A recent trial conducted by Dr. Lowell Wilson here at Penn State has shown the value of corn crop residue and stockpiled grass pastures as a source of cow feed in the late fall and early winter. The nutritional plane of most spring-calving beef cows is at its lowest during November and early December (the first and second trimesters of pregnancy.)

A good maintenance ration will be sufficient for most cows during this time. Crop residues and stockpiled pastures are ideally suited for these needs in mature cows. The protein available may be a bit low for younger, growing cows. In Wilson's study, the value of grazed corn crop residue and stockpiled grass reached $50-$60 per acre compared to confinement feeding of hay, and no differences in calf birth weight, calf vigor, or calving ease were detected among cows grazing stockpiled grass, corn fields plus grass, or confinement fed hay.

The key to the use of these feeds is rotational grazing. If allowed complete access, cows will eat the best first a save the rest for later. This will reduce the grazing days that are available. Allow about ¼ acre of stalks or stockpiled grass per animal, and rotate them until they have cleaned it up.

Secondly, sort cows that need it. While most cows can handle a maintenance ration in early winter, there are some cows that will need to add some condition before winter and as they approach calving. This will be particularly true of younger cows.

The best time to sort them is when they are pregnancy checked in the fall. Condition of the cow at that time can be determined by visual inspection and by simply running your hand over the back and ribs of the cow. The standard is that it is OK to see the last two ribs, but some condition needs to be added if they show more ribs or if the vertebra down the back are easily seen and felt.

I have an excellent video program on condition scoring of cows if you would like to borrow it. Simply call your county agent and have them contact me.

Finally, feed what they need. That sounds simple enough, but more costly mistakes are made in winter feeding than at any other time. The determining factors for needs are the weight of the cow, the condition (if weight needs to be added), the cow's age, and how close to calving they are. Heavier cows need more feed to maintain themselves, thinner cows need more energy, younger cows will need more protein, and both energy and protein needs will go up just prior and after calving.

Again, in early winter, most cows will do fine on a maintenance program of crop residues, stockpiled grass, or lower quality hays. The mistake is often made of using protein values of winter feeds to determine feed quantity and quality.

In truth, there is only a 60-90 day period during the year when protein may be limiting in most beef cow feed. That is during early lactation. For the next few months, protein is usually not a problem with beef cows. Most grass hays will have enough, and any legume in the hay will certainly make the feed high enough in protein.

The shortage, if any, will be in energy. It is energy that will add or maintain condition in cows. Shortages of energy do occur in some hay. This is why marginal hay (too mature, rained on, etc.) should be tested to see if supplemental energy is needed. Corn is usually the cheapest source of energy to supplement these cows.

After determining needs, some other things may need to be accounted for. This may include bale weights, how the hay was stored, how often it is fed, and what kind of feeder is used. It does not matter how much hay is offered to the cows; the only thing that counts is how much of it they eat.

Bale weight of large round bales is often overestimated, so be conservative. Cows will usually eat about two percent of their body weight in dry matter daily, so a 1,000-pound bale stored inside or covered will feed about 40 average cows, but an 800-pound bale will only feed 32. In the same manner, bales stored outside will have about 30 percent of the hay refused, so, compared to the covered bale, that 1,000-pound bale has only about 700 pounds of actual feed in it.

Finally, feeders do make a difference. The typical ring feeder will have about a four percent waste in a single-day feeding, but no feeder at all may result in up to a 50 percent waste.

The major feed cost for keeping beef cows will occur in the next 4-5 months. A close look at the cows, the feed, and how they are fed can help save some money for you.

Common Sense.

When Jim and Sandy Bailey of Spring Grove, PA, built their first 85,000 bird layer house in 1981, they wisely chose Big Dutchman and Hershey Equipment. Through the years, their records ranked among the best in the industry.

Farmer-Dealer Input Leads To System Development

GOLDEN VALLEY, Minn. — The next generation of seed handling systems was unveiled by Northrup King Co. at the American Soybean Association (ASA) National Expo in Denver.

Northrup King's new Load & Go™ Seed Handling System for corn and soybean seed features specially-engineered durable plastic boxes which make filling planter boxes easier and quicker, and allows growers to cover more acres per day.

"This system enables growers to go straight from the dealer to the field without taking the intermediate step of loading a poly bag into a gravity wagon," said Jack Bernens, Northrup King corn product manager. "No one has ever packaged seed like this before."

The Load & Go system, in development for more than two years, originated with five Iowa farmer-dealers, their Northrup King district manager Lloyd Bigler, and Jim Berquam, Northrup King plant manager at Waterloo, Iowa.

"We were looking for a safer, easier way to handle large quantities of seed to replace the poly bags," Bigler said. The group shared their ideas with Northrup King Corn Product Manager Jack Bernens, who worked with container manufacturers to transform the concept into blueprints and a prototype.

The centerpiece of the Load & Go system is the Q-Bit™ container, an injection-molded polyethylene bin manufactured in two sizes from durable, recyclable plastic. One Q-Bit container is the equivalent of 30 bags of seed corn or 40 bags of soybeans. When full, the Q-Bit container weighs about 2,000 pounds and can be loaded between the wheel wells of a full-size pickup truck box. Seeds can then be discharged from the container using a simple hose connection or belt conveyors, specially designed augers, or pneumatic air transfer systems to fill planters or drills.

Rodent-proof, moisture-resistant and stackable, the patented design of the Q-Bit container features a sliding gate for unloading the container from the side or bottom, and regulating the flow similar to a gravity box. A slanted floor ensures that beans or corn empty out, and smooth inner walls keep seeds from becoming trapped. Before shipment, the top of each container, as well as the slide gate, is sealed to guarantee varietal purity. The Q-Bit container also includes a built-in, four-way pallet for lifting the box with a fork-lift, a retro-fitted three-point hitch, or an adapted front-end loader. When empty, the containers can be collapsed in half for storage and dealer return.

The popularity of large poly bags — one of every 10 Midwestern soybean farmers has switched to bulk soybean purchases in the past five years — has presented a disposal problem.

"Every year, our industry needs to find a way to get rid of about 90 million soybean and seed corn bags," Bernens said. "The Q-Bit container addresses this problem with a 15-20 year life expectancy. That's five to seven times longer than the poly sacks."

Prototypes of the new seed handling system were tested this season on Iowa and Minnesota farms. For example, Jerry Ostrander and his son, Jay, used the prototypes to plant soybeans on their Jefferson, Iowa farm this spring.

"We planted 1,800 acres of corn and soybeans this year, and with the wet spring, we didn't have a lot of time to get the crop in," Jerry Ostrander said. "On a normal day, we go through 150 to 200 50-pound seed bags. The Load & Go system really helped speed up planting."

Program Aims To Unearth Secrets Of Roots

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Roots have been in the dark for too long, said the leader of a team of Penn State scientists working to unearth the secrets of roots.

"They're used for everything from food to plastics," said Dr. Hector Flores, associate professor of plant pathology and biotechnology in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "We owe it to ourselves to learn more about how they work."

Flores heads Penn State's Root Biology Group, an interdisciplinary research and training program supported by a $1.2 million grant from the Collaborative Research Plant Biology Program sponsored by the Department of Energy, the National Science Foundation, and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Their underground environment makes roots difficult to study. "Most people don't think about roots, because it's hard to visualize something you can't see," Flores said. "But a better understanding of root biology could enable scientists to help plants withstand drought or flood. It could even lead to more nutritious foods."

Increased understanding of roots also could benefit human health. "Chemicals from the roots of the Chinese cucumber plant are a promising treatment for AIDS victims," Flores said. "Many other plants produce medicinal compounds, but we're just beginning to explore their potential. Biotechnology may be able to enhance this ability.

"We know so little about the thousands of compounds roots make that it is no exaggeration to suspect there may be hundreds of new medicines and other beneficial substances in roots."

The program unites 23 faculty members from nine academic departments in the Colleges of Agricultural Sciences and Engineering and the Eberly College of Science. The group includes physiologists, biochemists, molecular biologists, computer scientists, and engineers. "This diversity allows us to study roots from many perspectives," said Flores. "We all benefit from the collaboration."

Flores and others spent a year recruiting the best possible graduate and postdoctoral fellows and developing new courses and workshops for the program. During the next five years, the team will pursue research projects while training six graduate students and six postdoctoral fellows in the latest root biology techniques. Also offered will be an intensive residential summer program for promising undergraduates.

Flores has developed techniques that enable root cells to mass-produce chemicals. "Seedlings infected with certain bacteria enter a state of perpetual growth," Flores said. "Because they increase their size several thousand times in a single month, these modified roots can act as factories to mass-produce pharmaceuticals and other chemicals."

Other scientists in the Root Biology Group are examining the growth, development, architecture and function of roots in plants and the environment. Others study the relationship between roots and soil organisms, detailing the interactions between roots and bacteria, mycorrhizal fungi, and insects.

Flores hopes the program will change the way roots are grown, used, and even thought about. "Right now, roots remain a scientific black box," he said. "But we're planning to shine a little light on them."

Agriculturalists To Report On Recent China Visit

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Six agriculturalists will be at an On-Farm Biogas Production Conference to report on their recent trip to China to study small and medium-scale digesters to be held on December 8th, at 9:30 a.m. at Yoder's Restaurant, New Holland.

Their study took a look at Chinese technology to see what might be transferrable to Pennsylvania conditions. The project was sponsored by the USDA Office of International Development, the Center for Rural Pennsylvania, local conservation districts, the Pennsylvania Pork Producers, and local banks.

The six-member team consisted of Harlan Keener, a swine producer; Dr. Richard Fite, veterinary medical officer; Dr. Robert Graves, agricultural engineer professor; Gerald Heistand, Chesapeake Bay technician; Virgil Gutshall, vo ag teacher and swine producer; and James Kauffman, poultry producer.

One of the goals of this conference is to determine what interest exists for the future of biogas development in Pennsylvania. Representatives for various national, state, and loocal agencies will be on hand to discuss their viewpoints on biogas digester development in Pennsylvania. On a second panel, owners and designers of large scale biogas digesters will be on hand to give their views and report on their experiences.

A majority of China's 4.9 million digesters are small in size, whereas most of Pennsylvania's digesters are large. The main purpose for installing digesters is different in the two countries, and the environmental situation is different. However, both countries are looking to get energy from manure and at the same time help solve environmental problems.

Sponsors of this conference are Penn State Cooperative Extension, Lancaster County Conservation District, and Center for Rural Pennsylvania. They hope to come away with a good indication of whether more resources need to be funnelled into digestion of animal manures.

Registration should be made by November 30. More information about biogas digestion or the conference can be obtained from the Lancaster County Conservation District at (717) 299-5361.

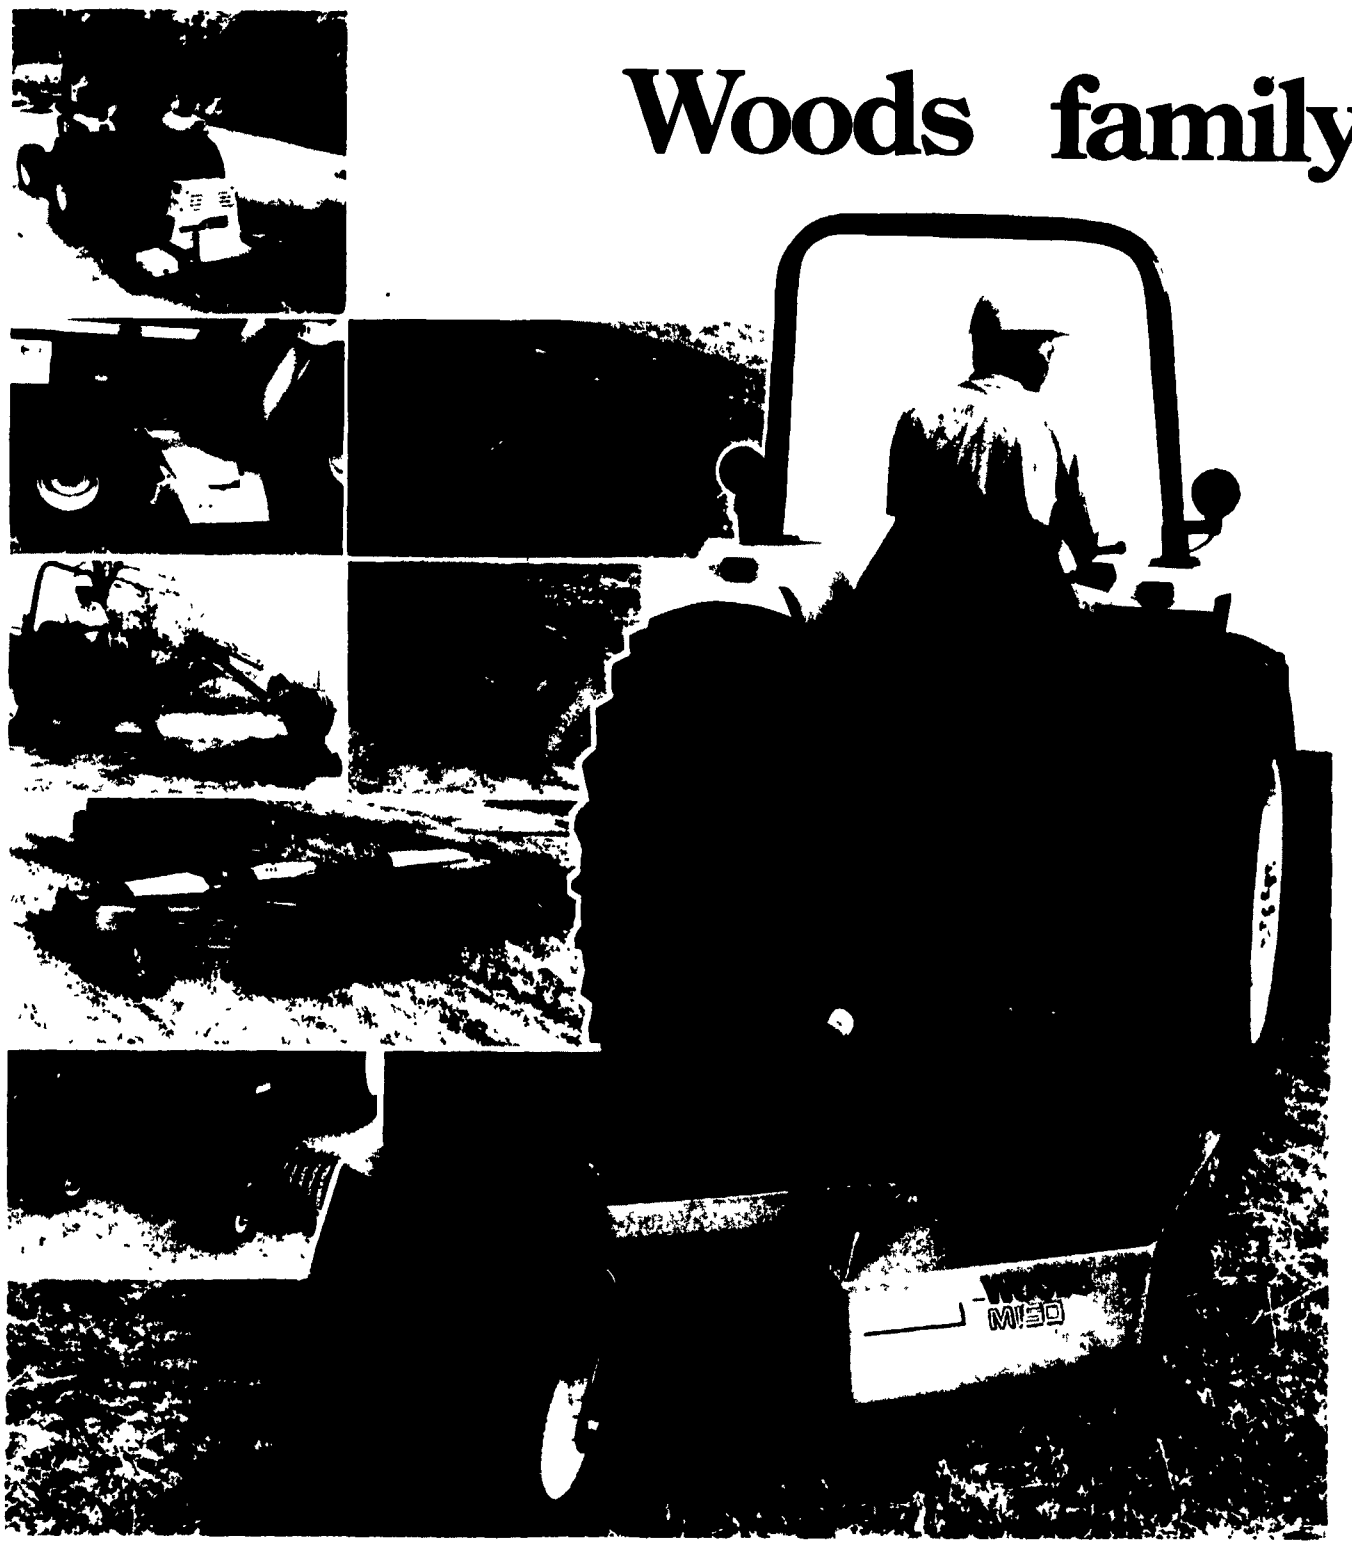
WOODS

Woods family tree



Today's Woods line has branched out to include over 50 proven products... all rooted in the same tradition of innovation, quality, value and service that began when we introduced the first tractor powered rotary mower in 1947.

Engineered and manufactured at our plant in northern Illinois, Woods mowers, cutters, scraper blades, backhoes and other specialty products are known for superior performance and rugged reliability.

They're the first choice of commercial users, farmers and home owners when quality, value and service count most.

Clay Equipment Corporation has purchased the Better-Bilt product line from Waste Controls Inc. of Galva, Ill. The Better-Bilt product line includes a complete line of liquid manure tanks and pumps which are marketed throughout the United States.

Take-Off Combines Affordability, Efficiency

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The Vac•Trol milking unit remover, or take-off, from Alfa Laval Agri is designed to give dairy operators the option of upgrading their dairies in an affordable and reliable manner.

The Vac•Trol milking unit remover, or take-off, from Alfa Laval Agri is designed to give dairy operators the option of upgrading their dairies in an affordable and reliable manner.

The Vac•Trol Take-Off increases a dairy's milking efficiency — saving time, labor, and providing faster and more thorough milking. However, unlike most other take-offs on the market, Vac•Trol offers dairymen these benefits without requiring a substantial financial commitment.

Only the Vac•Trol vacuum-operated take-off allows dairymen to upgrade their dairies at their own pace. An entire operation may be outfitted with the Vac•Trol Take-Off or just a few may be installed to determine how efficiency is improved. Units may be added at any time to meet growth needs or to maintain budgets.

In addition to being affordable, Vac•Trol is built for high performance. It features a proven, flow-sensor design that accurately measures milk flow, as well as a vacuum decay and positive vacuum shut-off which help protect a cow from teat impact injuries.

Vac•Trol is made from durable, molded components and has a simple, streamlined design which makes it easy to clean and service. The Vac•Trol Take-Off is offered exclusively through Alfa Laval Agri's network of more than 300 independent Alfa Laval Agri dealers.

Clay Purchases Better-Bilt Line

CEDAR FALLS, Iowa — Clay Equipment Corporation has purchased the Better-Bilt product line from Waste Controls Inc. of Galva, Ill.

The purchase was effective October 15, 1993, according to Leonard Hare, chairman of the board and CEO of Clay Equipment Corporation.

Better-Bilt will be maintained as a division of Clay Equipment. The production of all Better-Bilt parts and new equipment will be manufactured at the Clay Cedar Falls plant. The Better-Bilt name and product line will continue and shipments of whole goods and parts will be uninterrupted, according to Hare.

For more information, contact Jerry R. Youde, Advertising and Public Relations Manager, Clay Equipment Corporation, Cedar Falls, IA 50613, (319) 268-0473.

System Provides Extra Cooling

LANSING, Mich. — Aerotech, Inc. offers the Cold Front™ system for poultry and swine producers and greenhouse growers who want the extra cooling and many additional benefits of evaporative cooling at a cost that's competitive with less-effective means of cooling.

The Cold Front system features tunnel ventilation, Munters® Mi-T-Cool evaporative cooling pads and Aerotech Grower® fans. These components form a system that is more effective than misting or spray-on-pad systems, yet is similar in cost.

The Cold Front cooling system utilizes high airflow velocity and the benefits of tunnel ventilation to produce dramatic "wind-chill" cooling while keeping buildings and litter dry. Death losses from heat stress can be effectively stopped under most conditions.

Mi-T-Cool pads with the Mi-T-edge™ PVC coating are designed to provide 8-12° F temperature reduction and high airflow while protecting the cellulose pad for long life and low maintenance.

For more information, contact Aerotech, Inc., 929 Terminal Road, Lansing, MI 48906, (800) 227-AERO or (517) 323-2930.

Company Releases 10 New Hybrids

LANDISVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Hoffman Seeds, Inc. has added 10 hybrids to its lineup of Funk's G® brand hybrids. These new performers ranging in maturity from 75 days to 118 days represent the product of the extensive research efforts conducted by Ciba Seeds.

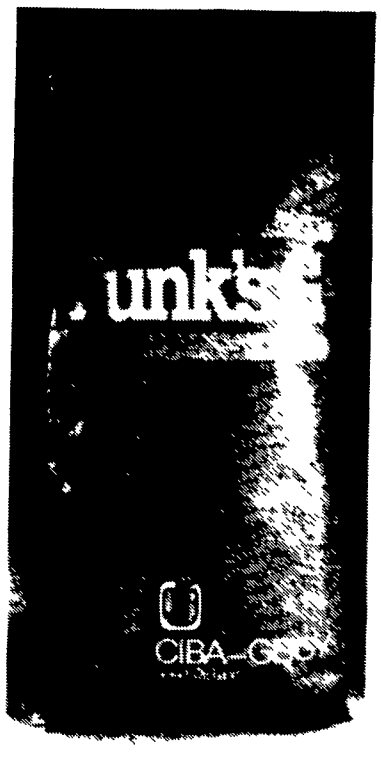
A 75 day-hybrid, 4024 provides farmers with high yields despite its early maturity. Plants are healthy with good stalks, intactness, and tip fill.

4043 performs equally well in Group 0 and Group 1 areas. It responds well to high plant populations, while maintaining low barren plant percentages. A 79-day hybrid, 4043 is recommended for grain or silage and adapts well to all soil types.

Formerly EXP 1079X, 4172 was the leading performer in 1992 Cornell early maturity trials both for yield and standability. It produced an average yield that was 16 Bu/A above the mean. This 90-day hybrid performs best in Group 1 and Group 2 maturity areas, while providing farmers with excellent drought tolerance.

Recommended for early planting, 4214 delivers good test weight and grain quality. It produces big yields with good ear retention and fast drydown. This 93-day hybrid also delivers an excellent silage crop.

4273, a 98-day hybrid, offer high yields and good grain test weights. It flowers and black layers early. Recommended for early planting, 4273 offers some southern corn leaf blight resistance.



Hoffman Seeds, Inc. has added 10 hybrids to its lineup of Funk's G® brand hybrids. These new performers ranging in maturity from 75 days to 118 days represent the product of the extensive research efforts conducted by Ciba Seeds.

4394 was the top performer in 1992 Group 3 REP trials both for grain and silage. It can be used as a silage hybrid in mid Group 2 to mid Group 4 areas. Its best performance, however, is in mid Group 3 to mid Group 4 maturity areas. A 105-day hybrid, 4394 offers good disease tolerance including northern corn leaf blight and second brood European corn borer.

In 1992, 4473 produced 196 bushel/acre in Lancaster County, Pa. and 207 bushel/acre in Seaford County, Del. It harvests easily with fast drydown and high test weights. This 112-day hybrid delivers high TDN/A when used for silage.

EXP 5133X is a 114-day hybrid that offers outstanding disease resistance including northern and southern corn leaf blight, common rust, and ear smut. Its performance is similar to 4543, but with higher yields and better drydown.

A 118-day hybrid, 4672 produces good yields across a wide variety of yield environments. Stalk quality is superior with excellent drought tolerance. Plants are tall with medium ear height placement.

For more information on any of these new hybrids, call your local Hoffman Seeds sales representative or call Hoffman Seeds toll free at (800) 776-7929.

White Oak Mills Fills Position

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lanc. Co.) — White Oak Mills, a supplier of swine, dairy and beef feeds, recently filled its new dairy sales and service representative position with LaVern Martin of East Earl. Representing White Oak's dairy department, he will serve Lancaster, Lebanon, and Berks counties.

For the past two years, he worked as a grain receiver in the company's mill.

Growing up on a 125-head dairy farm, Martin, since his youth, has worked in the agribusiness field. Working at Custom Combining and Agri-King Inc., he also was employed by UPS and Dove Christian Fellowship.

A 1976 graduate of Garden Spot High School, Martin was an active member with FFA, having received the Star Greenhand, Star Chapter Farmer, Star Red Rose, and Star Keystone degrees and having held chapter and county president positions.

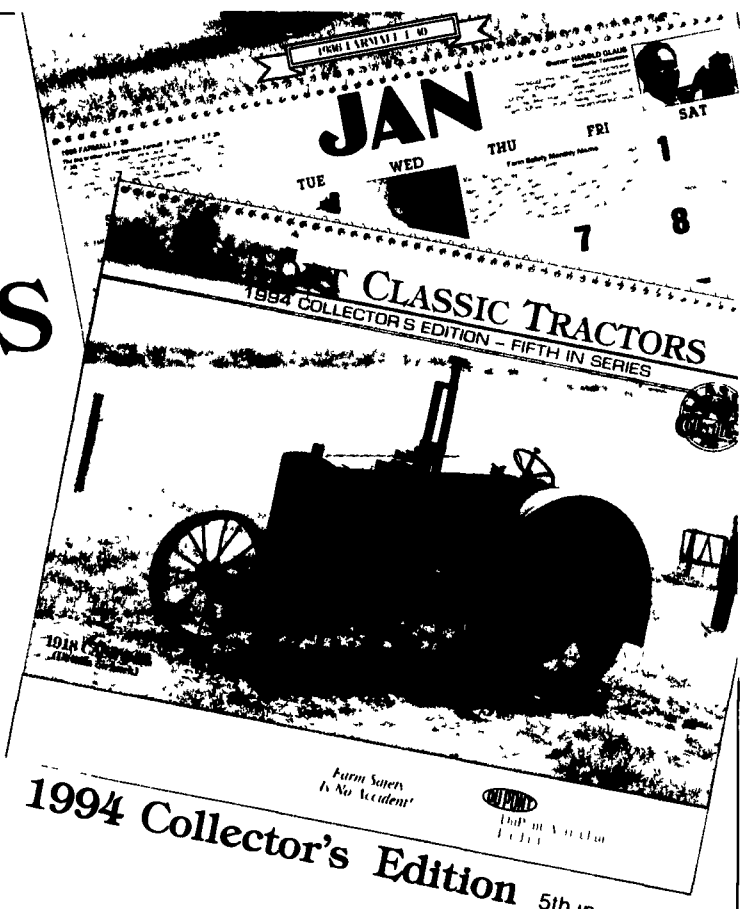
THE 1994 CLASSIC TRACTOR CALENDARS ARE HERE!



The DuPont Classic Tractor Calendars have been a hit for years and this year's version is no exception!

Featuring 15 beautifully restored farm tractors from 10 states and Canada, including a 1918 Case 9-18 on the front cover, and a 1940 Farmall M (with the first commercially built no-till planter) on the back cover. Each month a different, full color beauty will be highlighted, starting in December 1993 with a 1915 Aultman Taylor. Each month thereafter, from January through December 1994, another beautifully restored tractor will be featured. Check out the 1936 Farmall F-30, then the others, that include: 1937 John Deere 62, 1937 Minneapolis-Moline, 1928 Huber, 1914 Allis-Chalmers, 1954 John Deere 60, 1932 Eagle, 1930 Baker, 1930 Wallis, 1922 Imperial, 1928 Fordson, and 1937 Allis-Chalmers. A super collection of farm power from the past.

CLASSIC CALENDAR. Full color, full page photographs of 15 antique tractors. The 14" x 22" calendar date page has space for writing notes and features important farm safety tips each month. Makes a beautiful gift. Only $6.95.

POTENT POSTER. This striking full color, 20" x 30" poster highlights the Classic Tractors, and their owners. Suitable for framing, the 1994 poster is a potent trip down memory lane. Only $4.95.

VALUABLE VIDEO. Owners tell their tractor's story, described in detail, in this hour-long, professionally produced valuable video (VHS). All ages will be entertained and educated watching their owners start and drive their tractors. Only $19.95.

SPECIAL SAVINGS. You can save by ordering a complete set – calendar, poster and video. Only $28.00, plus $2.50 postage & handling. A special savings of $8.85 if ordered individually.

Be Careful Selling Timber

Dr. Robert S. Hansen
Extension Forester

TOWANDA (Bradford Co.) — The price of standing timber right now is high and that is reflected in the present high demand for quality hardwood lumber. When the price of lumber is high the forest landowner is more likely to be approached by a variety of timber buyers.

At this point the forest landowner should be careful in deciding whether or not to sell timber. When the price is high and if the landowner has timber that needs to be cut, it is a good time to sell. One never knows what will happen to the timber market from one month to the next.

Before selling timber, the landowner should get in touch with his or her forester. If the landowner doesn't have a consulting forester he or she has been working with, it is time to find one. A good professional forester can supply the landowner with the necessary information before deciding to sell. If the forester determines that there are trees that can be sold, he or she can proceed with putting together a viable timber sale.

A forester can be of great value to the landowner and is well worth the investment. A forester will mark those trees for cutting that need to be removed to improve the vigor of the forest. This is in contrast to the common practice of "diameter-limit" cutting which removes all trees above a given size and reduces the overall productivity of the future forest.

The forester will prepare a contract that looks after the interests of both buyer and seller and the forester is available to the landowner to see that the contract is fulfilled after the timber is sold and during harvest operations. The forester will advertise the timber sale to numerous buyers and, by placing the timber on the open market, the price of the timber to the landowner often increases. This increase will, in almost all cases, more than pay the fee the forester charges.

As an example, a landowner in Bradford County was offered $13,000 for his timber. Another potential buyer offered him in excess of $30,000 for the same timber. By offering the timber to more potential buyers, the free-market system comes into play and, with this competition, the price given the landowner increases.

In summary, when timber prices are high, the landowner should be extra careful before selling timber and then, when the decision is made, the landowner, for his or her own benefit, should do it right. Obtain the services of a good professional forester. The landowner will benefit from it.

Choose The Right Forages

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Dairy calves and heifers shouldn't eat just any forage, said a dairy nutrition expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"It would be great to have one high-quality forage that meets the nutritional needs of each type of animal on a farm," said Dr. A. Jud Heinrichs, associate professor of dairy science. "But no such forage exists. Some forage is poorly suited for young cows because of quality, species, or the way it was harvested and stored."

Grain is more important than forage for proper calf nutrition and rumen development. "But feeding small amounts of forage is fine if calves eat adequate amounts of grain first," Heinrichs said.

Long hay is the forage most often recommended for calves. "Hay is better than ensiled forages because calves eat just a small amount of forage each day," Heinrichs said. "They prefer hay from second or later cuttings."

Calves find hay more palatable than silage. "Most silage begins to heat and grow mold four to eight hours after being placed in the feed bunk," said Heinrichs. "Calves usually won't eat much because mold and heat make the silage taste bad, even if the initial forage was acceptable."

Calves can eat any legume hay that is not too stemmy and coarse. Grass or grass legume mixed hay is often finer than others, with fewer stems and weeds. "As rule of thumb, grab a handful of hay and squeeze it hard," Heinrichs said. "If it feels soft, calves probably will accept it. If it's stemmy and leaves slivers in your hand, it may be too coarse."

Weaned calves that eat four to six pounds of grain per day can eat liberal amounts of forage. "Many producers feed dry hay to weaned calves," said Heinrichs. "But almost any forage is nutritionally acceptable if it fits a herd's feeding management plan."

Total mixed rations with corn silage and haylage help maintain balanced rations and heifer growth. "The quality of forage fed to rapidly growing young heifers must be good to excellent," Heinrichs said. "Young heifers can consume limited amounts of corn silage with supplements. It works best when fed at 50 percent or less of the forage dry matter."

Pasture should not be a major part of a young calf's forage program. "Young heifers usually can't get enough pasture dry matter, even in the spring when lush pasture is available," said Heinrichs. "In addition, flies and parasites can be a major concern with very young heifers on pastures."

Forage quality is less important for heifers older than 12 months, as it is properly supplemented. "Older heifers require fewer nutrients and have larger rumens, so they can be fed lower quality forages than most other animals on a farm," Heinrichs said.

"Pasture works exceptionally well for yearling heifers, as long as enough is available and supplements deliver any necessary protein, vitamins or minerals. Haylage, hay, or limited amounts of corn silage also work well. Yearling heifers also can use many by-products in their diet."

Shown: Surge Alamo Belt-Drive 2800 Pump Package Complete With L-3 Oiler

Part or parcel... you'll save money with a Surge Alamo belt-drive vacuum pump.

Buy only the capacity you need now and expand your CFM as your requirements change. The Surge Alamo Vaccum Pump model 1400 PLUS produces 50 CFM (ASME) and can be converted to a model 2200 PLUS that delivers 78 CFM, or a model 2800 rated at 100 CFM by changing the motor and belt-drive package. Muffler and air filter are optional equipment.

Whichever model you choose, with these belt-drive pumps, you get quiet, smooth-running performance at a lower cost per CFM. That's Alamo reliability and Surge value.

For larger capacity vacuum systems, Surge Alamo direct-drive vacuum pumps offer CFM output ranging from 82 to 200 (ASME). Whatever size milking system you have, we can supply the proper vacuum system components.

Two sizes to fit your vacuum system and your budget!

COMMANDER® 1.5 K

The SURGE COMMANDER 1.5K vacuum regulator is designed to work with vacuum pumps that have capacities of up to 53 CFM (1500 L/min.) ASME. Its high degree of sensitivity and accuracy, combined with simplified maintenance, make it an ideal replacement for older vacuum controls.

The COMMANDER 1.5 K is an economical way to improve your vacuum system's performance and reduce your service requirements.

COMMANDER® 5 K

The SURGE COMMANDER 5 K vacuum regulator is designed to work with vacuum pumps that produce up to 178 CFM (5000 L/min.) ASME.

Precise control, dependable operation and simplified service are reasons enough to replace your old vacuum control. You can spend a lot more money and not surpass the COMMANDER 5K's performance.

Reproduction A Challenging Task On Farms

MADISON, Wis. — Efficient herd reproduction is a significant problem for most dairy producers, according to a survey taken at the 1993 World Dairy Expo.

Fifty-eight percent of the producers surveyed said good reproduction is "extremely challenging" to achieve, while the remaining 42 percent rated it "somewhat challenging."

The survey was conducted at a presentation intended to help producers improve dairy herd reproduction. "Targeted Breeding™: New Progress in Dairy Reproduction," was sponsored by The Upjohn Company. The Michigan-based pharmaceutical manufacturer recently introduced Targeted Breeding, which incorporates Lutalyse® Sterile Solution, a prostaglandin product, to help get cows bred more efficiently.

Austin Belschner, DVM, MS, technical services representative for Upjohn, detailed how Targeted Breeding works. "The program starts by determining a voluntary waiting period after calving — usually 45 to 60 days — during which cows are allowed to recover from calving and are not bred," said Belschner.

He said that 17 days before the end of that period, a cow receives her first 5-mL shot of Lutalyse as a "set up" for estrus. Two weeks later, another shot is given, which should bring the cow into estrus, ready to breed at the end of the voluntary waiting period. Heat detection and breeding follow; if not detected in heat, another shot is given two weeks later and, if still not detected, the cow is appointment-bred at 80 hours post-injection. Examinations to detect open and pregnant cows are performed by a veterinarian 33 to 40 days after insemination.

Belschner said the system allows for every cow in the herd to be inseminated within 21 days after the voluntary waiting period.

Gordon Jones, DVM, a dairy practitioner from Oconto Falls, Wis., explained how Targeted Breeding has helped ease the task of breeding in many of his clients' herds. "They like the system because it is predictable and effective. They know which cows to watch for heat, and, because several cows are cycling at the same time, heats are easier to detect."

Jones said that getting more cows pregnant allows his clients to cull cows for other reasons besides being open. "Often my clients have had to cull good cows because they weren't pregnant, and keep poorer ones because they were pregnant. Targeted Breeding lets producers keep the right cows for the right reasons."

A Pennsylvania dairy farmer who has been using Targeted Breeding for nearly three years revealed that improved reproduction has positively influenced other performance aspects of the 425-cow herd he manages. Sam Shotzberger, farm manager of Landhope Dairy, Kennett Square, Pa., said, "Getting cows pregnant faster has resulted in more milk in the tank. The majority of a cow's income-over-feed-cost is generated in the first 100 days of lactation, so we want to have them milking in that period as often as possible."

WHY ARE SO MANY ADDING TWO-WAY MOBILES?

"We added a two-way mobile radio system to improve our overall service. Avoiding costly downtime makes our customers, and us, more productive. With our E.F. Johnson Clearchannel® LTR system our service technicians are never out of touch."

Phil Wimer
Partner/Parts Manager
Landis Bros. Inc.

Why are more and more farms and businesses adding E.F. Johnson Clearchannel® LTR mobile communications? Because they discovered the cost saving efficiencies two-way radio provides. Access your personnel readily, reduce costly delays, and react immediately to emergency needs from any locations.

Don't get caught short in your busy season without good communications. See why so many are adding a Clearchannel® mobile system.

Helena Chemical Announces Seed Business Expansion

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Helena Chemical Company announced the expansion of its HyPerformer seed business as a separate unit of the company.

Milton Allen, formerly division manager for the Florida division, was appointed general manager and will be responsible for overseeing all operations.

Dick Guthrie was appointed assistant general manager of HyPerformer. He previously served as director of Helena's seed department at corporate.

"The decision to separate this part of Helena's business was based not only on the phenomenal growth of our HyPerformer seed line, but the commitment we made as a company in developing and servicing quality seed products," said Gary Hancock, president and chief executive officer of Helena Chemical Company. "Hyperformer's business philosophy will continue to be the same as Helena's — quality people, products, and knowledge."

Located on site at Agricenter International in Memphis, Tenn., this new business unit will encompass all areas associated with research and development, quality control, testing, sales and marketing, purchasing, supplier relations, and all other activities for HyPerformer brand seed products.

"The HyPerformer brand has been a very profitable segment of Helena's overall business, with varieties from our four major lines of seed (corn, sorghum, cotton, and soybeans) exceeding customer expectations in quality, yield, and profitability," said Milton Allen. He adds that the future of agriculture will be increasingly dependent on new technological applications involving seed, and HyPerformer is taking steps now to develop a strong market position in order to meet the needs of its customers.

With HyPerformer operating as a separate business unit, Helena's seed department will continue to purchase seed from its suppliers and distribute them through its own sales force.

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds

BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.
- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

Have you tried toasted grains?

Consider these advantages over traditional roasting methods:

- ◆ Consistent by-pass proteins and low moisture levels.
- ◆ Improved energy density of your rations.
- ◆ Excellent quality control.
- ◆ Exchange programs with feed mills.
- ◆ Economical storage, rolling and grinding available.
- ◆ We also buy corn and soybeans

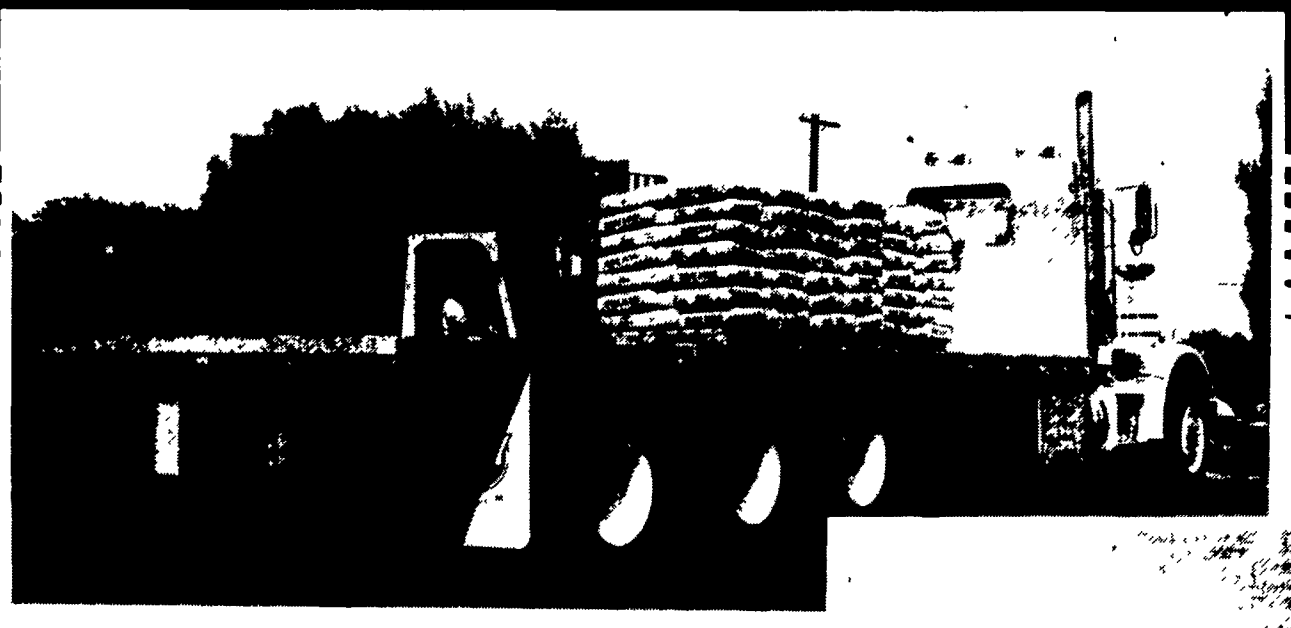
EBY ALUMINUM FLATBEDS: WE MAKE HARD WORK LOOK GOOD



On the farm or in the city, Eby aluminum flatbed bodies are built for your toughest hauling jobs. Their all-welded construction features 3" aluminum I-beam crossmembers (4" I-beams on bodies 16' and longer) on 12" centers, heavy side rub rail and aluminum diamond floor plate. A full list of options includes slated or solid aluminum sides, tool boxes and tire carrier.

Eby aluminum construction is up to 40% lighter than steel, so you get more payload capacity. The corrosion-resistant aluminum never needs painting and requires minimum maintenance but gives you maximum resale value. That's a winning combination to complement any truck.

In standard lengths to 32 feet and 5 widths from 78 to 102 inches, there's an Eby aluminum flatbed that's matched to your requirements. With Eby value and quality, hard work can look good.

Dreamfield Manor
960 Acre Country Estate
Just 35 Miles From Philadelphia

A rare opportunity to own a beautiful private valley. This one of a kind farm features a traditional English Manor entryway to the main set of buildings passing between the gate house and stone bank barn and over 2 stone bridges to an exquisite stone manor house circa 1703, with 6 bedrooms & 3 huge stone fireplaces. There is also a large Federal brick manor house. In total there are eight farm houses, four of which are stone, and two large stone bank barns. The land consists of gently rolling fields, woodland, and a beautiful steam valley. This farm has excellent potential for equestrian activities such as fox hunting or combined training. Secluded yet close to a PA Turnpike interchange and Interstate 78. (the owner may consider dividing) $6.5 Million.

• SCHUTZ ECOTAINER MX is a true space saver. Four 55 gallon drums take up the same space as one 275 gallon ECOTAINER MX. This results in a 20% improvement in space utilization.

• SHUTZ ECOTAINER MX is easy to handle and can be stacked 3 high when filled. It is easily handled by forklifts, pallet trucks or cranes. This ease of handling guarantees a minimum of loading and unloading time.

• SCHUTZ ECOTAINER MX is an advanced modular design container that permits economical component replacement and repair with normal shop equipment. The optimally drainable feature not only affords full value to your customer but at the end reduces recycling costs. This ultimate recycling is enhanced by the use of a limited number of different materials.

Dupont Introduces Herbicide Stewardship Program

WILMINGTON, Del. — DuPont Agricultural Products has announced a new stewardship program, called "Working With The Best," for its "Extrazine" II corn herbicides and its "Bladex" corn and cotton herbicides for the 1994 use season.

A number of voluntary changes have been made in the labels of both products. These involve maximum rates and requirements for correct use and application.

"What we basically are doing," said Deborah Freerksen, triazines stewardship manager, "is introducing a number of best management practices that will enable farmers to better protect the environment and ensure the continued availability of these highly effective, economical crop production tools."

DuPont is putting the finishing touches on an extensive program aimed at working with farmers, DuPont authorized retailers, and applicators. This program, "Working With The Best," will be introduced during the next few months.

"We're committed," Freerksen said, "to working in partnership with our customers and others to make this stewardship effort successful and to provide tools which help farmers manage the profitability of their operations."

DuPont also is working with many state corn growers associations and their members, the Soil Conservation Service, and state and local farm organizations to develop broad understanding of the best management practices.

These practices are similar to the use modifications for atrazine products that were introduced during the 1993 season.

They include maximum use rates, encouraging conservation tillage, and use of buffer strips and setbacks to protect rivers and streams, ponds and lakes, and wells and groundwater from sediment, nutrient, and pesticide runoff.

DuPont has several research studies under way to quantify the effectiveness of the best management practices and is seeking ways to improve them as new knowledge and technology become available.

Livestock Ledger

By Chester D. Hughes

Extension Livestock Specialist

STRATEGIC PARASITE CONTROL

At a recent beef production in-service that I attended, Dr. Tom Drake, Penn State extension veterinarian, outlined a simple but effective deworming program for cow/calf producers introduced as strategic parasite control.

The primary objective of this plan is to develop and maintain "parasite-safe" pastures throughout an entire grazing season. This goal is easily accomplished by preventing pasture contamination through the shedding of worm eggs in feces during the first three months of the grazing season, thus presenting parasite build-up during the rest of the grazing season.

For a cow/calf producer, the simple, effective guidelines to follow are:

1) Deworm all animals at the end of the grazing season with a Class II dewormer (a dewormer that kills both mature and immature worms). The best time is after the first killing frost. Do this step now!

2) Again, using a Class II product, deworm all cattle in the cow/calf herd six weeks after grazing began in the spring (four weeks for a stocker grazing program).

That's it! A process that is simple, effective, and economically sound, considering parasitism costs beef producers from $20 to $200 per head. Properly designed cattle handling facilities are sure useful in getting this task accomplished. In many cases, your next question will be — what products should I use? Please consult with your extension agent, beef specialist, veterinarian, or animal health supplier, for this information.

Biosecurity and PRV

As a recent Lancaster Farming article indicated, I was "alarmed" at the results of a biosecurity survey conducted by Penn State's Veterinary Science Department among swine producers in Lancaster and Lebanon counties.

In an area where diseases such as TGE, PRV, and PRRS take their toll on swine herd health, I would like to think that biosecurity is a front burner issue for local pork producers.

The survey indicated differently with important, effective practices such as replacement stock isolation, shipping truck disinfection, proper dead animal disposal, rodent control, and cautious farm visitation procedures receiving poor marks. Ranging from 20 percent - 50 percent, producers answers to questions about these issues indicated a lack of good biosecurity.

Penn State Cooperative Extension is willing to help with improving biosecurity on your farm. A resource entitled "Pennsylvania Swine Health and Biosecurity Manual" is available from Penn State University for only $8. The workbook, compiled by extension veterinarians headed by Dr. Larry J. Hutchinson, is designed to help pork producers keep their herds healthy and economically productive.

Biosecurity refers to those management practices that protect the herd from the entry of new diseases and minimize the spread and adverse effects of diseases in a herd. Ask your county extension agent for help with planning biosecurity for your operation.

Focusing on PRV (pseudorabies), I want to invite interested producers to a meeting on Tuesday, November 23, 7:30 p.m. at the Bergstrasse School (on Hahnstown Road, at the northeast corner of the junction of Routes 222 and 322, east of Ephrata). This informational and discussion opportunity will look at swine health, profitability, and pseudorabies. Speakers will share information on successful control, a feeder pig vaccination project, and split-state status for Pennsylvania.

Sheep Profitability

David Greene, Carroll County livestock agent with Maryland Cooperative Extension, recently spoke to Lancaster County sheep producers relating that profitability with a small flock is an attainable goal.

Despite all the challenges, sheep production in the eastern United States can be a profitable experience, with success often depending on your approach.

As reported in the October 1993 issue of the National Wool Grower, Greene states, "I think most people approach the sheep business the wrong way. They go out and buy sheep and then ask themselves what they're going to do with them. The first thing you should do is investigate the market, pinpoint what would be most profitable and then meet the needs of that market. That's the preferred approach — but one that usually is not taken.

"With the industry the way it is here — with so many part-timers — a lot of people think you must not be able to make any money at all," said Greene. "It kind of clouds the thinking of everyone else. In actuality, you can make money very easily if you go about it the right way."

Through an organized direct marketed, freezer lamb program, David Greene and his wife, Nancy, have been able to be profitable with their 100-ewe flock. David has also prepared a Sheep Management Guide aimed primarily at the small flock operator. A copy of the guide can be obtained from the Carroll County Extension Service, 700 Agriculture Center, Westminster, MD 21157, Lancaster County Cooperative Extension, 1383 Arcadia Road, Room 1, Lancaster, PA 17601.

A Gehl skid-steer loader forges through a muddy quarry on Trackman endless rubber tracks from Goodyear. Gehl recently joined the growing list of agricultural and industrial equipment manufacturers offering Trackman as original equipment or retrofit. Trackman provides better maneuverability, traction and less damage to terrain than wheeled vehicles, according to Goodyear.

Gehl Offers Trackman On Skid-Steer Loaders

AKRON, Ohio — Farm and industrial equipment manufacturers are making tracks to a product that makes their equipment more maneuverable, versatile and environmentally friendly.

The Gehl Co. is the most recent addition to the growing list of equipment manufacturers to endorse and use Goodyear's Trackman endless rubber track. Gehl offers Trackman on its line of skid steer loaders.

Manufacturers endorsing Trackman as original equipment or as a retro-fit through their dealers are: J I Case, Melroe and Mustang.

"We also are working with a number of other manufacturers such as Kinze Mfg., Christianson Inc., Byron Enterprises, Kelderman, DeSheppers, Gilbert & Riplo and H&S Co.," said Rob Andrew, marketing specialist with Goodyear. "Goodyear's rubber track keeps their equipment on the job in conditions that would sideline conventionally wheeled vehicles."

Trackman fits over conventional rubber tires as a retrofit and is installed by letting air out of the tires, slipping the track onto the vehicle and reinflating the tires. It also can perform as either friction or positive drive on OEM undercarriages.

Freshmen Receive Ag Scholar Awards

NEWARK, Del. — Seventeen freshmen enrolled in the University of Delaware this fall received Agricultural Sciences Scholar Awards from the College of Agricultural Sciences.

The competitive awards are based on academic record and are renewable. To be eligible, applicants must graduate in the top 20 percent of their high school class and score at least 1050 on the SAT.

These scholarships, which cover tuition, books and fees, are financed by an agricultural endowment program with funds from the state of Delaware, agribusinesses, alumni and individual donors.

The State of Delaware Carvel Agricultural Scholar Awards went to Julie A. Fine, Glasgow High School; Eva Santana, McKean High School; and Christie M. Quietmeyer, Dickinson High School.

Forrest L. Sprague, McKean High School, received the College of Agricultural Sciences Scholar Award.

Agricultural Sciences General Scholarships were awarded to Tammy Anderson, Wilmington High School; Shannon I. Tilmon, Ursuline Academy; Kristin K. Turner, Seaford High School; Wendi B. West, Glasgow High School; and Brian P. Curtain, Caesar-Rodney High School. Brian Curtain also received the Nechay Family Agricultural Scholarship.

George M. Worrilow scholarships were given to Jeffrey Bracht, Newark High School; Andrea Breedlove, Milford High School; Karen L. Maenner, York High School, Pa.; Mark A. Miller, Milford High School. The Allen Family Agricultural Scholarships were awarded to Tricia K. Cosbey, Seaford High School, and Ruth A. McQuaid, Milford High School.

The Harry Hayward Agricultural Scholarship went to Jill E. Miller, Laurel High School, Laurel, Md.

Rebecca H. Wentz, A.I. DuPont High School, received the Helmuth Agricultural Scholar award.

Northeastern Farm Credit Releases Election Results

LEWISBURG (Union Co.) — Four expired director positions were filled in the Northeastern Farm Credit 1993 mail ballot stockholder election.

The full board of directors includes 12 stockholder-elected directors and one outside director elected by the board. The following were elected with terms beginning January 1, 1994 and continuing through December 31, 1996:

Lee A. Shaffer, a dairy farmer from Selinsgrove, Union County, was re-elected to represent the Middleburg Division. Dennis B. Spangler, a dairy farmer from New Berlin, Union County, was elected to represent the southern region, which includes the Lewistown, Middleburg, Lewisburg and Bloomsburg divisions. A dairy farmer from Shinglehouse, Dale R. Hoffman of Potter County was elected representing the Coudersport Division. Thomas M. McCarty, a dairy farmer from Sugar Run, Bradford County, was elected to represent the northeast region, which includes the Towanda, Tunkhannock, and Williamsport divisions.

These newly elected directors will join current board members Donald Cotner of Danville, Richard Crawford of Port Royal, Carroll Doan of Knoxville, Harold Holt of Middleburg, Richard Kriebel of Benton, Douglas Lawton of Wellsboro, Alfred Munro of Jersey Shore, Robert Naylor of Factoryville, and Robert Whipple of Towanda.

Deere Adds 20-Foot Flex-Wing Cutter To Line

MOLINE, Ill. — John Deere has expanded its heavy-duty rotary cutter line with the addition of its new 2018 flex-wing model.

The 2018 features a new patented wing design with square corners that optimize material flow to the blades to take full advantage of the 20-foot cutting width.

The machine's large capacity, blade choices, and 112 degrees of wing flexibility (90 degrees up, and 22 degrees down) make the 2018 a logical choice for productive cutting and shredding in a wide range of terrain and conditions.

The Unibody™ deck design features continuous welds and box-beam construction for strength and a "clean" deck that minimizes trash buildup. Numerous drain holes direct water away from the deck to prevent premature rusting. Standard wear shoes provide greater wear resistance and strength to the side skirts. The shoes bolt on for easy replacement. A new, jaw-type, swivel clevis employs a patented design that reduces tractor drawbar wear and increases the life of the clevis.

Heavy-duty drive gearcases use oversized bearings and a 2-1/8-inch-diameter output shaft for the durability and strength to handle rough cutting and shredding assignments. The drive gearcases are rated at 120 horsepower @ 1,000 rpm and 100 horsepower @ 540 rpm for blade tip speeds of 185 and 183 mph, respectively. Minimum recommended tractor size is 75 horsepower.

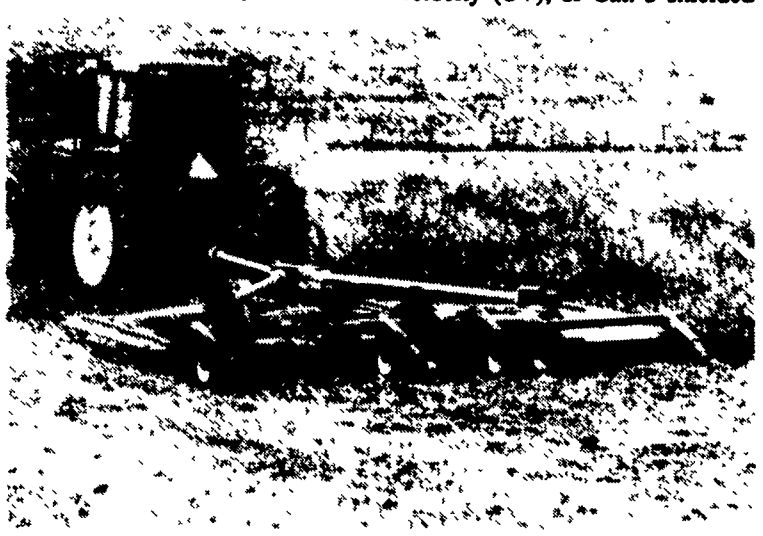
The choice of a Cat. 4 (1,000 rpm or Cat. 6 (540 rpm) constant-velocity (CV), or Cat. 5 shielded driveline is available for powering the 160-horsepower power-divider gearcase. The CV driveline transmits power smoothly and quietly in turns up to 80 degrees for increased maneuverability with the pto engaged. The shearbolt-protected CV driveline has an enclosed grease cavity to retain lubrication and keep out dirt for longer life.

Cat. 6 shielded wing drivelines direct power from the power-divider gearcase to the drive gearcases. Factory-preset clutches protect the drivelines and are self-adjusting for convenience and reduced maintenance time.

The heavy-duty, spring-suspension axle with six wheels provides strength and flotation for handling tough cutting conditions. The center-section tailwheels are adjustable to match most common row-crop spacings. A turnbuckle on the axle makes leveling each wing simple. Adjusting two rods at the front of the machine levels the deck front-to-back. A patented, load balancing system evenly distributes the load between the rods for increased durability.

The 2018 can be equipped with a choice of three blade types — suction, flat, and dual — for efficient performance in downed material, stalk and brush cutting, and shredding, respectively.

An optional pan attachment for the blade holders helps a cutter equipped with either suction or flat blades ride up and over obstructions, and reduces scalping impact and spindle wrap. The attachment is not available for dual blades.



The John Deere 2018 flex-wing rotary cutter has a 20-ft. cutting width and a flexible wing design for productive cutting in a wide range of applications. Heavy-duty drive gearcases use oversized bearings and a 2-1/8-inch-diameter output shaft for the strength and durability to handle tough cutting jobs.

Veal Committee Names Leaders

CHICAGO, Ill. — Floyd Many, a veal producer from Hobart, N.Y., has been appointed chairman of the Veal Committee by Beef Industry Council Chairman Ralph (Buck) Bell.

Many, a Meat Board director since 1987, is the secretary/treasurer of the New York Beef Council, where he represents the interests of veal farmers.

Prior to his appointment as chairman, Many served as co-vice chairman for two years. As chairman, Many will also serve as a member of the Meat Board Executive Board.

Wanda Cooper, a veal producer from Rothbury, Mich., and Clayton Harnish, a veal producer from Willow Street, Pa., were appointed co-vice chairs of the Veal Committee.

At the annual meeting of the National Live Stock and Meat Board held earlier this year, the Veal Committee approved a fiscal 1994 budget for programs of $1,461,200. Program expenditures include $898,706 for promotion, $285,304 for consumer information, $90,999 for research, $88,573 for industry communications and coordination, and $97,618 for meetings, contingencies, administration, and reserves.

Thompson Joins Cargill Effort To Promote Farm Safety

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Cargill sponsored John Thompson's appearance before 29,000 attendees at the 65th National FFA Convention on Thursday, Nov. 11 at the Marriott Downtown in Kansas City, Mo.

Thompson was only 18 years old in January 1992 when he survived a horrible farm accident in which both of his arms were severed below the shoulder by a power take-off shaft. The incident drew worldwide media attention after reports that Thompson, who was working alone, saved his own life by rushing 400 feet to his parents' Hurdsfield, N.D., home, kicked open the door, and called for help with a pen clenched in his teeth. He then waited in the bathtub so he wouldn't get blood on his mother's carpet. John was eventually flown to Minneapolis where, eight hours after the accident, doctors reattached his arms.

Thompson, a former member of the FFA, said he wanted to attend the convention "to keep people constantly aware of the dangers involved in farm work."

On Friday, Nov. 12, Thompson traveled 75 miles northeast to the Cargill grain elevator in Forest City, Mo., to meet with rural students at Mound City and Oregon schools.

Farmers were more attentive to taking safety precautions after his accident, Thompson said, "but as soon as they're out in the field, their minds are on getting things done and they are not thinking about the safe way of doing things. The safe way takes more time, and that is why so many farmers continue to work dangerously. I want to remind them how easily an accident can happen," he said.

Cargill's interest in farm safety stems from its year-old partnership with the nonprofit organization Farm Safety 4 Just Kids. Farm Safety 4 Just Kids was founded in 1986 in Earlham, Iowa, by Marilyn Adams, who lost her 11-year-old son to a farm accident.

Throughout North America, more than 125 Cargill locations have become business members of Farm Safety 4 Just Kids. Cargill has formed 12 chapters and sponsored many events with Farm Safety 4 Just Kids. "We have been dedicated to serving farmers for about 128 years, and it is fitting to serve their families as well," Huber said of the partnership. "Cargill's safety efforts have worked successfully in our workplace and can easily be focused on children in their farm surroundings."

Reproductive Management Workshop Set

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — Franklin County Cooperative Extension is sponsoring a two day Dairy Reproductive Management Workshop on December 7 and 8.

The workshop objective is to provide dairymen with information to help improve reproductive performance in the dairy herd. Instructors will be Drs. Mike O'Connor and Larry Hutchinson from Penn State and Dr. Alan Oliver from Greencastle Veterinary Hospital.

Preregistration by November 22 is necessary. The registration fee is $20 per person. The workshop will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Rhodes Grove Camp Conference Center, Chambersburg. Call (717) 263-9226 for details.

1 FARM EQUIPMENT

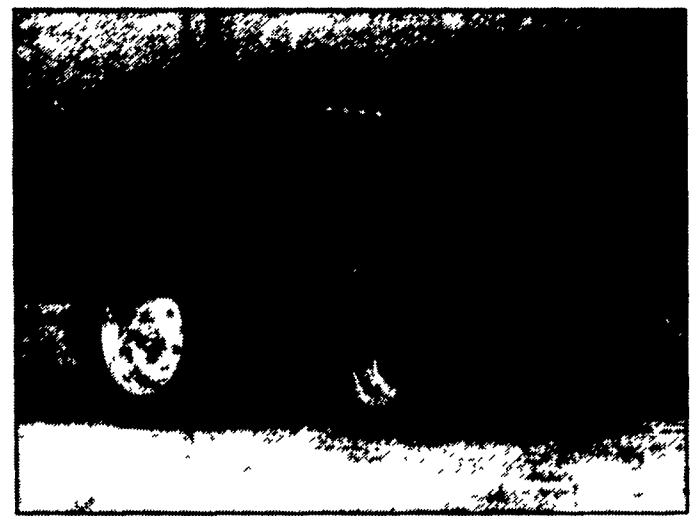
For The Way You Farm Today
Fingertip Powershift Control, Improved Field Visibility and The Most Comfortable Cab Ever



AGCO ALLIS
For the way you farm today

Model 9650
147 PTO HP (109.7 kW)

With their new 18x9 speed full powershift transmissions that electronically control the engagement of massive gears with just the tap of a hand... their cab-forward design that permits a clear, unobstructed view of the field in all directions... and their roomy, comfortable cabs, that feature a unique swivel, air-ride seat and an exclusive seat-mounted control console, the new 9600 Series tractors are clearly ahead of the time.

Every component — from the sleek, sloping hood, to the rugged, cast-iron mainframe to the world-proven air-cooled diesel engines, that require less maintenance — has been designed to match the way you farm today. The result is greater comfort, better performance and improved productivity.

Compare the features and specifications for yourself. Better yet, stop by your AGCO Allis dealer soon and try out one of the 9600 models for yourself. You have to drive it to believe it.

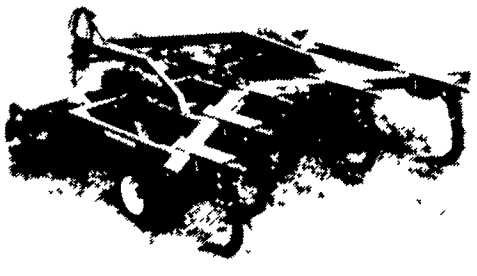
NEW AT BINKLEY & HURST BROS.
FROM SUNFLOWER:

MODEL 4010/4110
SUNFLOWER®
COULTER RIPPER



Conservation Tillage Equipment Built SUNFLOWER Tough!

Sunflower's Coulter Ripper is for today's conservation minded farmer demanding deep tillage with minimal residue disturbance These durable machines feature adjustable front mounted coulters on 7½" centers The coulter blades have an added advantage of slicing hard ground to keep clod size to a minimum The V-bar ripper design gives added trash clearance and pulls smoother than straight-bar rippers These coulter rippers are built Sunflower tough and no ballast is added to the frame increasing the structural strength. Check out Sunflower's latest edition to its growing family of quality tillage equipment at a farm show or dealer near you Adjustable Coulter Gangs: The 4010/4110 both feature adjustable coulter gangs that can be raised completely in clean ground. Ratchet Jack Adjustment is standard equipment. Optional Hydraulic Gang Adjustment makes on the go changes or raising the coulters completely out of the way an easy task from the tractor seat.

Also...3 Pt. Hitch Subsoiler Rippers For Hard Pan Deep-Till. SEE BINKLEY & HURST NOW!

Great Plains

THE NO-TILL GRAIN DRILL LEADER...

Great Plans delivers good, even stands in a wide variety of soil and residue conditions. The components are simple: The coulter provides a mini-seedbed and the depth gauging press wheel runs smoothly on the soil cleared by the coulter (and then by the opener), ensuring accurate depth control of the opener. The opener delivers the seed to the bottom of the seed trench where the seed is firmed into the moist soil at a consistent depth.

THERE IS A GREAT PLAINS NO-TIL DRILL for you — from 7' to 30'...

Great Plains

Dedicated to the science of no-till seeding.

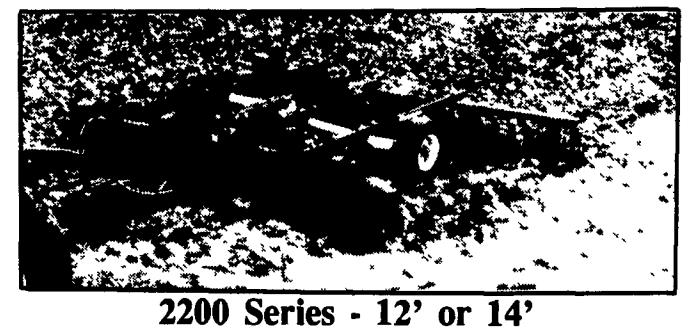
...WHEN YOU BUY ONE
...WHEN YOU USE ONE
...WHEN YOU TRADE ONE

BEFORE YOU BUY A NEW DISC HARROW THIS SPRING CHECK THREE THINGS:

1) PRICE per POUND

Krause Rockflex discs cost less per pound than most discs available today. Whether you are looking for a 12' or a 30' disc, compare price per pound.



2200 Series - 12' or 14'
Medium Duty Disc Harrow

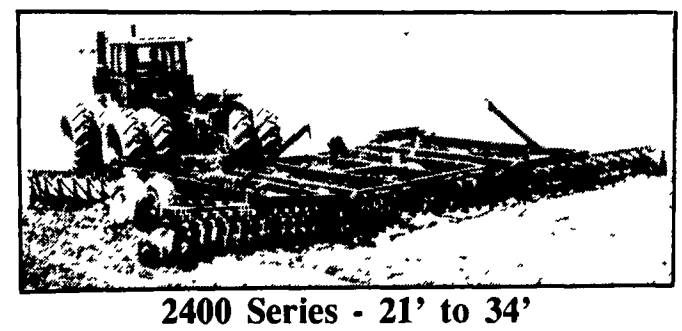
2) PARTS AVAILABILITY & PRICE...

Krause Rockflex disc parts are in stock at HOOBER'S when you need them. With over 100 units being sold per year, you know that when you buy a new disc from us, we will have your parts when you need them. AND AT PRICES LESS THAN THE COMPETITION.

4900 Series 18' to 33'
Medium Duty Disc Harrow

3) TRADE VALUE IS THE HIGHEST...

When you go to sales this Summer to watch a KRAUSE disc sell, you'll find out that there is no machine that maintains its value better than a KRAUSE ROCKFLEX DISC. They always bring top dollar.



2400 Series - 21' to 34'
Heavy Duty Disc Harrow

Why Are KRAUSE Rockflex discs such a great value? It's simple!!!

They WORK, AND WORK, AND WORK, AND WORK, AND WORK...

WE CAN CUSTOMIZE A UNIT TO FIT YOUR PERSONAL NEEDS!

Safe • Efficient • Durable
Look at what makes the Mahoning Outdoor Furnace a great purchase...
CLEAN. All dirt, dust, fuel and fire is outside No chance of chimney fire or flue fire ELIMINATES AIR POLLUTION IN THE HOME. Smoke, fuel odors and other causes of allergies are outside the home
SAFE FOR MOBILE HOMES Eliminates danger that other furnaces contained in a mobile home can cause
NO DANGER OR EXPLOSION. This is a zero pressure furnace
ENCLOSED COMPONENTS. The circulation pumps and electrical connections are enclosed in an insulated cabinet on the back of the Mahoning Outdoor Furnace
ADAPTABLE. Install our furnace in any forced air heating or hot water system

All Mahoning Units Come Installed with Grates Including An External Shaker Handle

★The only outdoor furnace made with a Catalytic Combustor.★
Mahoning Catalytic Combustor Will Help In the Following Ways:
1. Burn one cord of wood which equals 166 gallons of oil.
2. Your fuel source becomes enormous inexhaustible and poses few risks to public safety.
3. Over all efficiency of 85%, which means the heat no longer goes up the chimney!
4. You get more heat from a log compared to the non-cat. furnace.
5. More burn time - less reloading time!
6. Zap 90% of pollutants, made from fire source.
7. Saves you a lot of money!
8. User friendly, emits no smoke!

All Mahoning Multi-Fuels Can Burn Coal, Wood, Oil, Propane, Natural Gas

Proudly Built in Clearfield County, Pennsylvania

LOAD...UNLOAD FASTER AND EASIER

When you're working the big loads you need the Super Boom advantage—extra reach.

With more forward dump reach you can center load your largest spreader from one side so you get an even load. The result: faster loading, fuller loads and easier unloading.

With level bucket lift you load more and lift higher. . . with less spillback. And, with a longer wheelbase there's more stability and safety.

Find out how good a skid-steer loader can be.

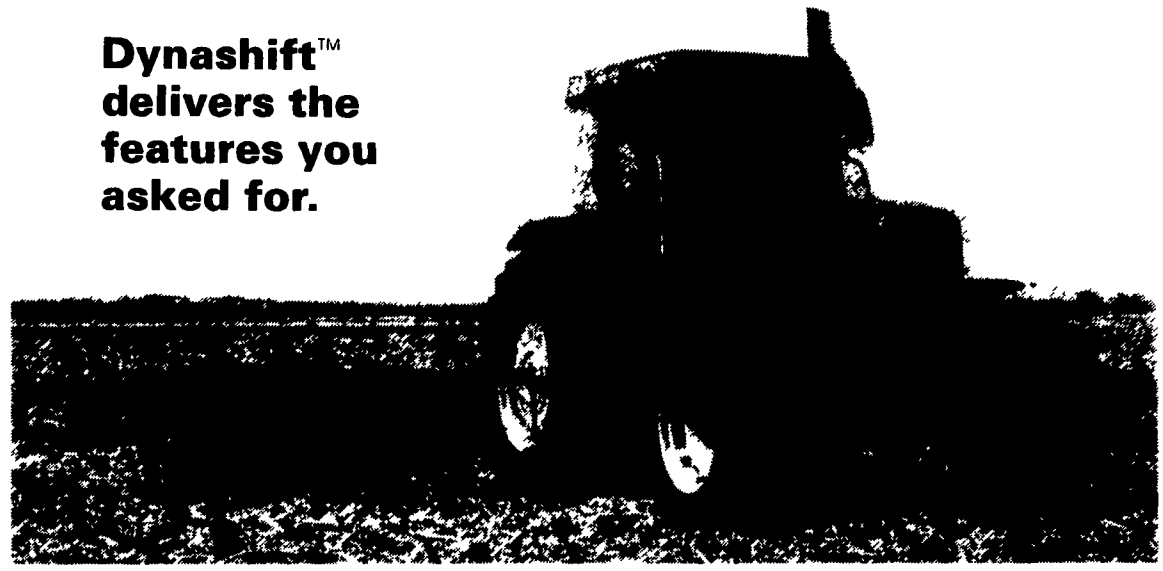
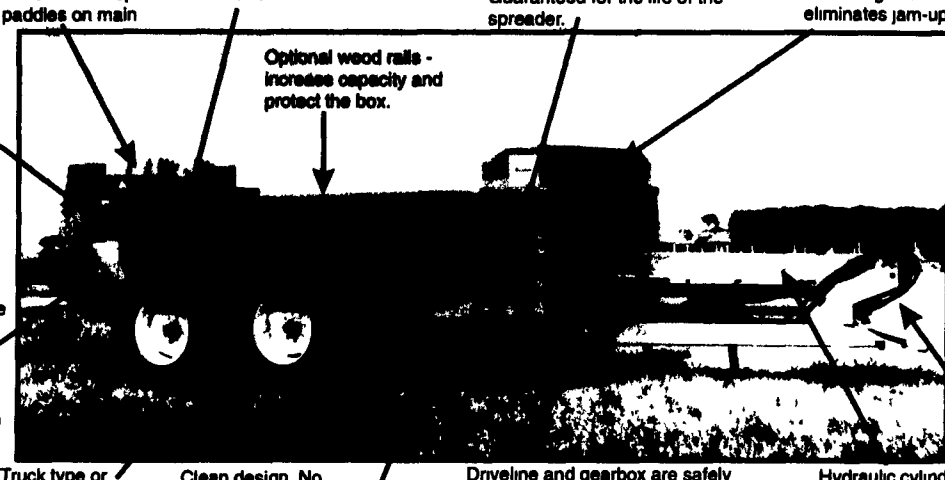
Dynashift™ delivers the features you asked for.



What farmers like you told us you want in a powershift transmission.
"Smooth shifts"	The transmission has to shift as smoothly as you can manually shift, without the jerks that can damage implements
"Fuel efficiency"	Deliver more engine power to the wheels and PTO.
"Reverse shuttle shifting"	Make synchronized shifts from forward to reverse
"Better speed selection"	The next powershift gear should never be more than 17% faster or slower
"Low cost"	Make the benefits of powershifting more affordable to buy and maintain

HYDRA-SPREAD

HYDRAULIC PUSH-OFF MANURE SPREADER



Single or two beater designs. Aggressive, high-speed beaters - with up to 15 paddles per beater - deliver a fine uniform spread. Replaceable bolted paddles on main beater

Polyethylene sides and bottom containing 90% re-cycled material. Guaranteed for the life of the spreader.

Simple and reliable single-stage push gate for dependable, trouble-free unloading. Centre-guided design eliminates jam-ups

Optional wood rails - increase capacity and protect the box.

Precision metering valve for infinitely variable unloading from 0 - 8 fpm

Fully shielded PTO with overload protection

Truck type or flotation tires to suit your needs

Clean design. No obstructions to hold manure.

Hydraulic cylinders are installed above the floor Always accessible - always easy to clean and service.

MASSEY FERGUSON

Leveling your hills.

The optional Hillside Cleaning System automatically swings the top sieve sideways, against the slope of the hill. This keeps grain spread out evenly for cleaner grain samples.

You get full performance on slopes up to 20%, without the big expense of a hillside combine.

Does Your Engine HAVE GAS PAINS?

BARN CLEANERS

All-forged Hook-Link® chain... available on Super 300 and Super 500 barn cleaners

Extra thick steel at all wear points

IMPORTANT: Look for the "parting line" on any barn cleaner chain you buy. It's where excess metal has been trimmed off. It is your assurance that the link was totally forged, not just punched out of a flat steel bar with grain flow in one direction only.
You want a totally forged link because forging changes the grain on the steel, causing it to curve in unbroken flow lines around the contours of the link, giving the link greater strength. It will serve you longer.

CONCRETE REASONS WHY A NEW POURED CONCRETE SILO IS YOUR BEST INVESTMENT...

"This is the kind of silo you need to protect your valuable feed."

A. Enhancement of cash flow. Improved forage quality results in consistent, and increased milk production.

B. "Safe Silo" Our silos meet or exceed industry standards, reducing/protecting lender liability.

C. Initial Cost. Used or cheap pre-fab silos may have a lower initial cost, but based upon useful life, the new poured concrete silo will have a lower annual cost: due to longer life and lower maintenance costs.

D. Residual Value. Our new, poured concrete silos are built for "generations of use", and enhance the future value of the farm.

E. Storage Losses Reduced. Poured concrete silos consistently out-perform all other methods of storing and preserving the total digestible nutrients in forage crops.

F. Protecting Forage Quality. Oxygen and heat cause the most damage to stored silage and haylage. Our poured concrete silos are the very best system to PROTECT YOUR FORAGE QUALITY... "NOBODY PROTECTS FORAGE QUALITY LIKE WE DO...NOBODY"
